Union Contract For Mine Supervisors Is Approved

Pact Is Made With Workers Under Lewis

Agreement Is First In History Of Soft Coal Industry

COURT ACTION MAY VOID NEW CONTRACT

136 Bituminous Mine Supervisory Workers Are Affected

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—Vice Admiral Ben C. Moreell, federal coal mines administrator, announced tonight a government-union agreement covering pay and working conditions for mine supervisory workers—the first such agreement reached in the history of the soft coal industry.

The agreement applies only to 136 supervisory workers at four Western Pennsylvania bituminous mines of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation but the case has been regarded as a test over the long-controverted issue of unionizing mine foremen.

The coal industry for years has resisted all attempts to deal with supervisory workers through a union, contending they are part of management.

Moreell Makes Agreement

Admiral Moreell made the agreement as operator of all bituminous mines under a government seizure order in effect for the past two months. The pact was made with the United Clerical, Technical and Supervisory Workers of District 50, a branch of the United Mine Workers (AFL), headed by John L. Lewis.

It was stipulated that in event Adm. Moreell is restrained through pending court action from maintaining such an agreement covering supervisory workers the agreement would be voided.

J. and L. lost a federal district court injunction plea two weeks ago but appealed to the district federal court of appeals earlier today for an order barring Moreell from making any supervisory workers pact with the union.

Separate agreements also were announced covering J. and L. clerical

O'Conor Asks Biddison To Be Prosecutor In Probe Of Police

BALTIMORE, July 17 (AP) — Gov. O'Conor disclosed tonight he had asked Thomas N. Biddison, former assistant state's attorney, to act as special prosecutor in the grand jury investigation of Baltimore's Police department.

Biddison, who is 37, has agreed to resign as director of the State department of correction and take the new assignment.

J. Bernard Wells, state's attorney for Baltimore, disclosed meantime that he will confer in Washington Thursday with Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Wells and Governor O'Conor both have asked the FBI for help in the police department survey, which grew out of a gang-style holdup on the Fourth of July at the downtown Century Athletic Club.

The governor today telephoned Attorney General Tom Clark in Washington asking him to waive the usual jurisdictional restrictions and let the FBI enter the case.

MAY VISITED MUNITIONS OFFICE THREE TIMES, SECRETARY SAYS

Mrs. Eleanor Hall, Tells Of Overhearing Telephone Conversation About $1,000 For "Yankel", Nickname Used For Rep. May

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — Mrs. Eleanor Hall, a former secretary for a munitions sales agent, testified today that she had overheard a long distance telephone talk about $1,000 for "Yankel"—a Yiddish nickname which she said her bosses frequently used for Rep. May (D-Ky).

The account of the conversation was laid before the Senate War Investigating committee in the midst of a series of sensational statements under oath linking May's name to the Washington influence of the munitions combine.

She told the committee that May, chairman of the House Military committee, had himself thrice visited the combine's Washington office, and on one occasion cautioned the employes to guard their telephone conversations "because the wires may be tapped."

With the close of her testimony, the committee suspended—at least temporarily—their public hearing—and decided to go into a huddle behind closed doors tomorrow to discuss legal processes for hailing May before it for a sworn explanation of his activities.

Testimony Ends In Turmoil

Into her testimnoy, Mrs. Hall sprinkled liberal references to expensive presents to high-ranking army officers and their wives, and to the business transactions which occurred during her employ and which she described as "very shady."

Her testimony ended in turmoil at day's end. As she stepped from the witness table, a husky-swarthy-complexioned woman plunged toward the committee, sobbing and screaming denunciations of Mrs. Hall's character and testimony and demanding an opportunity to be heard.

Led by police from the committee chamber, she identified herself as Vanetha Sarelas Doukes, elder sister of Louis Sarelas, $11,000-a-year office manager of the munitions establishment at the time when Mrs. Hall was employed there.

Speaking in a southern drawl, Mrs. Hall had quoted Sarelas as telling her that May had got him out of the army after only six weeks' service.

Sarelas had testified only yesterday that she quit her job Oct. 17, 1945—one which she first took in March of 1945—because she was emotionally upset."

"After all," protested Mrs. Hall today, "when you are working for a bunch of crooks, it does get you emotionally upset."

She said that members of the office—among them Joseph Freeman, the Washington agent of the combine, and Murray Garsson, one of its promoters, "frequently" referred to May as "Yankel."

Term Is Explained

Upon the request of Mead, a committee investigator later explained that term as "Yiddish for 'Little Jack' "and said it meant "he's not too smart."

Saying that she was on an office extension at the time, she testified that Freeman on one occasion telephoned E. M. Glazier, treasurer of one of the concerns in the combine, and inquired:

"What about that piece of paper?"

She said that Glazier responded: "'What piece of paper'—or something like that."

Then she quoted Freeman as saying: "You know what I mean—the $1,000 for Yankel."

She said that Flazier then promised to get the check in the mail the following day, and was "reprimanded" by Freeman for the delay.

On another occasion, she said that Sarelas came into the office carrying an envelope to pass on to Freeman, saying that it contained $1,000 and remarking that it was "going to the hill."

She testified that Freeman entered the office later, picked up the envelope, retired to his private office and then made three telephone calls let the FBI enter the case.

Reports Persist "Deal" Is Made In Heirens Case

Says He Will Confess Degnan Slaying In Return For Life Imprisonment

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP) — Reports persisted today, despite denials from the principals involved, that a "deal" was impending or already completed whereby William Heirens would formally confess the Suzanne Degnan kidnap-killing and two other slayings in return for a life-sentence recommendation.

These reports were published by Chicago's three afternoon newspapers today as Heirens indicated he had undergone a "truth serum" test with sodium pentothal June 29, shortly after his arrest.

Dr. William Haines, head of the Cook County Behavior Clinic and one of three psychiatrists who examined the 17-year-old University of Chicago student on that date, quoted the prisoner as saying in his county jail cell today, "they put one over on me with this truth serum."

Attorney's Decline To Comment

The Chicago Sun reported Heirens "admitted the Suzanne Degnan kidnap-murder" while under the influence of the drug. State's Attorney William J. Tuohy and Heirens' attorney declined to comment on whether the drug was used.

Advised of the press reports, Tuohy said no "deal" had been made. John Coghlan, attorney for Heirens, reiterated that Heirens had made no confession and added, "There is no prospect of a confession."

(Legal experts pointed out that Tuohy, if he wished, could not make a binding deal to save any defendant in a murder case from the death penalty. However, he could presumably accomplish this, they added, by failing to ask for the death

Lt. Thomas Farrell Denies That He Branded Girl

BOSTON, July 17. (AP)—Lt. Thomas Farrell, 25, bemedalled Pacific flier, denied today that he branded or slashed Helen Stavrou, 18-year-old typist, and said the girl told him "you're going to have to marry me."

The flier took the witness stand today, the sixteenth day of his Superior court trial before a jury which early in the case was shown scars on the bared breasts of the Stavrou girl, who charges Farrell with branding and cutting her during 17 hours in a hotel room.

Under pilot's wings on his shirt Farrell wore ribbons for the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and for the Pacific campaign in which 35 bombing missions earned him four battle stars.

After testifying that he told the girl he was married and had a child "but was separated," Farrell was asked by his counsel, Attorney Herbert F. Callahan:

"Did you during the night of March 16-17 burn Helen Stavrou?"

"No, I did not," Farrell said.

"Did you slash or cut her?" Callahan continued.

"No," the flier answered.

"At any time," Callahan questioned, "during that Saturday night from about 6:30 p. m. to the time you left Sunday at 12:30 p. m. did you make any threats to kill Helen Stavrou?"

"No," I did not," Farrell said.

"Did you love Helen at that time?" his counsel asked.

"No," the flier answered.

Farrell testified that he met Miss Stavrou on Tuesday following the March 16 weekend and noticed bandages on the girl.

The flier said he asked her:

"What the hell is that for?"

He said Miss Stavrou answered:

"That is where you burned me in the hotel."

Then, Farrell said, he asked:

"What are you trying to do, frame me?"

He said the girl replied:

"You're going to have to marry me."

OPA Conferees Fail To Reach Any Agreement

Action On Modifications Truman Seeks Is Unlikely Before Friday

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — A Senate-House conference on the OPA bill virtually marked time today and Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) reported action unlikely before Friday on modifications the administration seeks.

With Barkley himself and other senators absent, the House conferees, who have taken a stand against the specific ceiling exemptions which the Senate voted, submitted no formal compromise proposals.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) reported they appeared unwilling to do so with senators absent but Senator Tobey (R-NH) accused them of "dawdling" and told reporters that "all they want to do is talk."

"Feelings are tense," he added. "The time has come to fish or cut bait."

Rep. Spence (D-Ky), head of the House conferees, said that "we will make a move when the time comes. Nobody can put the chips down faster than we can."

Measure Is Discussed

The same situation apparently will prevail tomorrow.

In the forenoon the conference committee will take up an unrelated bill dealing with the price of silver, on which the Senate and House have long been in dispute. Barkley said he will be absent in the afternoon because of another engagement.

Asked whether the delay on pressing to a vote on the provisions of the OPA bill is intentional, Barkley declared that "there is no significance" to it.

The provisions of the measure were discussed in general terms at today's meeting.

The session finally broke up when senators were called to the floor for a vote on another matter.

Meanwhile there was a fresh indication of Mr. Truman's displeasure with the measure as it stands.

The White House released a report of the War Reconversion Advisory Board calling for a bill which would renew price controls for a year while "simplifying present procedures and liberalizing existing standards." A White House statement releasing the report added:

"This action shall in no wise be construed as an endorsement of the proposed legislation now pending before Congress."

Barkley And Taft Argue

House conferees sought to get the senators to agree to abandon provisions exempting meat, milk and other items from price ceilings as the sessions continued behind closed doors. But Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters he is unwilling to yield an inch, and "if the president wants to veto it, then let him veto it."

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) nevertheless voiced hope for quick action.

Mr. Truman was represented in some capitol quarters as having in effect offered his own compromise, by which he might accept some provisions of the Senate bill which he considers objectionable if price controls are restored on the food items.

The forenoon conference session was given over practically to an argument between Barkley and Taft on formulae for allowing price increases based upon increased production costs.

Members of the War Reconversion Advisory Board include Eric Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Ed O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Albert Goss, master of the National Grange; James G. Patton, head of the Farmers Union; William Green, AFL chief, and Philip Murray, CIO president.

The board said abandonment of OPA will leave the country unprotected "against a dangerous rise in prices in the interval before economic forces are working."

Russians Declare They Cannot Find Missing Officers

Soviet Authorities Doubt Two Americans Are Being Held In Berlin

By RICHARD A. O'REGAN

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 17 (AP)—The two American officers who disappeared July 4 into the Russian zone of Berlin cannot be located by the Russians and Soviet authorities doubt that the men are being held there, an army public relations officer announced tonight.

The Russians stated they "have been unable to locate Capt. Harold Cobin and Second Lt. George Wyatt and that to the best of their knowledge they are not being held in the Russian zone," the announcement said.

Three Russians Released

At the same time Col. George S. Eyster, public relations chief in the European theater, disclosed that the three Russians arrested two weeks ago in the United States zone of Berlin on suspicion of espionage "are being released to Russian authorities at Hof today." Hof is on the border between the American and Soviet zones of occupied Germany.

The assurances that Cobin and Wyatt could not be located were given to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, commander of the American Military District of Berlin, by Lt. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Russian

Russian Naval Lieutenant Is Freed By Jury

By DAN MARSTON

SEATTLE, July 17 (AP)—Russian Naval Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin was freed today to return to his native land with his attractive wife and child, cleared by a federal court jury of espionage and conspiracy charges.

The 30-year-old former Soviet purchasing commission representative here "feels that the injustice of his arrest" has been removed by the verdict, his attorneys said after the jury of seven men and five women returned their decision this forenoon. The jury, out since 1:18 p. m. yesterday, brought in its verdict at 10:14 a. m.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury and your honor, I'd like to thank you for this fair trial in these United States of America," the stocky, handsome young Russian said after the verdict was read.

Redin, arrested last March 26 at Portland, Ore., was charged in two indictments with buying detailed secret information about the U. S. S. Yellowstone, destroyer tender built here, from Herbert Kennedy, 69-year-old shipyard engineer. He also was accused of attempting to obtain information on radar and fire control of the Yellowstone and with conspiring with some person or persons unknown to transmit all the information to Russia.

Redin thanked the jurors personally as they left the courtroom and his next thoughts were of his wife, Galina. She had been at his side daily during the 22-day trail, but did not come to court this morning.

LOS ANGELES, July 17 (AP) — Howard Hughes, millionaire aircraft manufacturer and movie producer, told his doctor today: "I feel better than I have since I was injured."

Hughes suffered a crushed lung and other injuries in the crash of a speedy army photo reconnaissance plane July 7.

Dr. Verne Mason said Hughes's condition was improved over yesterday, that his pulse was down from 120 to 105. He has received three blood transfusions in the last 24 hours and another X-ray of his chest was scheduled.

Glenn Odekirk, general manager of Hughes Aircraft, Inc., conferred briefly with Hughes yesterday.

Action Taken To Get Goods To Consumers

Want Scarce Materials To Go To Manufacturers Who Need Them

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—To prevent hoarding at the factory of scarce household appliances and other goods in hopes of higher prices, the Civilian Production Administration tonight clamped stern inventory controls on manufacturers.

The anti-withholding order limits to a supply of 30 days or less the stocks of nearly a score of finished products which may be held in factories or warehouses. The rest must be moved to market.

The goods affected include furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, electric ranges, sewing machines and vacuum cleaners, cameras and photographic equipment and some building materials.

Simultaneously CPA tightened its control on the supplies of 27 materials and parts which manufacturers may keep in inventory. This is to prevent firms from buying them up and holding them as a hedge against rising raw materials prices.

Consumers To Get Goods

"What we are after is to see that scarce materials go to the manufacturer whose finished products go immediately to the consumer, rather than to those who plan to withhold manufactured products awaiting possible price increases," said CPA Administrator John D. Small in a statement.

The action is the first inventory control ever applied to finished consumer goods, except for the curbs imposed in May on men's clothing and women's hosiery. The reason was similar—to prevent manufacturers' withholding which was prevalent, a CPA spokesman said, because of expectations that price control would be killed.

Little hoarding is known to exist in the household goods industries covered today, this official said, "but we want to eliminate the possibility of it."

The order specifies that a manufacturer may not hold in inventory more than 30 days' output of his goods, or not more than a "practicable minimum working inventory," whichever is less.

"This means that if a manufacturer now has an excess inventory

Talmadge Claims Georgia Victory While Wheeler Loses In Montana

ATLANTA, July 18 (Thursday) (AP)—Fiery Gene Talmadge of the red suspenders and the unruly locks piled up more than enough indicated unit votes today to elect him governor a fourth time.

The vote in Georgia's 159 counties, though, was far from complete and Georgia still counted ballots from yesterday's Democratic primary which were expected to reach the 700,000 mark.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Political Reporter)

Although trailing in popular votes, suspendered Eugene Talmadge claimed victory last (Wednesday) night in his bid for a fourth term as governor of Georgia in a primary election which broke all voting records for that state.

Talmadge led in 83 of Georgia's 159 counties. Under the Georgia electoral system—something like the national electoral college—that gave him an indicated 206 unit or electoral votes, enough to win if he held his margin.

James V. Carmichael, 36-year-old protege of the present governor, Ellis Arnall, had 84,741 popular votes to only 72,584 for Talmadage, but he led in only 40 counties with 122 unit votes.

The bitter Talmadge-Carmichael fight, waged in part on the "white

Dr. Pullen Outlines Eight-Point Program For Improving Education

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 17 (AP)—The 210 delegates to the annual Maryland congress of parents and teachers today heard state Superintendent of Schools Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., outline an eight-point program for improving education in the state.

Dr. Pullen spoke to an overflow crowd in an auditorium at the University of Maryland as he outlined these eight things he said he is trying to do for education in Maryland:

1. Reduce size of elementary school classes from the present average of 35 to not more than 30.
2. Start more junior colleges.
3. Increase teachers' salaries.
4. Get new buildings for the counties and Baltimore City—$125,000,000 worth.
5. Provide more opportunities for students who want to go to college.

6. Provide more dormitory space and more teachers at colleges.
7. Amend the teachers' retirement system so that service in any county counts toward a pension.
8. Extend a recently-developed examination which leads to high school-equivalent diplomas for those who pass.

In his plea for more junior colleges, Dr. Pullen pointed out that there are but two in the state, at Salisbury and in Montgomery county. Two more are to open in the

"Did you love Helen at that time?" his counsel asked.

"No," the flier answered.

Farrell testified that he met Miss Stavrou on Tuesday following the March 16 weekend and noticed bandages on the girl.

The flier said he asked her: "What the hell is that for?"

He said Miss Stavrou answered: "That is where you burned me in the hotel."

Then, Farrell said, he asked: "What are you trying to do, frame me?"

He said the girl replied: "You're going to have to marry me."

OPA Conferees Fail To Reach Any Agreement

Action On Modifications Truman Seeks Is Unlikely Before Friday

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — A Senate-House conference on the OPA bill virtually marked time today and Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) reported action unlikely before Friday on modifications the administration seeks.

With Barkley himself and other senators absent, the House conferees, who have taken a stand against the specific ceiling exemptions which the Senate voted, submitted no formal compromise proposals.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) reported they appeared unwilling to do so with senators absent but Senator Tobey (R-NH) accused them of "dawdling" and told reporters that "all they want to do is talk."

"Feelings are tense," he added. "The time has come to fish or cut bait."

Rep. Spence (D-Ky), head of the House conferees, said that "we will make a move when the time comes. Nobody can put the chips down faster than we can."

Measure Is Discussed

The same situation apparently will prevail tomorrow.

In the forenoon the conference committee will take up an unrelated bill dealing with the price of silver, on which the Senate and House have long been in dispute. Barkley said he will be absent in the afternoon because of another engagement.

Asked whether the delay on pressing to a vote on the provisions of the OPA bill is intentional, Barkley declared that "there is no significance" to it.

The provisions of the measure were discussed in general terms at today's meeting.

The session finally broke up when senators were called to the floor for a vote on another matter.

Meanwhile there was a fresh indication of Mr. Truman's displeasure with the measure as it stands.

The White House released a report of the War Reconversion Advisory Board calling for a bill which would renew price controls for a year while "simplifying present procedures and liberalizing existing standards." A White House statement releasing the report added:

"This action shall in no wise be construed as an endorsement of the proposed legislation now pending before Congress."

Barkley And Taft Argue

House conferees sought to get the senators to agree to abandon provisions exempting meat, milk and other items from price ceilings as the sessions continued behind closed doors. But Senator Taft (R-Ohio) told reporters he is unwilling to yield an inch, and "if the president wants to veto it, then let him veto it."

Senate Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) nevertheless voiced hope for quick action.

Mr. Truman was represented in some capitol quarters as having in effect offered his own compromise, by which he might accept some provisions of the Senate bill which he considers objectionable if price controls are restored on the food items.

The forenoon conference session was given over practically to an argument between Barkley and Taft on formulae for allowing price increases based upon increased production costs.

Members of the War Reconversion Advisory Board include Eric Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Ed O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation; Albert Goss, master of the National Grange; James G. Patton, head of the Farmers Union; William Green, AFL chief, and Philip Murray, CIO president.

The board said abandonment of OPA will leave the country unprotected "against a dangerous rise in prices in the interval before economic forces are working."

Russians Declare They Cannot Find Missing Officers

Soviet Authorities Doubt Two Americans Are Being Held In Berlin

By RICHARD A. O'REGAN

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 17 —(AP)—The two American officers who disappeared July 4 into the Russian zone of Berlin cannot be located by the Russians and Soviet authorities doubt that the men are being held there, an army public relations officer announced tonight.

The Russians stated they "have been unable to locate Capt. Harold Cobin and Second Lt. George Wyatt and that to the best of their knowledge they are not being held in the Russian zone," the announcement said.

Three Russians Released

At the same time Col. George S. Eyster, public relations chief in the European theater, disclosed that the three Russians arrested two weeks ago in the United States zone of Berlin on suspicion of espionage "are being released to Russian authorities at Hof today." Hof is on the border between the American and Soviet zones of occupied Germany.

The assurances that Cobin and Wyatt could not be located were given to Maj. Gen. Frank A. Keating, commander of the American Military District of Berlin, by Lt. Gen. Alexander Kotikov, Russian

Russian Naval Lieutenant Is Freed By Jury

By DAN MARSTON

SEATTLE, July 17 (AP)—Russian Naval Lieut. Nicolai G. Redin was freed today to return to his native land with his attractive wife and child, cleared by a federal court jury of espionage and conspiracy charges.

The 30-year-old former Soviet purchasing commission representative here "feels that the injustice of his arrest" has been removed by the verdict, his attorneys said after the jury of seven men and five women returned their decision this forenoon. The jury, out since 1:18 p. m. yesterday, brought in its verdict at 10:14 a. m.

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury and your honor, I'd like to thank you for this fair trial in these United States of America," the stocky, handsome young Russian said after the verdict was read.

Redin, arrested last March 26 at Portland, Ore., was charged in two indictments with buying detailed secret information about the U. S. S. Yellowstone, destroyer tender built here, from Herbert Kennedy, 69-year-old shipyard engineer. He also was accused of attempting to obtain information on radar and fire control of the Yellowstone and with conspiring with some person or persons unknown to transmit all the information to Russia.

Redin thanked the jurors personally as they left the courtroom and his next thoughts were of his wife, Galina. She had been at his side daily during the 32-day trail, but did not come to court this morning.

Meatless Days Loom As Buyers Strike Begins

800,000 Union Members, Many Consumers Protest Increasing Prices

DETROIT, July 17 (AP) — Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers is going to munch on some corned beef he has this weekend.

UAW Vice President Richard T. Leonard is destined for a couple of meals of tuna fish and UAW Secretary-Treasurer George F. Addes is due to eat some bass he caught on a fishing trip last weekend.

Begin Week Long Strike

That was the picture in the top ranks of the UAW today, as its 800,000 members and many consumer groups began a week-long meat strike as a protest against price increases that followed removal of OPA controls.

Action Taken To Get Goods To Consumers

Want Scarce Materials To Go To Manufacturers Who Need Them

WASHINGTON, July 17. (AP)—To prevent hoarding at the factory of scarce household appliances and other goods in hopes of higher prices, the Civilian Production Administration tonight clamped stern inventory controls on manufacturers.

The anti-withholding order limits to a supply of 30 days or less the stocks of nearly a score of finished products which may be held in factories or warehouses. The rest must be moved to market.

The goods affected include furniture, refrigerators, washing machines, electric ranges, sewing machines and vacuum cleaners, cameras and photographic equipment and some building materials.

Simultaneously CPA tightened its control on the supplies of 27 materials and parts which manufacturers may keep in inventory. This is to prevent firms from buying them up and holding them as a hedge against rising raw materials prices.

Consumers To Get Goods

"What we are after is to see that scarce materials go to the manufacturer whose finished products go immediately to the consumer, rather than to those who plan to withhold manufactured products awaiting possible price increases," said CPA Administrator John D. Small in a statement.

The action is the first inventory control ever applied to finished consumer goods, except for the curbs imposed in May on men's clothing and women's hosiery. The reason was similar—to prevent manufacturers' withholding which was prevalent, a CPA spokesman said, because of expectations that price control would be killed.

Little hoarding is known to exist in the household goods industries covered today, this official said, "but we want to eliminate the possibility of it."

The order specifies that a manufacturer may not hold in inventory more than 30 days' output of his goods, or not more than a "practicable minimum working inventory," whichever is less.

"This means that if a manufacturer now has an excess inventory

Hughes Condition Is Improving

LOS ANGELES, July 17 (AP) — Howard Hughes, millionaire aircraft manufacturer and movie producer, told his doctor today: "I feel better than I have since I was injured."

Hughes suffered a crushed lung and other injuries in the crash of a speedy army photo reconnaissance plane July 7.

Dr. Verne Mason said Hughes's condition was improved over yesterday, that his pulse was down from 120 to 105. He has received three blood transfusions in the last 24 hours and another X-ray of his chest was scheduled.

Glenn Odekirk, general manager of Hughes Aircraft, Inc., conferred briefly with Hughes yesterday.

Talmadge Claims Georgia Victory While Wheeler Loses In Montana

ATLANTA, July 18 (Thursday) (AP)—Fiery Gene Talmadge of the red suspenders and the unruly locks piled up more than enough indicated unit votes today to elect him governor a fourth time.

The vote in Georgia's 159 counties, though, was far from complete and Georgia still counted ballots from yesterday's Democratic primary which were expected to reach the 700,000 mark.

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Political Reporter)

Although trailing in popular votes, suspendered Eugene Talmadge gained victory last (Wednesday) night in his bid for a fourth term as governor of Georgia in a primary election which broke all voting records for that state.

Talmadge led in 83 of Georgia's 159 counties. Under the Georgia electoral system—something like the national electoral college—that gave him an indicated 206 unit or electoral votes, enough to win if he held his margin.

James V. Carmichael, 36-year-old protege of the present governor, Ellis Arnall, had 84,741 popular votes to only 72,584 for Talmadage, but he led in only 40 counties with 122 unit votes.

The bitter Talmadge-Carmichael fight, waged in part on the "white

Dr. Pullen Outlines Eight-Point Program For Improving Education

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 17 (AP) —The 210 delegates to the annual Maryland congress of parents and teachers today heard state Superintendent of Schools Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., outline an eight-point program for improving education in the state.

Dr. Pullen spoke to an overflow crowd in an auditorium at the University of Maryland as he outlined these eight things he said he is trying to do for education in Maryland:

1. Reduce size of elementary school classes from the present average of 35 to not more than 30.
2. Start more junior colleges.
3. Increase teachers' salaries.
4. Get new buildings for the counties and Baltimore City—$120,000,000 worth.
5. Provide more opportunities for students who want to go to college.

Proposes Junior Colleges

6. Provide more dormitory space and more teachers at colleges.
7. Amend the teachers' retirement system so that service in any county counts toward a pension.
8. Extend a recently-developed examination which leads to high school-equivalent diplomas for those who pass.

In his plea for more junior colleges, Dr. Pullen pointed out that there are but two in the state, at Salisbury and in Montgomery county. Two more are to open in the

'Big Mo' Sinbads Get Sample Of Thousand and One Nights

AP Newsfeatures

ABOARD THE BATTLESHIP MISSOURI—A thousand and one nights of shipboard yarn-spinning were sparked off in the princely welcome that modern Turkey gave American Sinbads ashore in Istanbul off the "Big Mo."

Bluejackets and marines from the Missouri, the cruiser Providence and the destroyer Power are just getting started on their recounting of the heroes' welcome, the magic carpet to exotic sights of the old Near Eastern gateway on the Bosphorus and their "open sesame" to a myriad of Turkish delights.

The ancient Byzantine bazaar was virtually stripped of its old silver-cased swords and daggers, its antique copper ware, its cheap jewelry and its brocades.

Where once no infidel could tread, sailors and marines, and a few civilian correspondents, stood beneath the floating domes of Istanbul's mosques and looked toward Mecca.

If an American visitor wanted a taxi, a cop appeared out of nowhere, hailed down the first ancient cab, ordered its occupants to clear out and sent the American on his way.

In the shops of the bazaar one would be bickering and haggling suddenly to find that he was being tailed by a cop—not watching him—only seeing that the shopkeeper did not cheat too much.

There were so many welcoming parties that there was seldom time to get a full-grown meal. But the Turkish buffet seemed the original groaning board.

A special "Missouri" postage stamp was issued for use during the four-day visit of the "Mighty Mo."

There was a black market on tickets to visit the battleship. Recalling the hordes that nearly stripped her bare in New York after her return from the surrender at Tokyo, a heavy guard watched the upper decks.

But the Turks treated her as a kind of shrine—a symbol of peace. After they had milled on and off the decks there wasn't even a cigarette butt to be found.

Raid On Gambling Devices Is Made At Ocean City

OCEAN CITY, Md., July 17—(AP)—The possibility that further efforts to halt gambling in this seaside resort would be made by Worcester county authorities was seen today by State's Attorney William G. Kerbin.

"I feel that the sheriff (Edwin D. Lynch) will make every effort to clean up gambling in Ocean City," Gerbin said as plans were made for a hearing in police court tomorrow for approximately 50 persons apprehended in a raid on Rick's Raft night club.

The raid on the night club was made shortly after midnight yesterday, and six slot machines, a dice table and several cases of whiskey were taken as evidence.

Magistrate John Robbins said that he had been advised the hearing would be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Robbins said he had no idea how many persons would be brought before him and did not know what the charges would be.

Sheriff Lynch tentatively estimated the amount of money seized during the raid at between $7,000 and $8,000. Lynch, who led the raid with deputies and a detchment of state police, declined to discuss the identity of those arrested with the exception of the club owner, Charles Rickards.

"Flying Weather" Found in Cold Town

WORKING at 40 below zero engineers watched airplane engines perform while roar kept Tabernash, Colorado, awake.

AP Newsfeatures

BOULDER, Colo.—When the army air forces wanted ground tests of aviation gasoline at the temperatures airplanes encounter thousands of feet in the air officials decided on Tabernash, a town high in the Rocky mountains, as the site.

Until recently the tests were a secret except from the engineers and the 100 resident of Tabernash who spent many sleepless nights listening to the roaring airplane engines.

Previous tests had been made by flying high enough to reach the desired low temperature. "Cold rooms" were ruled out because of the vast amount of air needed to feed an engine. A tremendous refrigerating capacity would have been needed to cool the six tons of air an Allison engine requires each hous.

The most practical way was to let nature do the air conditioning. Tabernash was selected and the University of Colorado was given the job because Tabernash had seventy-three days of sub-zero weather the previous winter, and nine days when the temperature was 30 below or lower.

A test cell as built with doors at both ends that could be closed while men worked on the engines. Temperatures were so cold that oil in the engine required more than thirty minutes to heat to operating temperature if the engine were shut down more than half an hour.

As the various fuels were tested, samples of the air-gasoline mixture reaching each cylinder were taken from inside the manifold adjacent to the cylinder port. Kept below freezing because of the volatility of aviation gasoline, the samples were brought to Boulder for analysis. Other samples were sent to Wright field, Ohio, for knock-rating.

Prof. Norman A. Parker, head of the department of mechanical and aeronautical engineering, said the $100,000 project developed valuable data on the performance of a number of test fuels and on the performance of new synthetic engine lubricants and spark plugs. An accurate indicator of engine vibration also was developed.

Six engineers worked at the Tabernash station and ten chemists worked in Boulder. Temperatures ranged as low as 40 below zero while the tests were made, but the engineers complained of little discomfort except the roar of the engines while they were operating.

Car Pushes Itself

Rear-Engined Bobbie In Bantam Field

AP Newsfeatures

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—Scheduled to hit the automobile market in August is a snub-nosed, rear-engined gadget called the Bobbi car, and behind the wheel of this west coast threat to the bantam-auto industry is a 32-year-old ex-dishwasher who in three years has converted a hobby into a fortune.

Slight, dark, S. A. Williams, president of the Bobbi Motor Car Corporation, has drawn into his company several top executives of the automobile business. His executive vice president is J. S. Leifeld, a former Chrysler engineer. George Keller, former vice president of Studebaker, and Edward Thomas, ex-vice president of Reo Motors, have joined Williams as vice presidents.

Williams started making a runabout out of odd parts three years ago as a plaything for his son, Bobbie. "Neighbors were offering me as much as $2,000 to build similar cars for their children," he said. "From there the thing grew, until now we have $110,000,000 worth of orders from all over the world, backed by cash deposits."

The Bobbi car has a 92-inch wheelbase and measures forty-four inches from door to door inside. Its four-cylinder engine is placed where the luggage compartment would be and the baggage space is under the hood. Four initial models sell for between $500 and $600.

Food In Washington Cheaper Since End Of OPA, GOP Says

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — The Republican Congressional Food Study committee said today a survey shows that "the actual cost of food to Washington, D. C., consumers was less on July 15, 1946—two weeks after the end of price control—than it was on June 29, 1946—the last day of OPA."

The committee said it made the survey and added in its report:

On June 29, Washington housewives were paying a total of $6.81 for the 20 "market basket" items, of which $6.06 was the "visible" price marked on the food, while 75 cents was the "invisible" price paid in the form of federal subsidy.

In contrast the "visible" price of $6.62 charged by stores on July 15 was the total cost, since subsidies were terminated when OPA expired.

OPA Undergoing Pulmotor Tactics

Seven members of the United States Senate and seven members of the House of Representatives are applying pulmotor tactics to the Senate-passed OPA bill in conference behind closed doors. When this was written there were indications some of the wounds inflicted by the upper chamber might be healed and new life pumped into the bleeding document. It was probable that out of these efforts might come a measure that President Truman would sign.

The action in the House to send it to conference was a distinct victory for the Administration which urged it following Mr. Truman's plain-spoken indication that unless substantial changes were made he would veto it. The desire for haste obviously prompted the action of the House in view of soaring food prices. This desire was felt almost as keenly, it appears, by Republicans as by Democrats in the lower chamber, because the conference move was sponsored by a Republican — Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, a member of the Banking committee. In taking action, however, the House abdicated much of its legislative function to its conferees, with too little to say about the changes to be made, if any, they effect. Rep. Wolcott is a member of that group.

Time is of the essence if there is to be any restoration of the OPA, and because of that we wish the conferees luck in reaching a decision. We are of the opinion that OPA's prompt abolition would be preferable to a protracted debate over its reinstatement and future authority and the ruinous business uncertainty this would entail.

There are, without question, definite advantages in price control as well as definite advantages in a free economy, but during the bickering that must be expected among the conferees we have neither but are in a period of suspended economic animation. We have all the evil features of each, with none of the benefits.

OPA is designed to keep prices down. A free market is designed to provide a plentiful supply. In this period of indecision we have higher prices, but for most shoppers in the immediate area there is no longer the need to stand in line. The period of indecision permits manufacturers to manufacture, the retailer to retail at prices in most cases, to provide a profit over wholesale costs. Such a situation normally provides powerful incentive for production.

But manufacturing takes time and stocks do not move immediately. Hearing new OPA schedules may be promulgated today, tomorrow, next week, or next month, causes producers to be hesitant to proceed with production, because they may be forced to sell at a loss.

Under such indecision scarcities remain and a field day is provided those who would take advantage of the consumer and charge whatever a seller's market will bear, without fear of the law, or of competition from decent businessmen who are sincere in their efforts to head off inflation. The nation needs some rules or no rules, that would provide some semblance of stability for a time, at least. As pointed out in Mark Sullivan's column today Congress seems inclined not to crucify OPA, but to correct what it considers abuses in its administration.

Now that it has been placed in the hands of Senate-House conferees an effort will be made to rewrite it into a "workable" measure, or, in other words, something more to the liking of President Truman and OPA's Paul Porter than the one vetoed by the chief executive. Meanwhile, the period of indecision continues, and the consumer, caught between the stubborness of one, on the one hand, and the insistance of the Congress to ease controls to encourage greater production, on the other, get the short end of it.

It is recalled when the United States Supreme Court's ruling brought a sudden ending to NRA in 1935 the same dire predictions of disaster, as are heard today should OPA be permitted to die, are heard. Mr. Chester Bowles and Mr. Paul Porter were anticipated by a decade by General Hugh B. Johnson with his exaggeration of the function of his huge agency and with his forebodings of chaos should it be crippled or discontinued. But what happened was not chaos but a steady rise of wage rates and payrolls and a doubling of production in little more than a year.

The great pent-up purchasing power that exists today prevents us from contending a like result should OPA roll over and breathe its last. A more gradual and intelligently administered liquidation of the price control machinery is desired. But if that is impossible it would be better their removal be abrupt rather than have the present period of suspended animation.

A New York professor says the brain has attained only a quarter of its possible growth. Or, in a reckless driver, one-tenth.

Freedom of Press World Over Needed

One can whole-heartedly agree with Frank E. Gannett that "The United Nations has no more important task than to provide international freedom of the press for the whole world." Only in this manner will it be possible to eliminate the atmosphere of suspicion and mistrust which breeds wars.

The success of any effort to provide uninterrupted peace and security depends on leveling the barriers of fear and misunderstanding which separate Russia and the Western Powers, and it is difficult to see how this can be achieved as long as the Soviet Union continues a policy of rigid suppression of the news.

The difficulties which lie in the way of persuading Russia to reverse this policy are as great, or greater, than those in any other field. Russia's rulers have no intention of allowing a free expression of views. Their power rests on enforcing a rigid uniformity of opinion. They are afraid of what might happen if they permitted free speech in the Soviet Union, not to speak of free interchange of news with other nations.

Under these circumstances and so long as the Russian government is totalitarian in form it is probably futile to hope for a radical change in its policy of repression of the news. America can only continue to work for a greater degree of freedom. The prospects of eventual success will be improved by progress made—if any—in winning Russian cooperation on other points not so closely affecting the internal security of the present regime.

Situation in 1920 And That of Today

Several days ago the public was informed that wholesale meat prices had reached an all-time high, with prime beef on the hoof bringing $35 a hundredweight, the highest figure on record in the eighty-one years since the Chicago Union Stockyards came into existence. In the wake of that announcement came the news indicating that food prices in public eating places would be boosted, and since then higher prices have been invoked in a number of Cumberland restaurants, to keep pace with wholesale costs. Almost simultaneously it was learned that buyers' strikes were underway or being organized.

But the situation does not yet seem as desperate as it was in 1920, though, according to the Dun & Bradstreet index of thirty-one foodstuffs, their wholesale prices have now reached within one cent of what they were on June 10 of that fateful year. Then, however, retail prices in general—up today about 35 per cent since the outbreak of World War II—were about 115 per cent higher than at the outbreak of World War I, and wage scales were only about one-half of their present average. And it must be overlooked that except in the matter of food, whose producers' subsidies have been cut off with the suspension or demise of the OPA, our merchants appear still determined to hold the line.

Scheduled buyers' boycott demonstrations and the crusade in some cities to enlist striking consumers, together with news that stores, mostly food markets, have been picketed, a reminder of what happened twenty-six years ago is forced upon us. Then parades were held. "Old Clothes Clubs" were formed, and women's organizations urged their members to buy nothing but absolute necessities. So the resemblances of activities today with then is not altogether startling.

It is doubtful that the buyers' strikes then precipitated the depression that ran for a period from 1920 to 1922. Economists, at least some, have attributed it more to over-production, something of which there is no immediate danger, but which would seem to be the remedy for the price problem of 1946. In face of past and present situations the business community, and labor, too, should be careful of dismissing the lesson of 1920.

If you're one of the movie fans who wants lots of action just take a seat next to the aisle.

Close the Door Is Good Advice

IN THIS DAY AND AGE, even with all the safety devices for fire prevention, there remains the necessity for quick thinking and acting by individuals when fire strikes.

Many articles have been written on the importance of knowing when not to open a door when fire threatens a building. A little advance thought or training on this subject can save an individual's life. If you awaken from a sleep and smell smoke, your first move should not be to jerk open the bedroom door, instead put yur hand on the door panel. If the wood is hot it means that the hall beyond is charged with lethal heat and gas that can kill almost instantly, and that the stairway is probably cut off from use. Escape should be made by a window is possible, or at least call for help from a window. With a closed door between you and the fire you have every chance of surviving until rescue comes.

Next to the importance of not opening a door is the importance of closing doors during a fire. When a person is escaping from a room where a fire is raging, if he doesn't shut the door the fire is liable to overtake him before he can make an effective retreat — this is true particularly when time is needed to rescue another party.

Lethal gas ranging from 800 to 1,000 degrees in temperature can quickly flood a building. The two recent hotel fires graphically illustrated the truth of these words.

Firemen agree that thousands of persons would still be alive if they had known and practiced the simple technique involved in opening or closing doors during a fire.

Some English locomotives are named after birds. Imagine trying to convince a careless driver he ran into a sparrow.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Other E-Awards Should Be Probed; Senators Pull Wires to Stop Investigation of Nazi Activities in USA; Goering Sucked Several Into Trap.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 17 — It might be a healthy thing if the Mead Committee investigated more of the E-awards handed down to manufacturing firms by the Army and Navy. Senator Mead's Committee already has shown how wires were pulled by top officials to get an E for the Erie Basin war profiteer at the same time lesser Army officials, who knew conditions first hand, were recommending against it.

Another fishy case occurred when the Navy gave an E to National Industries when it and its affiliate, Durham Manufacturing Corporation, were under indictment for war frauds. The company was actually being prosecuted by U. S. District Attorney Alex Campbell at Fort Wayne, Ind., when, right in the middle of the trial, the Navy came across with its E.

The trial had started in November, so the Navy knew all about the alleged war fraud when it gave the award on Dec. 17, 1945. Furthermore, the war was then over, and there was no need to give the company an incentive for further production.

However, someone in the Navy apparently pulled the wires, and the E award, coming at just the psychological moment, had a powerful effect on the jury.

—o—

For some weeks, certain Senators have been skilfully pulling backstage wires to kill the Kilgore Committee which has been probing Nazi activities and their link with Americans. A brief and confidential peek at what's in the Nazi files now makes it quite clear why Senators are secretly battling so hard to squelch Senator Kilgore's investigation.

U. S. Army and Justice Department officials have been extremely busy interviewing German officials, from Hermann Goering down, and the results are amazing. They show various high-up American leaders and businessmen to be either woefully naive or else deliberately playing into the hands of a dictatorship which had already started to conquer Europe and which was certain to be at war with us.

For instance, in Foreign Minister Ribbentrop's captured files was found this revealing memo regarding America Firster Charles Lindbergh: "It is better not to mention Lindbergh's name anymore. He's more useful to us if we keep his name out of the press—as he has asked us to."

Nazi officials have been quite frank in telling about their operations with Americans. Actually, a statement attributed to Goering, published two weeks ago, that he was ready to spend $5,000,000 to defeat Roosevelt in 1940 was an understatement. What Goering really said, according to U. S. officials who interviewed him, was that he would gladly have spent $150,000,000 to defeat Roosevelt if he could have been shown any good way to do it.

Another German, Dr. Heribert Von Strempel of the German Embassy in Washington, when asked what the Nazis had done in the way of propaganda, responded: "The biggest thing was when Goering's agent came to me with that plan to defeat Roosevelt."

This was the plan involving the late W. R. Davis, an independent oil operator, who had known Goering for some years, sold oil to the German Navy, and who told the Germans he had four Americans he could use to defeat Roosevelt in 1940.

The only name on this list which Goering could remember was that of John L. Lewis. However, other German officials who had been in on the talks supplied the additional names—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Jim Farley, and Herbert Hoover.

Obviously, none of the above had any German connections or probably any idea they were to be the tools of a potential enemy. However, some of them were careless, to say the least, in the way they played into German hands.

—o—

Senator Wheeler, for instance, held various secret conferences to defend George Sylvester Viereck when on trial for sedition, despite the fact that Viereck obviously was guilty. Wheeler also made a speech defending the late Senator Lundeen, after Lundeen was exposed for delivering speeches written for him by a German agent.

The ease with which intelligent Americans fell into the Nazi trap is, of course, something they want hushed up now. But the day may come when the same sort of danger faces the nation, and when the public should have an example before it of what goes on behind the scenes. That is why Senator Kilgore of West Virginia is pressing for his investigation.

That is also why those great friends of the Chicago Tribune — which also fell into the Nazi trap—isolationist Republican Senators Curley Brooks of Illinois and Wherry of Nebraska, are trying to kill the Kilgore Committee. Even Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, a Democrat, apparently thinks twice about the Tribune and doesn't want to vote the committee any real cash.

Finally, GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, whose state is anything but isolationist, for some strange reason is trying to strangle the Kilgore investigation. Maybe it's because Bridges is a buddy of Senator Wheeler's.

While John L. Lewis does not pose as an international expert, it wouldn't have required a mental giant to know that oil man Davis was playing awfully close to the Nazis.

Davis was shadowed by the State Department and by British Secret Service in Bermuda and Portugal on his way to Berlin in 1939. And when he arrived back in Washington after his talks with Goering, FBI men covered his apartment at the Mayflower Hotel. Davis told all this to John L. Lewis at the time, whereupon Lewis picked up the phone, called Assistant Secretary of State Berle, and complained at the way Davis was being shadowed.

Later, Lewis called at Berle's home and discussed the whole matter with him. Despite this, Lewis stepped squarely into the Davis-Goering trap to use him to defeat Roosevelt in the 1940 election and allowed Davis to pay for his famous $50,000 radio hook-up in which Lewis urged labor to desert FDR.

The chief security officer at the Oak Ridge A-bomb project has given the lie to Ernie "anti-democracy" Adamson of the un-American Wood-Rankin Committee. The security officer has informed Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee that he made NO hysterical statements charging the Oak Ridge scientists with being subversive. The Oak Ridge security chief also expressed the belief that Adamson had made up his charges out of whole cloth . . . Louis G. Dreyfus, Jr., now American Minister to Iceland, will be the next American Minister to Sweden . . . Stanley Hornbeck, a leading proponent of Jap appeasement before Pearl Harbor, will resign soon as American Ambassador to the Netherlands.

IT'S BEEN A ROUGH TRIP

Americans Show Signs Of No Longer Being Baffled By Soviet Attitude

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 17. — One thing stands out in all the comments made by Secretary of State Byrnes and Senator Vandenberg with respect to relations with Russia, and that is a tendency to speak frankly, bluntly and even harshly of the Soviets' behavior in international affairs.

The Moscow spokesmen, on their part, do not mince words either. The debate is unprecedented for its studied effort at restraint coupled with outspoken characterization.

When Secretary Byrnes, for instance, says quite casually that it is most difficult to get any agreements except after long-drawn-out debates and wrangling conferences, it is evident that he is expressing, in terms not customary in diplomacy, an obstacle which now has become quite aggravating. The words used could not have been accidentally chosen but rather appear to be deliberate. He says:

"Perhaps the time taken in discussion was not wholly lost, because our experience suggests that understandings, particularly with our Soviet friends, cannot be reached until we have gone through rounds of verbal combat, in which old complaints are repeated, past positions reaffirmed, differences accentuated and crises provoked.

"I am ready to believe it is difficult for them (the Russians) to understand us, just as it is difficult for us to understand them. But I sometimes think our Soviet friends fear we would think them weak and soft if they agreed without a struggle on anything we wanted, even though they wanted it, too. Constant struggle, however, is not always helpful in a world longing for peace."

Those two paragraphs are more meaningful than the narrative of what happened at the Paris conference or the discussion of the broad diplomatic questions with which the conference dealt. For, obviously, the United States gets along with and understands the comments and speeches of all the statesmen of the other nations of the world. They, on their part, understand our language, but the Soviets have an approach all their own which—to use a word employed once by a high British official in private conversation—is "baffling."

But it begins to look as if the other principals at Paris and particularly the members of the American delegation refuse to be baffled any longer and are prepared to let the world be the judge of the reasons for the eccentricity and bizarre tactics of the Russians.

One explanation advanced recently is that Soviet policy is not made by Mr. Molotov at Paris but by a group of men in Moscow—the military leaders. What the world is witnessing is the formation of a victorious nation's policies by a group of military men who are as much an influence in world affairs today as, if not more so than, the German general staff ever was in the past.

There appears no other plausible analysis of why the Russian spokesmen make vehement declarations one day and reverse themselves the next or why they take positions opposite to Great Britain and the United States no matter what these happen to be. Thus Mr. Molotov on frequent occasions has accused the democracies of trying to perpetuate Germany's war potential. Now he argues that Russia alone is anxious to keep Germany from dismemberment.

The truth of the matter is that the Allies have been applying a "squeeze play," and Russia doesn't like it. Failing to persuade Molotov to agree to consider Germany as a single economic unit so that Britain and America would no longer be compelled to subsidize the separate German economic zones with taxpayers' money, the United States and Britain began to plan an economic consolidation of two or possibly three of the zones. This is a language Russia understood, and it promptly caused a turnabout in her obstructionist tactics. Now Russia, through Molotov, says she is all for a central economic control and is the friend of Germany.

Such contradictions may truly have been intended to be baffling but the statesmen of Britain and America intend to expose all these peculiar maneuvers to the whole world. Likewise, nobody takes seriously any more the tirades against Allied statesmen generated through a controlled press in Moscow. Russia's military oligarchy apparently influences to a large extent what Stalin and Molotov say;

Hence, compromises in Paris reflect compromises inside Moscow.

Good Will

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

There is an intangible element in every business, and indeed in every individual, that is represented by Good Will. And perhaps this is the best gauge by which either may be appraised.

Good Will represents character. Millions of dollars, for example, could not buy the trade-name of Kodak, not merely because the name stands for the product of a great firm, but because the name stands for top excellence in everything produced by that firm. A firm, that has for years turned out honest creations, "sterling" in quality, can hardly fail—even though its visible assets might suddenly, for some reason or other, be entirely wiped out. Its Good Will would still stand firm, an undying asset.

It was the Good Will of a man whom the elder J. P. Morgan, the great New York banker, had in mind, when he stated, before a committee in Washington, that he often loaned a million dollars to a man with no higher security than his character.

To take two other business illustrations, consider the names of John Wanamaker and Marshall Field, two great names in department store successes. Can anyone estimate the Good Will of such firms, even long after their creators have ceased to function? Good Will lives on! That is why its standard should never be lowered.

To own the Good Will of a person is to own his friendship, for it is represented by every element that enters into the construction of a strong character. It embodies all that a man, or a woman, has been able to add to his or her sum total of human worth.

You often hear the expression that one spent his whole life in building Good Will. And the very thought, regarding that one, inspires one to follow in his train. Those Wise Men, and shepherds, who came to the manger, at the birth of Christ, brought presents, but the greatest of these was the Good Will that they brought — an inheritance of us all, to this day! You recall the Bible expression—"Peace and Good Will to all men."

Embellish your life work with Good Will and you will not have been born in vain!

(Protected, 1946, By The George Matthew Adams Service)

Getting even is a waste of energy that should be put to better use, to say nothing of its foolish side. Because the other fellow has been petty and childish, perhaps vindictive, that is no reason why you should emulate his unworthy example.

Peace of mind largely depends upon your willingness to forget the disagreeable incidents and remember only the pleasant experiences.

Truman, As Much As Anyone, Aided OPA Toward Crisis

By MARK SULLIVAN

Throughout the fight over extending the Office of Price Administration, an immense majority in Congress felt that OPA should be continued in some form. About the form, those had a wide variety of ideas, ranging from OPA intact as it had been, to an OPA reduced to not much more than regulating rents. Yet many who wanted OPA limited were willing to make, and did make, concessions toward strengthening it, in the interest of retaining some kind of OPA. This point of view, and the number who held it, is suggested by a vote in the House taken during the furore immediately following President Truman's veto of the OPA extension which Congress had passed. By more than 4 to 1—in exact figures 283 to 61—the House voted for a three-week's stop-gap extension of OPA as it had been, in order to permit opportunity for writing a permanent measure that would be satisfactory to the President.

In the writing of this new measure in the Senate, there was real effort toward accommodation to the President's views, to the end that some kind of OPA should be preserved. There had been the spirit in the writing of the earlier measure which the President vetoed. Many members who objected strongly to certain features of OPA as it had been, and to some features of the administration of it, sacrificed their viewpoints. This attitude of many in Congress continues to the present moment, in spite of what they regard as evidence that the President did not share the spirit of accommodation.

Strain Has Double Cause

The strain between Congress and the Administration has a double cause. Congress overwhelmingly wanted modifications of OPA, but the President vetoed it. Congress overwhelmingly wanted labor legislation, but the President vetoed that too. Between the two, legislation about OPA and about labor, there is a relation, and recognition of it brought discouragement to many in Congress who earnestly wished continuation of some form of OPA.

The purpose of OPA was, and if it continues is, to restrain price increases. A specific cause of many price increases has been wage raises. Congress saw the Administration over a period of months, follow a policy of encouraging wage raises, in some cases directly bring about wage raises. And Congress then saw OPA decree price increases to pay the cost of the wage raises. In an example that came before the eyes of Congress during the very days when OPA was being debated, the Administration granted a wage increase to coal miners, and OPA decreed an increase of 40½ cents per ton in the price of soft coal, 91 cents in hard coal. Along with all that, Congress saw prolonged strikes preventing the full production of goods, which would have been a better preventive of high prices than OPA could possibly be, and which was the one most promising cure for all our economic troubles.

The labor legislation which Congress passed, and the President vetoed, would not have prevented demands for wage raises and strikes to get them. But it had one feature which would have assured some stability of labor relations, and by that assured fuller production of goods. This was the provision in the Case bill which would have made contracts between labor unions and employers enforceable during the time of the contract, usually a year.

Labor Relations Unchanged

For the future, whether OPA is continued or ended or modified, labor relations remain as they were. Excepting one measure dealing with one industry, radio, and in effect with one labor leader, Mr. Petrillo of the Musicians' Union, and another measure, the Hobbs bill dealing with one practice of labor unions —excepting those two extremely limited measures, all the proposals for labor legislation and all the uproar about them, has come to nothing. What Mr. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers did, they are free to do again. What the leaders of railroad brotherhoods did, they are free to do again. What the leaders of the Automobile Workers' Union did, they can do again. The frustration of labor legislation, mainly by the President, is a greater threat to restraint of prices than could possibly be offset by any continuation of a strong OPA, which the President insists upon.

The comprehensive labor measure, the Case bill, was vetoed by the President. The emergency legislation which he himself proposed at the time of the railroad strike, has come to nothing, and the President shows no such concern about it as about continuation of OPA. Even his proposal for a Congressinal committee to study labor relations remains not adopted and likewise is without pressure from him in its behalf.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 17. (OP)—Despite the vigorous campaign in the northern press against him, Senator Bilbo—"The Man" is coming back to Washington and the politically wise do not place much faith in reports that a move will be made to unseat him.

Senator Johnson, (D) of Colorado, chairman of the privileges and elections committee, has already announced that his committee will take no immediate action on charges that Bilbo, by raising the "race hatred" issue, violated the law. Johnson notes that neither the candidates who lost to Bilbo nor the Mississippi electorate have filed a complaint.

A Washington newspaper has started a campaign to have Bilbo replaced as chairman of the District of Columbia committee of the Senate, a post generally designated as that of "Mayor" of voteless Washington. But observers don't think this will happen—unless by some political upheaval, the Republicans should capture the Senate this fall.

Incidentally, some realistic southern politicians believe that the campaign of certain columnists to oust Bilbo by the ballot did much to elect him. It is known that one candidate personally appealed to thees writers to "lay off" Bilbo. He argued that their attacks only fueled Bilbo's campaign fire in a state where outside interference is resented.

Capitol Hill observers see little chance of adjourning for the summer—and the coming campaigns—until long after the proposed adjournment date of July 15. Breaking a long-time precedent, the delay will come in the House instead of the Senate.

The Senate is usually the chamber which finds it most difficult to tie up the loose ends and to stop talking. Now the House, already long delayed in action on the British loan, still has several other important bits of legislation to deal with.

Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley had been hopeful of adjournment by July 20. He plans to keep the Senate in session with a series of three-day recesses until the House concludes. House leaders, though, are now talking in terms of an August adjournment. More pessimistic members speak of September and Chairman Sabath of the House rules committee dejectedly guesses on October.

Action on legislation for the control of atomic energy within the United States probably will be delayed for a series of atomic tomorrows.

Political observers see little or no chance that the House will take up the bill reported this week by its military affairs committee.

They point out that, even if the House acts, a conference fight looms in the Senate; a fight which may even spend itself in a legislative dead end street with the adjournment of the 79th Congress late in July.

The Senate some time ago passed the McMahon bill, providing for outright civilian control of atomic energy. Then the House military affairs committee came along and shaved and sheared the measure to bits.

The House amended the bill so that the president is required to appoint at least one military official to the atomic energy commission. It made it possible for the chief executive to appoint two such commission members.

Then it rode roughshod over the Senate by empowering the Army and Navy to manufacture atomic weapons at the direction of the president.

Authoritative congressional sources are certain that the Senate will not take the House bill. And the House is virtually certain not to take the Senate bill.

"IT SAYS HERE" By Bob Hope

The most popular sporting event in Hollywood these days is midget auto racing . . . that's Hollywood traffic with the pedestrians in the bleachers. All the stars are great racing enthusiasts and Spike Jones owns a midget racer, himself, so if his music sounds a little noisy lately . . . it's just Spike warming up his motor.

I attended a race at Gilmore Stadium recently and it certainly was a colorful spectacle . . . Madman Muntz ran ahead of the cars, sprinkling ten-dollar bills on the track.

It was really exciting to watch those midgets roar around the banked turns. I must've been sitting a little too close, though. When the lead car came around that turn, he never made the fifth lap . . . he ended up in mine.

No kidding, those racers are really small. One driver had his feet stuck right through the floorboards but that didn't stop him. . . . He was wearing roller skates when the winner hit the homestretch and ran into motor trouble, you should've heard the crowd roar with excitement . . . as he picked up his car and ran the rest of the way.

OPA Undergoing Pulmotor Tactics

Seven members of the United States Senate and seven members of the House of Representatives are applying pulmotor tactics to the Senate-passed OPA bill in conference behind closed doors. When this was written there were indications some of the wounds inflicted by the upper chamber might be healed and new life pumped into the bleeding document. It was probable that out of these efforts might come a measure that President Truman would sign.

The action in the House to send it to conference was a distinct victory for the Administration which urged it following Mr. Truman's plain-spoken indication that unless substantial changes were made he would veto it. The desire for haste obviously prompted the action of the House in view of soaring food prices. This desire was felt almost as keenly, it appears, by Republicans as by Democrats in the lower chamber, because the conference move was sponsored by a Republican — Rep. Jesse P. Wolcott, of Michigan, a member of the Banking committee. In taking action, however, the House abdicated much of its legislative function to its conferees, with too little to say about the changes to be made, if any, they effect. Rep. Wolcott is a member of that group.

Time is of the essence if there is to be any restoration of the OPA, and because of that we wish the conferees luck in reaching a decision. We are of the opinion that OPA's prompt abolition would be preferable to a protracted debate over its reinstatement and future authority and the ruinous business uncertainty this would entail.

There are, without question, definite advantages in price control as well as definite advantages in a free economy, but during the bickering that must be expected among the conferees we have neither but are in a period of suspended economic animation. We have all the evil features of each, with none of the benefits.

OPA is designed to keep prices down. A free market is designed to provide a plentiful supply. In this period of indecision we have higher prices, but for most shoppers in the immediate area there is no longer the need to stand in line. The period of indecision permits manufacturers to manufacture, the retailer to retail at prices in most cases, to provide a profit over wholesale costs. Such a situation normally provides powerful incentive for production.

But manufacturing takes time and stocks do not move immediately. Fearing new OPA schedules may be promulgated today, tomorrow, next week, or next month, causes producers to be hesitant to proceed with production, because they may be forced to sell at a loss.

Under such indecision scarcities remain and a field day is provided those who would take advantage of the consumer and charge whatever a seller's market will bear, without fear of the law, or of competition from decent businessmen who are sincere in their efforts to head off inflation. The nation needs some rules or no rules, that would provide some semblance of stability for a time, at least. As pointed out in Mark Sullivan's column today Congress seems incitned not to crucify OPA, but to correct what it considers abuses in its administration.

Now that it has been placed in the hands of Senate-House conferees an effort will be made to rewrite it into a "workable" measure, or, in other words, something more to the liking of President Truman and OPA's Paul Porter than the one vetoed by the chief executive. Meanwhile, the period of indecision continues, and the consumer, caught between the stubborness of one, on the one hand, and the insistance of the Congress to ease controls to encourage greater production, on the other, get the short end of it.

It is recalled when the United States Supreme Court's ruling brought a sudden ending to NRA in 1935 the same dire predictions of disaster, as are heard today should OPA be permitted to die, are heard. Mr. Chester Bowles and Mr. Paul Porter were anticipated by a decade by General Hugh B. Johnson with his exaggeration of the function of his huge agency and with his forebodings of chaos should it be crippled or discontinued. But what happened was not chaos but a steady rise of wage rates and payrolls and a doubling of production in little more than a year.

The great pent-up purchasing power that exists today prevents us from contending a like result should OPA roll over and breathe its last. A more gradual and intelligently administered liquidation of the price control machinery is desired. But if that is impossible it would be better their removal be abrupt rather than have the present period of suspended animation.

A New York professor says the brain has attained only a quarter of its possible growth. Or, in a reckless driver, one-tenth.

Freedom of Press World Over Needed

One can whole-heartedly agree with Frank E. Gannett that "The United Nations has no more important task than to provide international freedom of the press for the whole world." Only in this manner will it be possible to eliminate the atmosphere of suspicion and mistrust which breeds wars.

The success of any effort to provide uninterrupted peace and security depends on leveling the barriers of fear and misunderstanding which separate Russia and the Western Powers, and it is difficult to see how this can be achieved as long as the Soviet Union continues a policy of rigid suppression of the news.

The difficulties which lie in the way of persuading Russia to reverse this policy are as great, or greater, than those in any other field. Russia's rulers have no intention of allowing a free expression of views. Their power rests on enforcing a rigid uniformity of opinion. They are afraid of what might happen if they permitted free speech in the Soviet Union, not to speak of free interchange of news with other nations.

Under these circumstances and so long as the Russian government is totalitarian in form it is probably futile to hope for a radical change in its policy of repression of the news. America can only continue to work for a greater degree of freedom. The prospects of eventual success will be improved by progress made—if any—in winning Russian cooperation on other points not so closely affecting the internal security of the present regime.

Situation in 1920 And That of Today

Several days ago the public was informed that wholesale meat prices had reached an all-time high, with prime beef on the hoof bringing $25 a hundredweight, the highest figure on record in the eighty-one years since the Chicago Union Stockyards came into existence. In the wake of that announcement came the news indicating that food prices in public eating places would be boosted, and since then higher prices have been invoked in a number of Cumberland restaurants, to keep pace with wholesale costs. Almost simultaneously it was learned that buyers' strikes were underway or being organized.

But the situation does not yet seem as desperate as it was in 1920, though, according to the Dun & Bradstreet index of thirty-one foodstuffs, their wholesale prices have now reached within one cent of what they were on June 10 of that fateful year. Then, however, retail prices in general—up today about 35 per cent since the outbreak of World War II—were about 115 per cent higher than at the outbreak of World War I, and wage scales were only about one-half of their present average. And it must be overlooked that except in the matter of food, whose producers' subsidies have been cut off with the suspension or demise of the OPA, our merchants appear still determined to hold the line.

Scheduled buyers' boycott demonstrations and the crusade in some cities to enlist striking consumers, together with news that stores, mostly food markets, have been picketed, a reminder of what happened twenty-six years ago is forced upon us. Then parades were held, "Old Clothes Clubs" were formed, and women's organizations urged their members to buy nothing but absolute necessities. So the resemblances of activities today with then is not altogether startling.

It is doubtful that the buyers' strikes then precipitated the depression that ran for a period from 1920 to 1922. Economists, at least some, have attributed it more to over-production, something of which there is no immediate danger, but which would seem to be the remedy for the price problem of 1946. In face of past and present situations the business community, and labor, too, should be careful of dismissing the lesson of 1920.

If you're one of the movie fans who wants lots of action just take a seat next to the aisle.

Close the Door Is Good Advice

IN THIS DAY AND AGE, even with all the safety devices for fire prevention, there remains the necessity for quick thinking and acting by individuals when fire strikes.

Many articles have been written on the importance of knowing when not to open a door when fire threatens a building. A little advance thought or training on this subject can save an individual's life. If you awaken from a sleep and smell smoke, your first move should not be to jerk open the bedroom door, instead put yur hand on the door panel. If the wood is hot it means that the hall beyond is charged with lethal heat and gas that can kill almost instantly, and that the stairway is probably cut off from use. Escape should be made by a window is possible, or at least call for help from a window. With a closed door between you and the fire you have every chance of surviving until rescue comes.

Next to the importance of not opening a door is the importance of closing doors during a fire. When a person is escaping from a room where a fire is raging, if he doesn't shut the door the fire is liable to overtake him before he can make an effective retreat — this is true particularly when time is needed to rescue another party.

Lethal gas ranging from 800 to 1,000 degrees in temperature can quickly flood a building. The two recent hotel fires graphically illustrated the truth of these words.

Firemen agree that thousands of persons would still be alive if they had known and practiced the simple technique involved in opening or closing doors during a fire.

Some English locomotives are named after birds. Imagine trying to convince a careless driver he ran into a sparrow.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Other E-Awards Should Be Probed; Senators Pull Wires to Stop Investigation of Nazi Activities in USA; Goering Sucked Several Into Trap.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, July 17 — It might be a healthy thing if the Mead Committee investigated more of the E-awards handed down to manufacturing firms by the Army and Navy. Senator Mead's Committee already has shown how wires were pulled by top officials to get an E for the Erie Basin war profiteers at the same time lesser Army officials, who knew conditions first hand, were recommending against it.

Another fishy case occurred when the Navy gave an E to National Industries when it and its affiliate, Durham Manufacturing Corporation, were under indictment for war frauds. The company was actually being prosecuted by U. S. District Attorney Alex Campbell at Fort Wayne, Ind., when, right in the middle of the trial, the Navy came across with its E.

The trial had started in November, so the Navy knew all about the alleged war fraud when it gave the award on Dec. 17, 1945. Furthermore, the war was then over, and there was no need to give the company an incentive for further production.

However, someone in the Navy apparently pulled the wires, and the E award, coming at just the psychological moment, had a powerful effect on the jury.

—o—

For some weeks, certain Senators have been skilfully pulling backstage wires to kill the Kilgore Committee which has been probing Nazi activities and their link with Americans. A brief and confidential peek at what's in the Nazi files now makes it quite clear why Senators are secretly battling so hard to squelch Senator Kilgore's investigation.

U. S. Army and Justice Department officials have been extremely busy interviewing German officials, from Hermann Goering down, and the results are amazing. They show various high-up American leaders and businessmen to be either woefully naive or else deliberately playing into the hands of a dictatorship which had already started to conquer Europe and which was certain to be at war with us.

For instance, in Foreign Minister Ribbentrop's captured files was found this revealing memo regarding America First Charles Lindbergh: "It is better not to mention Lindbergh's name anymore. He's more useful to us if we keep his name out of the press—as he has asked us to."

Nazi officials have been quite frank in telling about their operations with Americans. Actually, a statement attributed to Goering, published two weeks ago, that he was ready to spend $5,000,000 to defeat Roosevelt in 1940 was an understatement. What Goering really said, according to U. S. officials who interviewed him, was that he would gladly have spent $150,000,000 to defeat Roosevelt if he could have been shown any good way to do it.

Another German, Dr. Heribert Von Strempel of the German Embassy in Washington, when asked what the Nazis had done in the way of propaganda, responded: "The biggest thing was when Goering's agent came to me with that plan to defeat Roosevelt."

This was the plan involving the late W. R. Davis, an independent oil operator, who had known Goering for some years, sold oil to the German Navy, and who told the Germans he had four Americans he could use to defeat Roosevelt in 1940.

The only name on this list which Goering could remember was that of John L. Lewis. However, other German officials who had been in on the talks supplied the additional names—Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Jim Farley, and Herbert Hoover.

Obviously, none of the above had any German connections or probably any idea they were to be the tools of a potential enemy. However, some of them were careless, to say the least, in the way they played into German hands.

—o—

Senator Wheeler, for instance, held various secret conferences to defend George Sylvester Viereck when on trial for sedition, despite the fact that Viereck obviously was guilty. Wheeler also made a speech defending the late Senator Lundeen, after Lundeen was exposed for delivering speeches written for him by a German agent.

The ease with which intelligent Americans fell into the Nazi trap is, of course, something they want hushed up now. But the day may come when the same sort of danger faces the nation, and when the public should have an example before it of what goes on behind the scenes. That is why Senator Kilgore of West Virginia is pressing for his investigation.

That is also why those great friends of the Chicago Tribune — which also fell into the Nazi trap—isolationist Republican Senators Curley Brooks of Illinois and Wherry of Nebraska, are trying to kill the Kilgore Committee. Even Senator Scott Lucas of Illinois, a Democrat, apparently thinks twice about the Tribune and doesn't want to vote the committee any real cash.

Finally, GOP Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, whose state is anything but isolationist, for some strange reason is trying to strangle the Kilgore investigation. Maybe it's because Bridges is a buddy of Senator Wheeler's.

While John L. Lewis does not pose as an international expert, it wouldn't have required a mental giant to know that oil man Davis was playing awfully close to the Nazis.

Davis was shadowed by the State Department and by British Secret Service in Bermuda and Portugal on his way to Berlin in 1939. And when he arrived back in Washington after his talks with Goering, FBI men covered his apartment at the Mayflower Hotel. Davis told all this to John L. Lewis at the time, whereupon Lewis picked up the phone, called Assistant Secretary of State Berle, and complained at the way Davis was being shadowed.

Later, Lewis called at Berle's home and discussed the whole matter with him. Despite this, Lewis stepped squarely into the Davis-Goering trap to use him to defeat Roosevelt in the 1940 election and allowed Davis to pay for his famous $50,000 radio hook-up in which Lewis urged labor to desert FDR.

The chief security officer at the Oak Ridge A-bomb project has given the lie to Ernie "anti-democracy" Adamson of the un-American Wood-Rankin Committee. The security officer has informed Chairman Sabath of the House Rules Committee that he made NO hysterical statements charging the Oak Ridge scientists with being subversive. The Oak Ridge security chief also expressed the belief that Adamson had made up his charges out of whole cloth . . . Louis G. Dreyfus, Jr., now American Minister to Iceland, will be the next American Minister to Sweden . . . Stanley Hornbeck, a leading proponent of Jap appeasement before Pearl Harbor, will resign soon as American Ambassador to the Netherlands.

IT'S BEEN A ROUGH TRIP

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, July 17. — One thing stands out in all the comments made by Secretary of State Byrnes and Senator Vandenberg with respect to relations with Russia, and that is a tendency to speak frankly, bluntly and even harshly of the Soviets' behavior in international affairs.

The Moscow spokesmen, on their part, do not mince words either. The debate is unprecedented for its studied effort at restraint coupled with outspoken characterization.

When Secretary Byrnes, for instance, says quite casually that it is most difficult to get any agreements except after long-drawn-out debates and wrangling conferences, it is evident that he is expressing, in terms not customary in diplomacy, an obstacle which now has become quite aggravating. The words used could not have been accidentally chosen but rather appear to be deliberate. He says:

"Perhaps the time taken in discussion was not wholly lost, because our experience suggests that understandings, particularly with our Soviet friends, cannot be reached until we have gone through rounds of verbal combat, in which old complaints are repeated, past positions reaffirmed, differences accentuated and crises provoked.

"I am ready to believe it is difficult for them (the Russians) to understand us, just as it is difficult for us to understand them. But I sometimes think our Soviet friends fear we would think them weak and soft if they agreed without a struggle on anything we wanted, even though they wanted it, too. Constant struggle, however, is not always helpful in a world longing for peace."

Those two paragraphs are more meaningful than the narrative of what happened at the Paris conference or the discussion of the broad diplomatic questions with which the conference dealt. For, obviously, the United States gets along with and understands the comments and speeches of all the statesmen of the other nations of the world. They, on their part, understand our language, but the Soviets have an approach all their own which—to use a word employed once by a high British official in private conversation—is "baffling."

But it begins to look as if the other principals at Paris and particularly the members of the American delegation refuse to be baffled any longer and are prepared to let the world be the judge of the reasons for the eccentricity and bizarre tactics of the Russians.

One explanation advanced recently is that Soviet policy is not made by Mr. Molotov at Paris but by a group of men in Moscow—the military leaders. What the world is witnessing is the formation of a victorious nation's policies by a group of military men who are as much an influence in world affairs today as, if not more so than, the German general staff ever was in the past.

There appears no other plausible analysis of why the Russian spokesmen make vehement declarations one day and reverse themselves the next or why they take positions opposite to Great Britain and the United States no matter what these happen to be. Thus Mr. Molotov on frequent occasions has accused the democracies of trying to perpetuate Germany's war potential. Now he argues that Russia alone is anxious to keep Germany from dismemberment.

The truth of the matter is that the Allies have been applying a "squeeze play," and Russia doesn't like it. Failing to persuade Molotov to agree to consider Germany as a single economic unit so that Britain and America would no longer be compelled to subsidize the separate German economic zones with taxpayers' money, the United States and Britain began to plan an economic consolidation of two or possibly three of the zones. This is a language Russia understood, and it promptly caused a turnabout in her obstructionist tactics. Now Russia, through Molotov, says she is all for a central economic control and is the friend of Germany.

Such contradictions may truly have been intended to be baffling but the statesmen of Britain and America intend to expose all these peculiar maneuvers to the whole world. Likewise, nobody takes seriously any more the tirades against Allied statesmen generated through a controlled press in Moscow. Russia's military oligarchy apparently influences to a large extent what Stalin and Molotov say;

Hence, compromises in Paris reflect compromises inside Moscow.

Good Will

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

There is an intangible element in every business, and indeed in every individual, that is represented by Good Will. And perhaps this is the best gauge by which either may be appraised.

Good Will represents character. Millions of dollars, for example, could not buy the trade-name of Kodak, not merely because the name stands for the product of a great firm, but because the name stands for top excellence in everything produced by that firm. A firm, that has for years turned out honest creations, "sterling" in quality, can hardly fail—even though its visible assets might suddenly, for some reason or other, be entirely wiped out. Its Good Will would still stand firm, an undying asset.

It was the Good Will of a man whom the elder J. P. Morgan, the great New York banker, had in mind, when he stated, before a committee in Washington, that he often loaned a million dollars to a man with no higher security than his character.

To take two other business illustrations, consider the names of John Wanamaker and Marshall Field, two great names in department store successes. Can anyone estimate the Good Will of such firms, even long after their creators have ceased to function? Good Will lives on! That is why its standard should never be lowered.

To own the Good Will of a person is to own his friendship, for it is represented by every element that enters into the construction of a strong character. It embodies all that a man, or a woman, has been able to add to his or her sum total of human worth.

You often hear the expression that one spent his whole life in building Good Will. And the very thought, regarding that one, inspires one to follow in his train. Those Wise Men, and shepherds, who came to the manger, at the birth of Christ, brought presents, but the greatest of these was the Good Will that they brought — an inheritance of us all, to this day! You recall the Bible expression—"Peace and Good Will to all men."

Embellish your life work with Good Will and you will not have been born in vain!

(Protected, 1946, By The George Matthew Adams Service)

Getting even is a waste of energy that should be put to better use, to say nothing of its foolish side. Because the other fellow has been petty and childish, perhaps vindictive, that is no reason why you should emulate his unworthy example.

Peace of mind largely depends upon your willingness to forget the disagreeable incidents and remember only the pleasant experiences.

Truman, As Much As Anyone, Aided OPA Toward Crisis

By MARK SULLIVAN

Throughout the fight over extending the Office of Price Administration, an immense majority in Congress felt that OPA should be continued in some form. About the form, those had a wide variety of ideas, ranging from OPA intact as it had been, to an OPA reduced to not much more than regulating rents. Yet many who wanted OPA limited were willing to make, and did make, concessions toward strengthening it, in the interest of retaining some kind of OPA. This point of view, and the number who held it, is suggested by a vote in the House taken during the furore immediately following President Truman's veto of the OPA extension which Congress had passed. By more than 4 to 1—in exact figures 283 to 61—the House voted for a three-week's stop-gap extension of OPA as it had been, in order to permit opportunity for writing a permanent measure that would be satisfactory to the President.

In the writing of this new measure in the Senate, there was real effort toward accommodation to the President's views, to the end that some kind of OPA should be preserved. There had been the spirit in the writing of the earlier measure which the President vetoed. Many members who objected strongly to certain features of OPA as it had been, and to some features of the administration of it, sacrificed their viewpoints. This attitude of many in Congress continues to the present moment, in spite of what they regard as evidence that the President did not share the spirit of accommodation.

Strain Has Double Cause

The strain between Congress and the Administration has a double cause. Congress overwhelmingly wanted modifications of OPA, but the President vetoed it. Congress overwhelmingly wanted labor legislation, but the President vetoed that too. Between the two, legislation about OPA and about labor, there is a relation, and recognition of it brought discouragement to many in Congress who earnestly wished continuation of some form of OPA.

The purpose of OPA was, and if it continues is, to restrain price increases. A specific cause of many price increases has been wage raises. Congress saw the Administration over a period of months, follow a policy of encouraging wage raises, in some cases directly bring about wage raises. And Congress then saw OPA decree price increases to pay the cost of the wage raises. In an example that came before the eyes of Congress during the very days when OPA was being debated, the Administration granted a wage increase to coal miners, and OPA decreed an increase of 40½ cents per ton in the price of soft coal, 91 cents in hard coal. Along with all that, Congress saw prolonged strikes preventing the full production of goods, which would have been a better preventive of high prices than OPA could possibly be, and which was the one most promising cure for all our economic troubles.

The labor legislation which Congress passed, and the President vetoed, would not have prevented demands for wage raises and strikes to get them. But it had one feature which would have assured some stability of labor relations, and by that assured fuller production of goods. This was the provision in the Case bill which would have made contracts between labor unions and employers enforceable during the time of the contract, usually a year.

Labor Relations Unchanged

For the future, whether OPA is continued or ended or modified, labor relations remain as they were. Excepting one measure dealing with one industry, radio, and in effect with one labor leader, Mr. Petrillo of the Musicians' Union, and another measure, the Hobbs bill dealing with one practice of labor unions—excepting those two extremely limited measures, all the proposals for labor legislation and all the uproar about them, has come to nothing. What Mr. John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers did, they are free to do again. What the leaders of railroad brotherhoods did, they are free to do again. What the leaders of the Automobile Workers' Union did, they can do again. The frustration of labor legislation, mainly by the President, is a greater threat to restraint of prices than could possibly be offset by any continuation of a strong OPA, which the President insists upon.

The comprehensive labor measure, the Case bill, was vetoed by the President. The emergency legislation which he himself proposed at the time of the railroad strike, has come to nothing, and the President shows no such concern about it as about continuation of OPA. Even his proposal for a Congressional committee to study labor relations remains not adopted and likewise is without pressure from him in its behalf.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, July 17. (CP)— Despite the vigorous campaign in the northern press against him, Senator Bilbo—"The Man" is coming back to Washington and the politically wise do not place much faith in reports that a move will be made to unseat him.

Senator Johnson, (D) of Colorado, chairman of the privileges and elections committee, has already announced that his committee will take no immediate action on charges that Bilbo, by raising the "race hatred" issue, violated the law. Johnson notes that neither the candidates who lost to Bilbo nor the Mississippi electorate have filed a complaint.

A Washington newspaper has started a campaign to have Bilbo replaced as chairman of the District of Columbia committee of the Senate, a post generally designated as that of "Mayor" of voteless Washington. But observers don't think this will happen—unless by some political upheaval, the Republicans should capture the Senate this fall.

Incidentally, some realistic southern politicians believe that the campaign of certain columnists to oust Bilbo by the ballot did much to elect him. It is known that one candidate personally appealed to thees writers to "lay off" Bilbo. He argued that their attacks only fueled Bilbo's campaign fire in a state where outside interference is resented.

Capitol Hill observers see little chance of adjourning for the summer—and the coming campaigns—until long after the proposed adjournment date of July 15. Breaking a long-time precedent, the delay will come in the House instead of the Senate.

The Senate is usually the chamber which finds it most difficult to tie up the loose ends and to stop talking. Now the House, already long delayed in action on the British loan, still has several other important bits of legislation to deal with.

Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley had been hopeful of adjournment by July 20. He plans to keep the Senate in session with a series of three-day recesses until the House concludes. House leaders, though, are now talking in terms of an August adjournment. More pessimistic members speak of September and Chairman Sabath of the House rules committee dejectedly guesses on October.

Action on legislation for the control of atomic energy within the United States probably will be delayed for a series of atomic tomorrows.

Political observers see little or no chance that the House will take up the bill reported this week by its military affairs committee.

They point out that, even if the House acts, a conference fight looms in the Senate; a fight which may even spend itself in a legislative dead end street with the adjournment of the 79th Congress late in July.

The Senate some time ago passed the McMahon bill, providing for outright civilian control of atomic energy. Then the House military affairs committee came along and shaved and sheared the measure to bits.

The House amended the bill so that the president is required to appoint at least one military official to the atomic energy commission. It made it possible for the chief executive to appoint two such commission members.

Then it rode roughshod over the Senate by empowering the Army and Navy to manufacture atomic weapons at the direction of the president.

Authoritative congressional sources are certain that the Senate will not take the House bill. And the House is virtually certain not to take the Senate bill.

Here's The Way Atomic Control Would Function

WASHINGTON — Here's how the American plan to keep atomic energy out of dangerous hands would work if the United Nations accept it.

An "Atomic Development Authority" would be set up for the world, staffed by experts from many nations.

The ADA would have the right to keep combing the earth's surface for deposits of uranium and thorium (the two minerals used in making atomic energy). It would either own or control all such deposits.

ADA staffs would run the show when the stuff is mined, refined or passed on to factories for peacetime uses — either through outright ownership or through control agreements. This would be necessary to prevent dangerous amounts of the minerals getting into the hands of plotters.

ADA Would Make Bombs

The ADA — alone — would have the right to make atomic bombs. The United States believes this limited production of explosives must go on so the ADA staff can be the best informed men in the world on the use of atomic energy. That would probably mean that the United Nations would have to finance laboratories and plants for the ADA scientists.

The United States suggests these ADA plants should be distributed in various spots of the world to kill off whatever fears might arise if they were centralized. For the same reason they want ADA stockpiles of "fissionable materials" scattered — under ADA guards.

On the peaceful side, the ADA would help all peace-time uses of the energy. It would permit nations or private concerns to use the materials for medicine, for power production, for whatever other peaceful uses show up. The license granted would carry with it the right for ADA inspectors to go through factories at any time to check up.

Time Would Betray Plotters

The United States feels that the effort needed to carry uranium and thorium through, from mine to bomb, would take enough time and require enough plant and unique activities that any war plot could be thwarted.

The United States says there must be no "veto" to protect a nation that might plan to use the energy destructively. The "veto" is the voting arrangement whereby any of the Big Five nations on the UN Security Council can stop action by casting a single "No" vote. As Bernard M. Baruch said in reporting the United States plan, "The bomb does not wait on debate. To delay may be to die."

The United States wants immediate penalties for any nation found to be illegally holding an atomic bomb, material that could be used to make a bomb, or any plant or project which would be used contrary to this world plan.

Baruch said the United States will turn over its knowledge on how to make the bomb only in slow stages, as it is satisfied that the various controls have been set up, and are working.

Russia's Counter Plan

The alternative plan suggested by Russia resembles the United States proposals in its general approach to the world problem. Its principle differences are:

Instead of a new international authority, responsibility would be vested in the present 12-nation United Nations Commission for Control of Atomic Energy. This body would be augmented by two important committees: one to bring about international sharing of atomic information, the other to govern the peaceful use of that information and to set up machinery for its world-wide control.

Under the Russian plan an international agreement would outlaw manufacture, possession and use of atomic weapons. Within three months after the signing of this treaty, all existing stocks would be destroyed.

(This is in contrast to the more gradual atomic disarmament proposed by Baruch.)

The Russians directly oppose the United States recommendation that the "Big Five" Security Council unanimity rule be scrapped, so that one nation could not prevent sanctions against itself if a violation were discovered. The Russians say the existing veto privilege should be retained by the great powers.

Grand Jury Continues Probe Of Robbery

BALTIMORE, July 17—(AP)—Mrs. Marie Bauernschmidt, executive secretry of the public school association, and James M. Hepbron, managing director of the Criminal Justice Commission, testified today before the grand jury investigating the city's police department.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, meanwhile, was still outside the inquiry after it was determined that present evidence on the Fourth of July holdup at Baltimore's Century Athletic Club did not warrant its entering the case.

To do so, the FBI must be shown more than $5,000 is involved or that the crime is of interstate nature, neither of which has been demonstrated by Baltimore police, now themselves under investigation.

A clue which might have resulted in FBI collaboration with the grand jury was reported by police this morning but subsequently proved to be based on a false report.

A car, answering the description of a getaway automobile used by the four gunmen, was reported found in Washington, but police were unable to confirm this.

Meanwhile, descriptions of the robbers have been relayed over police networks to 21 states and the District of Columbia, according to Baltimore police.

If the time actually wasted every day were profitably employed the take-home pay would be sufficient to pay the public debt in no time.

Committee Approves $12,000,000 For Airfield At Naval Academy

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP) — A Senate bill for a $12,000,000 airfield near the Naval Academy to be used in its aviation program won today the approval of the Senate Naval Affairs committee.

The training field, sought since the advent of Superintendent Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch at the Academy, and now recommended to Congress, would be best located on a 2,400 acre tract at Sandy Point on Chesapeake Bay, navy witnesses said.

The proposed tract, about seven miles from the Academy, would have a first-class military airport with four runways and macadamized mats for training.

Admiral D. C. Ramsey, vice chief of naval operations, said aviation is an integral part of Midshipman training and that the logical place for fundamental training is at the Academy.

A special course in navy aviation was begun July 6 at the Academy under the supervision of the new aviation department which is using the partially deactivated escort aircraft carrier Block Island as a laboratory as well as instructors living quarters.

Various suggestions to place the academy air training field nearer Annapolis were rejected by navy officials as being too costly.

The proposed $12,000,000 appropriation for the field earlier was turned down in Washington.

$230,454.50 Sought For Training School

BALTIMORE, July 17 (AP) — Mrs. Muriel Johnson, superintendent of the Maryland State Training School for colored girls at Glen Burnie, today told the legislative council she needs $230,454.50 to operate the institution in the two years beginning July 1.

The request will be studied by the council before becoming a part of the state budget to be submitted to the general assembly at its biennial session next January.

Mrs. Johnson asked for $127,481.50 for the 1948 fiscal year, starting next July, and $102,973 for 1949. The institution's budget for last year was $60,630, and for the current year it is $60,870.

It's the little things that irritate and annoy; the real emergencies keep one too busy meeting them to become upset.

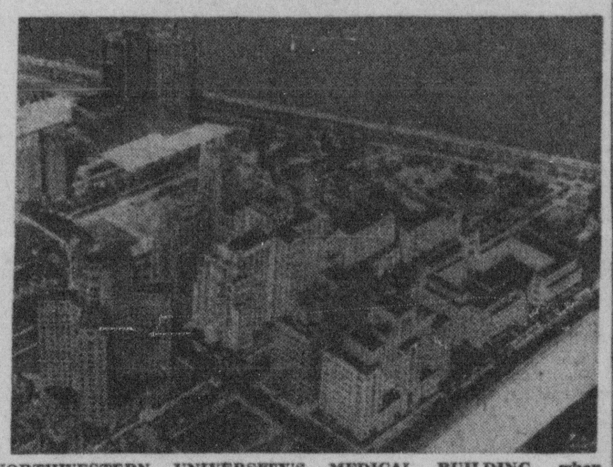
Billion Involved in Hospital And Medical Center Projects



NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY'S MEDICAL BUILDING, when completed.

AP Newsfeatures

CHICAGO.—Multimillion dollar programs for expanding facilities for medical treatment, research and education are taking shape across the country.

The latest contribution in plans comes from Nohrtewstern university. The blueprint for further development of its Chicago campus features a greatly enlarged medical center. Ten new buildings are to be erected, equipped, endowed and staffed at a minimum cost of $63,000,000.

Key unit designed for this cluster of gothic structures along Lake Shore drive is a twenty-story Institute for Medical Research aimed at harnessing cancer, heart disease, high blood pressure, kidney disorders. Allied projects include neuropsychiatric and cancer clinics and a urological institute.

Another in New York

New York university and Bellevue hospital are co-operating on plans for another $30,000,000 medical center in New York city.

The Alfred P. Sloan Foundation put up a $4,000,000 grant for an institute of Cancer Research in New York city.

A medical center on Chicago's west side, embracing the University of Illinois medical school and fourteen other institutions in the area, is evolving.

But the nation's two largest cities don't have a monopoly on growth and progress. The American Hospital Association has a twelve-drawer filing cabinet crammed with data on contemplated expansions and improvements.

This information indicates the total outlay—excluding federal building but including state, county, city and private construction—may approximate $1,000,000,000.

One of the broadest in scope is a $11,200,000 program for building four new hospitals and enlarging thirteen now operating in the Cleveland area.

Linked with Education

A number are linked with education—such as medical school buildings for the universities of Alabama and Arkansas, $1,000,000 each; a medical center at Ohio State university, $5,000,000; school and hospital buildings at Temple university, $6,000,000.

B and O. X-Ray Service Started

Approximately 200 Baltimore and Ohio roundhouse employes were x-rayed Tuesday in the roundhouse with two technicians from the tuberculosis division of the state department of health making the x-rays, according to Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

Men x-rayed Tuesday are employed on the 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. shift, and approximately 200 other roundhouse employes from the 3 to 11 p. m. shift and the 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. shift will be x-rayed today, Dr. Franklin said.

He added that Dr. Leroy Allen, chief of the tuberculosis division of the state department of health, will arrive here today to read the x-rays.

Committees were chosen from among B. and O. employes last week to explain the purpose of the x-ray program and to list those who wished to take part. Dr. Franklin said 360 out of 429 in the back shops have signified their desire to have the x-rays made.

The staff will work in the back shops tomorrow and Friday. Employes in the bolt and forge departments will be x-rayed next Monday and Tuesday.

Approximately 1,500 B. and O. employes will be x-rayed in the program, which will probably be completed next Wednesday, Dr. Franklin said. Retired railroad men and workers on furlough are eligible to take advantage of the service.

Officials of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, recently invited Dr. Franklin to a union meeting to discuss the possibility of taking the service to the Celanese plant.

Gas Company Plans Safety Campaign For Next Month

Cumberland and Allegheny Gas company employes will participate in a campaign to eliminate all accidents in August, according to Carl C. Robbins, district manager.

The month of August has been selected for the campaign, since much new construction work is in progress, and many jobs are being rushed to completion before cold weather arrives.

Roobins said yesterday that safety to the public as well as workers on company jobs is an important phase of the campaign.

Customers are asked to co-operate with the company in removing hazards from their basement stairs and cellar steps, which in many instances are the cause of injury to meter readers and service men, Robbins declared.

The slogan for the campaign is "Think First," and this slogan will be prominently displayed by the company on its property, and lapel buttons will be worn by employes. Daily safety meetings of all employes on the job will also be a feature.

The smart employer who encourages his fellow workers to develop their initiative is providing a future supply of key men and women for his establishment.

THERE ARE NO NYLON LINES JUST ACROSS MEXICAN LINE

AP Newsfeatures

Nogales, Sonora, Mex.—Mexico is a land of plenty—if you have plenty of money.

T-bone steaks, nylons, liquor butter and sugar are abundant.

In fact, there isn't a shortage of much of anything in this city of 25,000, just across the international border from Arizona.

Beef is piled high in market show cases or on blocks. But it doesn't look too tempting with flies swarming in the warm afternoon sun.

Stores advertise nylons by size, gauge and make. There are no lines. The price is about $2.95 a pair.

Markets are loaded with sugar. It isn't as highly refined as the American product, but just as sweet. An American visitor can take five pounds back across the border without worrying about a ration stamp.

Camera film is advertised by most merchants, and almost every size is on hand, but the cost is about double that in the states.

Mexican urchins roam the streets selling popular brands of American cigarettes at a quarter a package.

An American can bring $100 worth of Mexican goods into the United States duty free.

There is a steady two-way procession across the border these days. Americans are stocking up on scarce items. Mexicans buy armloads of groceries in Nogales, Ariz., stores.

Beef is piled high in market show cases or on blocks. But it doesn't look too tempting with flies swarming in the warm afternoon sun.

Stores advertise nylons by size, gauge and make. There are no lines. The price is about $2.95 a pair.

Markets are loaded with sugar. It isn't as highly refined as the American product, but just as sweet. An American visitor can take five pounds back across the border without worrying about a ration stamp.

Camera film is advertised by most merchants, and almost every size is on hand, but the cost is about double that in the states.

Mexican urchins roam the streets selling popular brands of American cigarettes at a quarter a package.

An American can bring $100 worth of Mexican goods into the United States duty free.

There is a steady two-way procession across the border these days. Americans are stocking up on scarce items. Mexicans buy armloads of groceries in Nogales, Ariz., stores.

Uncle Sam's Check Keeps GIs on Farm

By FRANCIS E. BARDEN
AP Newsfeatures

SAYRE, Okla.—A drive to keep Beckham county's returning GIs on the farms which are the backbone of this agricultural region is paying off.

The drive started soon after the war ended. Business leaders were worried because many of the returning veterans, unable to find jobs, were planning to leave.

A conference of business men, farmers and school teachers came up with the answer: An on-the-job farm training program. One hundred veterans are enrolled and 30 more are expected to to take 300 more are expected to take advantage of the training.

The county draft board, with the aid of the five schools in the county, is spearheading the "keep-'em-home" campaign.

Veterans taking the training are receiving up to $90 a month. The work is practical. The budding farmers milk cows, feed livestock, grow crops and do other farm chores.

One of the big advantages is that the men enrolling in the program can do these things on their own land if they wish, under the supervision of vocational agriculture teachers recruited from county schools.

That way, the money from the government pays for mistakes that might otherwise spell ruin for a man starting to farm on his own. It helps, too, to carry him through a lean year when lack of moisture or insect infestation might put him out of business.

Under the training program, the vocational agriculture instructors make regular checkups and advise the trainees when cropping or farm management problems arise.

Where the veteran is working with his father, or some other experienced person, the experienced farmer is directly responsible for the training, under the supervision of the instructors.

Typical of the veterans is Marvin Simmons, 30, who went into the army in September, 1942.

"I like the farm," said Simmons "but when I returned prices were so high that without some assistance I couldn't get started.

"This on-the-job training program gives me the aid.

"Now I can develop my own farm and by the time the training period ends, I'll be over the hump."

A county organization is not necessary to start farm on-the-job training programs, sponsors said, but it helps because it makes teachers available for supervision and provides a directing head.

Individual veterans can be trained on any farm and are entitled to on-the-job pay.

The plan is the first of its type in Oklahoma and the only one of its type sponsors had heard about.

The federal government has no appropriation to provide instructors.

All that is necesary to establish such a program is for sponsors to line up the veterans, the farms and the instructors who supervise, although they are not actually necessary, and apply to state veterans headquarters for permission to conduct on-the-job training.

Two Are Fined For Motor Violations

Two men drew fines yesterday in trial magistrates eourt on motor vehicle violations and a third forfeited bond for operating on an expired license.

The first man, William D. Runion, 114 Mullen street, was fined $5 and costs for operating a motor vehicle for business without a chauffeur's license. He was arrested Sunday by Trooper Thomas P. Barton.

Albert Carlson, 815 Fayette street, paid a $5 fine when he was convicted of exceeding the 30 mile speed limit on Route 220. He was arrested Tuesday by Trooper Thomas P. Barton.

James B. Robinette, 207 Offutt street, forfeited a bond of $6.45 when he failed to appear on charges of operating on an expired driver's permit.

Two Women And Man Rescued From Boat

BALTIMORE, July 17 (AP) — Two women and a man were rescued today from the leaky boat in which they drifted all night in Middle River.

A crash boat from the Glenn L. Martin plant reached them in a small cove of Middle River after a plane sighted the missing outboard runabout, object of an all night search.

Aboard were William Ray, 22, his wife, Lorraine, 20, and Mrs. Gladys Newnam, 34, all of Sparrows Point. They wore only bathing suits.

The boat is owned by Mrs. Newnam's husband, and the three set out in it yesterday afternoon from North Point, bound for a boatyard at Essex. Mrs. Ray's mother asked coast guard help when they failed to return at 7 o'clock last night.

WARSAW—(AP)—The Polish Socialist Party newspaper Robotnik says Soviet Russia has delivered 23 "warships" to the Polish navy along the Baltic coast to help reestablish Poland's sea strength — nine trawlers, 12 speed boats and two torpedo cutters.

At the turn of the 20th century, total motor vehicle production in the United States was 4,192 cars.

A GOOD FIT IN A JOB

Psychologist Tests for Aptitude

PUZZLE—What are you good for? Fred P. Amft shows how psychologists find out, while Jean Wilson times him.

AP Newsfeatures

CHICAGO — Putting square pegs in square holes is the business of George S. Speer, director of the Institute for Psychological Services of the Illinois Institute of Technology. He has developed a scientific method of psychological testing designed to aid individual vocational guidance and personnel selection.

Since he started the department seven months ago, Speer has interviewed 2,100 persons who have come to him for an answer to the question, "what shall I do?"

In the reply, individuals receive recommendations.

Picking a $12,000 Man

One hundred industrial companies throughout the United States and Canada have sent employes to Speer for advice on job placement and promotion to new openings for executive personnel.

One Kansas City company sent three of its salesmen to him for counsel because it had an opening for an executive whose pay would be $12,000 a year.

Another in Memphis sent a candidate for its industrial engineering department to Chicago for recommendation. The institute found that he would not make a good industrial engineer and advised that he should pursue engineering research.

Veterans come for help because they don't like their old jobs and want to know how to get better ones. Sixty-five per cent of them are encouraged to enter a school or a university for further training.

Institute counselors measure manual dexterity, ability to match forms and physical co-ordination. Manipulative dexterity is measured by timing an individual as he twists a nut on a bolt. Computing ability to match forms is done with a large board resembling a jig-saw puzzle. Another, shaped like a pie, consists of odd, zig zag shaped wooden blocks that must be placed in order in five minutes.

The results of finger dexterity tests, reading, interests, mental ability and written examinations that explore personality traits determine the course of the final recommendation.

It serves no useful purpose to be anxious and troubled about things you can neither challenge nor change.

32 Die In Plane Crash At Ecuador

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 17 (AP)—Thirty-two occupants of an Andesa Airlines plane met death today when the ship crashed and burned while trying to land at Cuenca, Ecuador.

Thirty passengers and company employes, including Pilot Darwin Day, Yonkers, N. Y., and Co-Pilot Wayne Miller, Cheyenne, Wyo., died in the flaming wreckage. Two other passengers died later in a hospital.

All the passengers were Ecuadoreans.

The plane was making a regular run from Guayaquil to Cuenca. Witnesses said the pilot overshot the landing field and attempted to gain altitude for another try. He failed to clear a small hill, however, and smashed into trees. The plane caught fire immediately.

Among those killed was Neil Miller, 11-year-old son of the co-pilot, who was taken by his father on the flight to see Cuenca for the first time. The wives and families of both Day and Miller arrived from July 11 in a special plane which brought airline personnel to Ecuador.

Unemployment

will undertake a "comprehensive survey" of the Maryland system of jobless benefits.

The appointment of investigators, Governor O'Conor said, "marks the first action of this kind by any state in the union, according to information received from the Social Security board in Washington."

These two moves are part of a threefold analysis of the Maryland unemployment compensation.

Other measures initiated by the chief executive were a request to the governors conference that it study the federal unemployment compensation act with a view to improvement, and a request to the Maryland Legislative Council for a study of the state's law "to determine if amendments are necessary."

Will Review Procedure

The governor said he instituted negotiations with the public administration service—whose headquarters are in Chicago — several weeks ago and that the group was engaged to undertake "immediately" the following study:

1. A general review of the organization and administrative structure of the Maryland board.

2. An analysis and review of Maryland procedure for handling benefit claims, "with particular attention to the controls used to insure compliance with the law and to the adequacy of accounting procedures."

3. A study of the effectiveness of the management services including personnel administration, internal budgeting and accounting, work planning and assignment of work.

The public administration service, Governor O'Conor declared, would report to him on its findings which he asked be submitted by the middle of August.

"This will be done," he said, "although it required extraordinary efforts on the part of the concern to meet my request" of reporting by that time.

Regarding the special investigators, the chief executive said:

"I made a special request that these investigators be authorized by Washington, and approval has been received by Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Maryland board.

Wants All The Facts

"While this is a departure from the setup which is in effect in the various states, I think it is justified. My purpose is to have all the facts disclosed so that the public can know whether abuses have occurred and for the further reason that any improper cases can be eliminated."

The investigators, he explained, will be appointed from merit system lists and "will be at work without delay."

Governor O'Conor said he had received "further word" from governor Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, chairman of the Governors' conference, that the group's executive committee will take up the question of proposed modification of the Federal Unemployment Compensation law.

"I have requested Governor Caldwell to institute this action," he said, "because I have believed that a reduction in the federal tax is justified and because, in my opinion, other modifications in the federal law should be made."

He declared "every assistance" would be given to the legislative council in its study of the Maryland law, and state officials, records, and other data needed by the legislators "will be made available to them by my orders."

Meatless Days

indicated "an enthusiastic response" to the UAW's call Tuesday for the ban on meat purchases.

Spokesmen for the Detroit Retail Meat Merchants Association said the slowdown in buying became noticeable even before the UAW's official declaration that meat was the No. 1 target of its hold-the-price-line campaign.

Sidney Black, president of the association, said the slowdown "was quite a bit more definite" today and scattered reports from meat merchants indicated their meat sales were way below par.

Fish Sales Up

Some retailers reported they were doing a land-office business in spaghetti, macaroni and fish departments.

UAW Public Relations men insisted that little meat would be found on the tables of the auto workers this weekend.

Mrs. Walter P. Reuther, wife of the UAW leader, said her husband is in Washington for a CIO meeting but that he probably will be home in time to eat his share of the corned beef hash. His menu for the rest of the week is going to include macaroni, cheese and a pound of bacon that Mrs. Reuther showed newsmen in her home today.

She said the bacon was bought before OPA controls went off.

Mrs. Leonard — whose husband is also out of town on UAW business — disclosed that her domestic troubles weren't limited to shopping. She told newsmen that Leonard, who is leading the UAW's fight against rent boosts, got a little advice in the mail today.

[illegible] rent has [illegible] boos[illegible]

Cumberland's

in increasing prices to make up the salary differences.

Prices have to be controlled, Fred Perry, manager of the Liberty theater said. "It isn't too noticeable around here just yet, but in the larger cities many prices are out of reason."

Mrs. Lulla Backer, negress, Eckhart Mines, "thinks it's terrible. The price of butter is out of reach."

Situation Termed Confusing

One man contacted on Baltimore street did want to see the country given a fair chance to pull out of the present delimma without government legislation, but added that OPA should be restored in 60 days if things don't straighten out. He is John J. Shirocky, Allegany Inn, employed at the Kelly-Springfield tire plant.

One exception to the trend of Cumberland shoppers' thoughts is James O'Neal, blind newsstand operator in the post office building. O'Neal believes "that the manufacturers are entitled to a fair profit on goods. If controls are eliminated entirely production will increase the supply. When this happens, prices will control and adjust themselves."

Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of the local Red Cross, chapter termed the OPA status "very confusing, but I can't help worrying about the people with low incomes and large families. I believe" she said, "there should be some control on necessities and on rents."

A solid backer of OPA is Alvin E. Yates, clerk of Local Draft Board No. 2. "I think," Yates said, "OPA should be retained and strictly enforced until the manufacturer and producer are sending enough of everything to the consumer to make controls unnecessary."

Of all those people interviewed, few failed to specify that a rent ceiling was especially necessary. One of the outstanding statements was made by Clifton L. Croker, Western Maryland engineer. "There are too many gullable landlords," Croker said, "OPA rent control should be continued, if all else fails, but I favor continuation of all price ceilings."

Mrs. William E. Lehman, Jr., 817 Schriver avenue, whose husband is employed at the Celanese says "prices are increasing rapidly, I think OPA should be kept on."

Modified Bill Suggested

A modified OPA bill is what Edward Hadra, 515 Rose Hill avenue thinks is needed. The price of meat and dairy products needs some control as do the rent prices," he says. "It is true that these commodities seem to be a little more plentiful since OPA was discontinued, but the prices still make them out of reach of the average working man."

Clarence H. Stein, 817 Windsor road, favors the continuation of OPA but believes ceilings should be taken off products when better prices might bring increased production. He also advocated a reasonable rent control which would make allowances for increases in taxes, fuel and overhead.

C. E. Stutzman, business manager of Local 435, Teamsters Union feels that unless something is done about OPA unions must destroy existing contracts. "Necessities of life," says Stutzman, "have increased tremendously the last few weeks and there is no sign of stopping. I cannot see why a Congress which approved the British loan can object to paying food subsidies."

John E. Sherry, desk sergeant on the city police force said "I believe it was the worst thing possible when the OPA was dropped. All of the benefits from the recent wage increase granted to city employes have been lost through increases in prices."

Ralph C. Beard, Valley road, president of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, said "it is quite evident that since price control has been removed there has been a mad scramble for price increases. Unless there is some control on prices we are headed for serious inflation.

The interviews were conducted by the entire News staff as they covered their beats yesterday in an effort to get opinions of persons from all walks of life and varied occupations. Many of the persons were stopped in the downtown shopping district as they made purchases, others were contacted by phone when their names werep icked from the directory at random.

Program For

divided between the department of forests and parks and the game commission.

Endorsed By Vaughn

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn has given his wholehearted indorsement to the program which would provide more game for hunters as it progresses, Wilson said.

He added that the rabbit is the backbone of the small game hunters' sport, but that a condition has existed where there are more hunters and less game yearly.

For the past decade the Pennsylvania game commission has been trapping thousands of rabbits from hundreds of areas like watersheds, penal institution areas and military depots and reservations. Hundreds of similar areas exist in Maryland and it is from these places also that the game commission hopes to trap rabbits, so that hunters will have more rabbits to hunt.

No Late Developments

The investigation of the Heirens case has produced no major developments since Tuohy announced yesterday that a former soldier had identified Heirens as a youth he saw carrying a paper bag a block from the Degnan home at about the time the 6 year old girl was kidnaped Jan. 7.

The prosecutor said he would seek murder indictments against Heirens in the Degnan case and the lipstick slaying Dec. 10 of Frances Brown, 33-year-old former WAVE. He said he needed more time to decide what action to take in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43 year old widow, June 5, 1945.

Heirens, held on 29 criminal charges of robbery, burglary and assault, has not been charged with any of the three slayings. He has denied published reports of a confession. Tuohy and the youth's attorney also denied reports he had confessed.

The FBI has confirmed police findings that a fingerprint and two palm prints found on the Degnan kidnap note and a fingerprint found on the bathroom door of the Brown [illegible] Garssons."

May Visited

one of them to May. She could not identify the other two.

Tells Of Visits

She said that Freeman left the office a short time later, telling her that he was going to see May.

Mrs. Hall said that May had visited the sales office on one occasion after Sarelas, answering a telephone inquiry on Freeman's whereabouts, had told May that "Joe Freeman is in New York, making money for us."

Sarelas, on the witness stand yesterday, had acknowledged making such a response, and told the committee that he got "red all over" when he realized the implications of his remark.

It was after that occasion, declared Mrs. Hall, that May cautioned office officials to guard their telephone conversations. She added that the Kentucky legislator "very carefully came at 6:30 p. m., when all the offices were closed. I had the feeling that no one was supposed to know he was there."

Mrs. Hall declared that Sarelas had informed her that Albert Jacobson, former acting chief of the chemical warfare service legal division, was being paid $20,000 a year "by the Garssons."

Henry Garsson and Murray Garsson, brothers, were among the promoters and officials of the combine. Murray Garsson, listed by the FBI as a one-time associate of gangster Dutch Schultz; is in Cuba claiming ill health. Henry Garsson, a former internal revenue employe who was dismissed after being acquitted on a bribery charge, refused to waive constitutional protection against being required to testify in a case which might incriminate or degrade him.

"I assume," said Mrs. Hall, "that Jacobson was doing something in the War department that was worth [illegible] Garssons."

WAR PROFITS PROBE WITNESS

MRS. ELEANOR HALL, former secretary in the Washington office of the Erie Basin-Batavia Metal munitions combine, told the Mead committee in Washington yesterday that she heard Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) ask an official of the combine, "What about that $3,000?" during a telephone conversation. (See story on Page 1).

Wrecked Automobile Arouses Interest

WESTERNPORT, July 17 — Although state police said they received no report, there was considerable interest in Westernport tonight over an accident on the Westernport-McCoole road in which an automobile was badly damaged but no one apparently was hurt.

Reports indicated the car was headed toward Westernport when it struck a culvert, which tore off the rear axle and wheels, damaged upholstering and tore off a door, a fender and license tag.

Passersby reported seeing the license tag, issued by West Virginia, the door and fender lying on the culvert.

The driver of the car was reported to have gotten a ride to Westernport where he crossed the Potomac river to West Virginia.

of any of the listed manufactured products, he has the choice of either increasing his sales or curtailing production," Small explained.

To Control Essential Supplies

The action is one of the measures intended by CPA to keep intact its controls over the flow of essential supplies should price control not be restored. The first, an order forbidding any seller from quoting a higher price to a priority holder than to any other buyer, was issued two weeks ago.

Besides the goods named, the new anti-withholding order covers bed springs, mattresses, metal beds, other bedding products; galvanized ware; miscellaneous electrical appliances; and the following building materials: asphalt and tarred roofing; building board made from woodpulp, pressed paper, or vegetable fibers; gypsum board; gypsum lath; metal windows; cast iron soil pipe; metal plastering base; insect screen cloth.

The materials and parts which must be held to "minimum practicable working inventory" limits—and which previously were exempt from such limits—include:

Machine tools, cranes and hoists, capital equipment, abrasive products, ball and roller bearings, bending machines for pipe or plate, certain chains, files and rasps, forging machines, foundry machinery, metal melting furnaces, gauges and precision measuring tools, heat treating equipment, machine tool and metal working attachments, mechanics' hand service tools, metal cutting tools, portable metal working machines and tools, metal working presses, pipe fittings, piping accessories, rolling mill stands, power-driven sheers and punches, valve hand wheels, goggle valves, piping system valves, wire drawing machinery, and jigs, dies and fixtures.

Talmadge Claims

supremacy" issue, plus the fact that negroes—an estimated 100,000 of them—voted for the first time in a Georgia primary had shifted the nation's political spotlight to Georgia from Montana where Sen. Burton K. Wheeler conceded defeat in Tuesday's primary.

Another former Georgia governor, E. D. Rivers, and Hoke O'Kelley, veteran of two world wars, were running far behind Talmadge and Rivers in the four-man Democratic gubernatorial race. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Georgia.

On the basis of the early returns, Talmadge went on the radio and told his listeners the contest was "all over but the shouting" he had promised, if elected, to restore the state's "white primary," from which negroes were barred.

It was the United States Supreme Court which had ruled out the "white primary" early this year, thus paving the way for Georgia negroes to vote for the first time yesterday.

Wheeler, a veteran of 24 years in the senate and a consistent opponent of the administration's foreign policies before and during the war, conceded today that he had lost his bid for a fifth term to 40-year-old Leif Erickson, former Montana Supreme Court Justice.

Erickson who campaigned on an internationalist platform, had a lead of about 5,500 votes over Wheeler with only about 250 precincts missing.

fall, one at Towson, and one for negro students at Bowie.

He would not name a specific figure in his declaration that teachers should have higher pay. The present range, he said, is from $1,500 to $2,250 annually.

Many of his proposals were concerned with providing war veterans with greater education opportunities. That is one reason for more junior colleges, he declared. It is also the reason he wants more teachers and more dormitory space at present colleges.

"There are," he said, "between four and six thousand veterans in the state who want to go to college and who will not be able to go this fall because colleges cannot accommodate them."

Discusses Retirement Plan

One purpose of the high school-equivalent examination is to help veterans meet college entrance requirements although they were unable to finish high school. Dr. Pullen said the examination compiled by the state department of education has been given about 200 students. More than half passed and got diplomas.

Concerning amendment of retirement provisions, Dr. Pullen pointed out a teacher could serve 15 years in Baltimore City schools and then lose all accrued pension benefits merely by moving to Baltimore county schools.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, entertained the delegates at a reception this afternoon. They also heard an address on leadership qualities by Mrs. Newton P. Leonard, Providence, R. I., a vice president of the National Congress of Parents and teachers.

The three-day program concludes tomorrow with a report on President's Truman's national highway safety program.

Russians Declare

Berlin commander, Col. Eyster said.

Cobin, of New York, and Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, disappeared after they were seen in a North Berlin railroad station boarding a train for Oranienburg, 20 miles north of Berlin in the Russian zone. It had been believed that the two were being held by the Russians against the return of the three Soviet soldiers—two officers and a driver—picked up in civilian clothes in the American zone.

Berlin reports yesterday said that Gen. M. Dratvin, Russian military governor in occupied Germany, advised Gen. Keating that the Russians were "collecting data" on Cobin and Wyatt in the neighborhood of Oranienburg.

No Progress Made

Intelligence officers said it was rumored that Cobin was gathering material for a book and had made several previous trips into Oranienburg, where during the war the Nazis maintained a notorious concentration camp which the Russians now are said to be using as an internment camp.

In Berlin, the senior security officer earlier this afternoon reported no progress whatever in the case other than a promise from the Russians several days ago that they would "investigate" the disappearance of Cobin and Wyatt.

"It's quite likely, though, before they are released the Russians may demand some 'quid pro quo,'" the officer said. "I can't say officially but I think we may be holding some more Russian personnel down the line somewhere in our occupation zone."

The Russians yesterday released to American authorities Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife, Helen, who had been held in the Soviet zone for 15 days for entering without a permit.

Pact Is Made

and technical workers of the Industrial Colleries Corporation, Johnstown, Pa., a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The latter agreement covered only the corporation's employes in its general office.

Under the pacts, the J. and L. supervisory workers affected were given wage increases of $1.85 a day plus overtime after 40 hours. These terms are retroactive to May 22, 1946.

Includes 18½ Cent Increase

In the case of the J. and L. and Industrial Colleries clerical and technical workers, also represented by the same union, the same 18½ cent hourly pay increase and other awards contained in the recent government-UMA agreement covering miners were granted.

The agreement covering the J. and L. supervisory workers covers the Vesta No. 4, 5 and 6 and Shannopin mines of the corporation at California, Pa.

This agreement excludes those supervisory workers presently described as "assistant mine foremen" pending a decision by the national labor relations board on whether they may be unionized.

The NLRB had ruled that the union was a proper bargaining agent for other supervisory workers at the four mines. However this ruling was disputed by the J. and L. Corporation which recently had been seeking to prevent, through court action, any government-union agreement such as that completed today pending a review of NLRB's finding in the courts.

In this connection Admiral Moreell, as part of the pact with the union, agreed that if the NLRB ruling should be set aside his agreement with the union would be nullified.

The union agreed to file with NLRB a charge of refusal to bargain against the J. and L. corporation "to the end that the company may have an opportunity to obtain a final judicial determination" of the supervisory question in the courts.

The clause covering this union stipulation in the agreement said that Admiral Moreell could require this charge to be filed by Aug. 25, 1946.

It was explained at the interior department that this clause was included in the agreement for use in event J. and L. declines to make the contract effective.

Break Off Negotiations

Soft coal operators have broken off negotiations with the government and the UMW on the knotty supervisory issue and thereby reduced the prospect for early return of the mines to their owners.

John C. Gall, attorney for J. and L. disclosed this today at a news conference in which he announced new federal court action seeking to restrain the government from making an agreement with UMW covering supervisors.

Admiral Moreell has been presiding over closed-door conferences among government, union and operator representatives striving to win an overall agreement on the foremen's question. Gall said these discussions collapsed last Friday when it became evident that "no amicable agreement could be reached."

The mines have been under federal operation since late May. After the seizure UMW members broke their long strike and returned to work in early July when the government and UMW Chief John L. Lewis reached an agreement on issues involved in the strike.

Since then, the question as to when the mines will be returned to their owners has largely hinged on whether the operators and Lewis could agree on a contract and on settlement of the supervisory issue.

Appeals To Court

Gall asked the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia to prevent Secretary of the Interior Krug, Moreell and Lewis from entering into any agreement covering supervisory workers at the J. and L. Mines, a case regarded as a test for the soft coal industry.

J. and L. also appealed from a federal district court decision of two weeks ago which held that the government now holds all the rights of a proprietor and is free to enter into agreements with Lewis on the supervisors.

The steel corporation contended in its court actions today that the government, in accepting as an "order" NLRB's certification of UMW for bargaining purposes, was blocking the company's rights to challenge the NLRB action in the courts.

Gall said that the government has until Tuesday night to file an answer on the J. and L. plea for a stay order against Krug and Moreell.

Local Women Return From Training School

India was the topic of the WSCS Leadership Training course attended by a group of local women at Western Maryland college, last week. Mrs. Ethel Zimmerman, Mrs. H. A. Kester, Miss Anetta Yates, Mrs. R. J. Reuschlein, Mrs. E. F. Phillips, city, Mrs. John G. Cook, Frostburg; Miss Mary Hanson and Mrs. Edward Lewis, Cresaptown, returned Monday night from Westminster.

Mrs. J. Elmer Morgan, honorary president of the conference, was the teacher for the course. Dr. Y. C. Yang, head of the Soochow university of China, lectured on China.

Talks on India, were given and a display of articles from there, shown by five returned missionaries. They were Mrs. Prem Nath Dass, president of Isabelle Thorborn woman's college in India; Mrs. Warner, who worked in India, 30 years; Mrs. Lun, 25 years; Miss Lillie Rockwell, five years; and Mrs. Don Griffin, a medical missionary there for 20 years, and now head nurse at Western Maryland during the summer and a lecturer the remainder of the year.

Couple Drives 8,000 Miles In Three Weeks

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Savilisky Ridgeley, W .Va., have returned home and are enthusiastic about their 8,000-mile motor trip, across the country in three weeks. Mr. Savilisky reports a "wonderful time, without any car or tire trouble, although they crossed four deserts in 500-mile stretches."

When asked about the number of tourists on the road, he said that west of the Mississippi it was almost impossible to get hotel or tourist home accommodations, and twice they had to sleep in their car. No one would take reservations, it was simply a case of "first come, first served." In the east, however, accommodations could be obtained easily.

Going out on the Lincoln highway and returning on the National Pike, the trip included a visit to Yellowstone Park, the Continental Divide, Pike's Peak, a short stay with Mr. Savilisky's brother, Henry, in Davenport, Wash., through Oregon to the northern part of California.

Women's Sport Club Has Annual Summer Party

The annual summer social of the Women's Sport Club was held in the form of an outdoor dinner and card party, Tuesday evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Mrs. Virginia Swick, Mrs. Margaret Diehl and Mrs. Ruth Upchurch won the 500 prizes; and in bridge awards were won by Mrs. Ewald Ruehl, Miss Ann Lottig and Miss Margaret Ruehl.

Mrs. Agnes Hersh, Miss Margaret Stewart and Mrs. Upchurch formed the committee of arrangements. Activities will be resumed in September.

Plan Picnic, Aug. 15

The Mapleside Homemakers Club formulated plans for a picnic and named chairmen for the fair exhibit at the meeting earlier in the week at the home of Mrs E. V. Van Meter, Michigan avenue.

The picnic will be held August 15 at Constitution park, beginning at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Brotemarkle appointed Mrs. S. E. Hudson and Mrs. Chester Shaffer exhibit chairmen. Reports on the WRSC were given by Mrs. Harry Morin and Mrs. James R. Smith. At the conclusion of the program Miss Elizabeth Van Meter assisted her mother in serving refreshments.

Keyser City Judge Quashes Warrants In Hamilton Case

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., July 17 — Warrants sworn out against Leroy W. Hamilton, about 30, manager of the Sunspot Bottling Company here, and Miss Bernice Heldrich, Keyser, on charges of resisting arrest and interfering with an arrest, respectively, were quashed by A. A. Jordan, city judge, this evening.

Attorneys for Hamilton and Miss Heldrich, H. G. Shores, Howard Shores and Herndon R. Athey, objected to the wording of the warrants. City Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., upheld their objection and informed Jordan he would have to withdraw the warrants.

Swadley said he will decide today whether new warrants with the same charges but with different wording will be prepared, or whether the case will be brought before circuit court.

Previously, when the hearing opened in police court this evening, the attorneys filed an affidavit stating that Jordan was not eligible to hear the case, but Swadley upheld Jordan's eligibility.

The case resulted from an altercation early this morning between Hamilton and Officer Fred L. Kesner, who was appointed to the Keyser police force Tuesday.

According to Officer Kesner, Hamilton and Miss Heldrich were seated in Hamilton's car on South Main street when the officer ordered Hamilton to move the car, which was on the wrong side of the street.

The officer said Hamilton refused and grabbed him, pulling him toward the car. A blackjack was knocked from the officer's hand when he attempted to subdue Hamilton, he reported, and at the police station Hamilton broke loose and struck Officer Kesner in the eye, it was stated.

Hamilton reported that Officer Kesner beat him with the blackjack during the argument on the street, but the officer denied this report.

Cash bonds of $50 and $35, furnished by Hamilton and Miss Heldrich pending the hearing, were returned to them this evening, Jordan said.

Husband Sues Lodge

Indicating that $5,000 damages would be asked, Herndon B. Athey, Keyser attorney, has filed a suit by titling in Mineral county circuit court for W. W. Long, Jr., against the Keyser lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Long, a road worker who lives in Keyser, seeks damages for "loss of my wife's services," the attorney said, charging that his wife, employed in the Moose home as a barmaid, refused to quit the job and keep house for him.

After the action was filed by Long against the Moose lodge, his wife filed suit for a divorce, but no hearing has been held in the case.

served in the army for about three years. He resumed the trucking job here in May after he was discharged from service. He told Harris his home is in Orleans Crossroads, W. Va.

The driver was alone when the accident occurred but told Harris that he has a helper several days a week and that on those occasions both look out to see that the way is clear.

Four Brothers Survive

Besides his parents, the child is survived by four brothers, First Sgt. Amos Brown, with the army in Germany; Arthur C. Brown, Jr., with the Marks Brothers shows, and James Franklin, 7, and Edwin Earl, 30 months, both at home.

Four sisters, Mrs. Laura Klink, Salisbury, Pa.; Irene, 16, at home; Dolores Lola, 12, and Shirley Leona Marie Brown, 10, all at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex W. Brown, 1314 Lafayette avenue, also survive.

The body is at the Stein funeral home.

32 Die In Plane Crash At Ecuador

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador, July 17 (AP)—Thirty-two occupants of an Andean Airlines plane met death today when the ship crashed and burned while trying to land at Cuenca, Ecuador.

Thirty passengers and company employes, including Pilot Darwin Day, Yonkers, N. Y., and Co-Pilot Wayne Miller, Cheyenne, Wyo., died in the flaming wreckage. Two other passengers died later in a hospital.

All the passengers were Ecuadoreans.

The plane was making a regular run from Guayaquil to Cuenca. Witnesses said the pilot overshot the landing field and attempted to gain altitude for another try. He failed to clear a small hill, however, and smashed into trees. The plane caught fire immediately.

Among those killed was Neil Miller, 11-year-old son of the co-pilot, who was taken by his father on the flight to see Cuenca for the first time. The wives and families of both Day and Miller arrived from July 11 in a special plane which brought airline personnel to Ecuador.

Unemployment

will undertake a "comprehensive survey" of the Maryland system of jobless benefits.

The appointment of investigators, Governor O'Conor said, "marks the first action of this kind by any state in the union, according to information received from the Social Security board in Washington."

These two moves are part of a threefold analysis of the Maryland unemployment compensation.

Other measures initiated by the chief executive were a request to the governors conference that it study the federal unemployment compensation act with a view to improvement, and a request to the Maryland Legislative Council for a study of the state's law "to determine if amendments are necessary."

Will Review Procedure

The governor said he instituted negotiations with the public administration service—whose headquarters are in Chicago — several weeks ago and that the group was engaged to undertake "immediately" the following study:

1. A general review of the organization and administrative structure of the Maryland board.

2. An analysis and review of Maryland procedure for handling benefit claims, "with particular attention to the controls used to insure compliance with the law and to the adequacy of accounting procedures."

3. A study of the effectiveness of the management services including personnel administration, internal budgeting and accounting, work planning and assignment of work.

The public administration service, Governor O'Conor declared, would report to him on its findings which he asked be submitted by the middle of August.

"This will be done," he said, "although it required extraordinary efforts on the part of the concern to meet my request" of reporting by that time.

Regarding the special investigators, the chief executive said:

"I made a special request that these investigators be authorized by Washington, and approval has been received by Russell S. Davis, chairman of the Maryland board.

Wants All The Facts

"While this is a departure from the setup which is in effect in the various states, I think it is justified. My purpose is to have all the facts disclosed so that the public can know whether abuses have occurred and for the further reason that any improper cases can be eliminated."

The investigators, he explained, will be appointed from merit system lists and "will be at work without delay."

Governor O'Conor said he had received "further word" from governor Millard F. Caldwell, of Florida, chairman of the Governors' conference, that the group's executive committee will take up the question of proposed modification of the Federal Unemployment Compensation law.

"I have requested Governor Caldwell to institute this action," he said, "because I have believed that a reduction in the federal tax is justified and because, in my opinion, other modifications in the federal law should be made."

He declared "every assistance" would be given to the legislative council in its study of the Maryland law, and state officials, records, and other data needed by the legislators "will be made available to them by my orders."

indicated "an enthusiastic response" to the UAW's call Tuesday for the ban on meat purchases.

Spokesmen for the Detroit Retail Meat Merchants Association said the slowdown in buying became noticeable even before the UAW's official declaration that meat was the No. 1 target of its hold-the-price-line campaign.

Sidney Black, president of the association, said the slowdown "was quite a bit more definite" today and scattered reports from meat merchants indicated their meat sales were way below par.

Fish Sales Up

Some retailers reported they were doing a land-office business in spaghetti, macaroni and fish departments.

UAW Public Relations men insisted that little meat would be found on the tables of the auto workers this weekend.

Mrs. Walter P. Reuther, wife of the UAW leader, said her husband is in Washington for a CIO meeting but that he probably will be home in time to eat his share of the corned beef-hash. His menu for the rest of the week is going to include macaroni, cheese and a pound of bacon that Mrs. Reuther showed newsmen in her home today.

She said the bacon was bought before OPA controls went off.

Mrs. Leonard — whose husband is also out of town on UAW business — disclosed that her domestic troubles weren't limited to shopping. She told newsmen that Leonard, who is leading the UAW's fight against rent boosts, got a little notice in the mail today.

She said the rent has "no bona

in increasing prices to make up the salary differences.

Prices have to be controlled, Fred Perry, manager of the Liberty theater said. "It isn't too noticeable around here just yet, but in the larger cities many prices are out of reason."

Mrs. Lulia Backer, negress, Eckhart Mines, "thinks it's terrible. The price of butter is out of reach."

Situation Termed Confusing

One man contacted on Baltimore street did want to see the country given a fair chance to pull out of the present delimma without government legislation, but added that OPA should be restored in 60 days if things don't straighten out. He is John J. Shirocky, Allegany Inn, employed at the Kelly-Springfield tire plant.

One exception to the trend of Cumberland shoppers' thoughts is James O'Neal, blind newsstand operator in the post office building. O'Neal believes "that the manufacturers are entitled to a fair profit on goods. If controls are eliminated entirely production will increase the supply. When this happens, prices will control and adjust themselves."

Mrs. Lee W. Witherup, executive secretary of the local Red Cross, chapter termed the OPA status "very confusing, but I can't help worrying about the people with low incomes and large families. I believe" she said, "there should be some control on necessities and on rents."

A solid backer of OPA is Alvin E. Yates, clerk of Local Draft Board No. 2, "I think," Yates said, "OPA should be retained and strictly enforced until the manufacturer and producer are sending enough of everything to the consumer to make controls unnecessary."

Of all those people interviewed, few failed to specify that a rent ceiling was especially necessary. One of the outstanding statements was made by Clifton L. Croker, Western Maryland engineer. "There are too many gullable landlords," Croker said, "OPA rent control should be continued, if all else fails, but I favor continuation of all price ceilings."

Mrs. William E. Lehman, Jr., 817 Schriver avenue, whose husband is employed at the Celanese says "prices are increasing rapidly, I think OPA should be kept on."

Modified Bill Suggested

A modified OPA bill is what Edward Hadra, 515 Rose Hill avenue thinks is needed. The price of meat and dairy products needs some control as do the rent prices," he says. "It is true that these commodities seem to be a little more plentiful since OPA was discontinued, but the prices still make them out of reach of the average working man."

Clarence H. Stein, 817 Windsor road, favors the continuation of OPA but believes ceilings should be taken off products when better prices might bring increased production. He also advocated a reasonable rent control which would make allowances for increases in taxes, fuel and overhead.

C. E. Stutzman, business manager of Local 435, Teamsters Union feels that unless something is done about OPA unions must destroy existing contracts. "Necessities of life," says Stutzman, "have increased tremendously the last few weeks and there is no sign of stopping. I cannot see why a Congress which approved the British loan can object to paying food subsidies."

John E. Sherry, desk sergeant on the city police force said "I believe it was the worst thing possible when the OPA was dropped. All of the benefits from the recent wage increase granted to city employes have been lost through increases in prices."

Ralph C. Beard, Valley road, president of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, said "it is quite evident that since price control has been removed there has been a mad scramble for price increases. Unless there is some control on prices we are headed for serious inflation.

The interviews were conducted by the entire News staff as they covered their beats yesterday in an effort to get opinions of persons from all walks of life and varied occupations. Many of the persons were stopped in the downtown shopping district as they made purchases, others were contacted by phone when their names werep icked from the directory at random.

divided between the department of forests and parks and the game commission.

Endorsed By Vaughn

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn has given his wholehearted indorsement to the program which would provide more game for hunters as it progresses, Wilson said.

He added that the rabbit is the backbone of the small game hunters' sport, but that a condition has existed where there are more hunters and less game yearly.

For the past decade the Pennsylvania game commission has been trapping thousands of rabbits from hundreds of areas like watersheds, penal institution areas and military depots and reservations. Hundreds of similar areas exist in Maryland and it is from these places also that the game commission hopes to trap rabbits, so that hunters will have more rabbits to hunt.

No Late Developments

The investigation of the Heirens case has produced no major developments since Tuohy announced yesterday that a former soldier had identified Heirens as a youth he saw carrying a paper bag a block from the Degnan home at about the time the 6 year old girl was kidnaped Jan. 7.

The prosecutor said he would seek murder indictments against Heirens in the Degnan case and the lipstick slaying Dec. 10 of Frances Brown, 33-year-old former WAVE. He said he needed more time to decide what action to take in the fatal stabbing of Mrs. Josephine Ross, 43 year old widow, June 5, 1945.

Heirens, held on 29 criminal charges of robbery, burglary and assault, has not been charged with any of the three slayings. He has denied published reports of a confession. Tuohy and the youth's attorney also denied reports he had confessed.

The FBI has confirmed police findings that a fingerprint and two palm prints found on the Degnan kidnap note and a fingerprint found on the bathroom door of the Brown one of them to May. She could not identify the other two.

May Visited

Tells Of Visits

She said that Freeman left the office a short time later, telling her that he was going to see May.

Mrs. Hall said that May had visited the sales office on one occasion after Sarelas, answering a telephone inquiry on Freeman's whereabouts, had told May that "Joe Freeman is in New York, making money for us."

Sarelas, on the witness stand yesterday, had acknowledged making such a response, and told the committee that he got "red all over" when he realized the implications of his remark.

It was after that occasion, declared Mrs. Hall, that May cautioned office officials to guard their telephone conversations. She added that the Kentucky legislator "very carefully came at 6:30 p. m., when all the offices were closed. I had the feeling that no one was supposed to know he was there."

Mrs. Hall declared that Sarelas had informed her that Albert Jacobson, former acting chief of the chemical warfare service legal division, was being paid $20,000 a year "by the Garssons."

Henry Garsson and Murray Garsson, brothers, were among the promoters and officials of the combine. Murray Garsson, listed by the FBI as a one-time associate of gangster Dutch Schultz; is in Cuba claiming ill health. Henry Garsson, a former internal revenue employe who was dismissed after being acquitted on a bribery charge, refused to waive constitutional protection against being required to testify in a case which might incriminate or degrade him.

"I assume," said Mrs. Hall "that Jacobson was doing something in the War department that was worth [illegible] the Garssons."

WAR PROFITS PROBE WITNESS

MRS. ELEANOR HALL, former secretary in the Washington office of the Erie Basin-Batavia Metal munitions combine, told the Mead committee in Washington yesterday that she heard Rep. Andrew J. May (D-Ky.) ask an official of the combine, "What about that $3,000?" during a telephone conversation. (See story on Page 1).

Wrecked Automobile Arouses Interest

WESTERNPORT, July 17 — Although state police said they received no report, there was considerable interest in Westernport tonight over an accident on the Westernport-McCoole road in which an automobile was badly damaged but no one apparently was hurt.

Reports indicated the car was headed toward Westernport when it struck a culvert, which tore off the rear axle and wheels, damaged upholstering and tore off a door, a fender and license tag.

Passersby reported seeing the license tag, issued by West Virginia, the door and fender lying on the culvert.

The driver of the car was reported to have gotten a ride to Westernport where he crossed the Potomac river to West Virginia.

of any of the listed manufactured products, he has the choice of either increasing his sales or curtailing production," Small explained.

To Control Essential Supplies

The action is one of the measures intended by CPA to keep intact its controls over the flow of essential supplies should price control not be restored. The first, an order forbidding any seller from quoting a higher price to a priority holder than to any other buyer, was issued two weeks ago.

Besides the goods named, the new anti-withholding order covers bed springs, mattresses, metal beds, other bedding products; galvanized ware; miscellaneous electrical appliances; and the following building materials: asphalt and tarred roofing; building board made from woodpulp, pressed paper, or vegetable fibers; gypsum board; gypsum lath; metal windows; cast iron soil pipe; metal plastering base; insect screen cloth.

The materials and parts which must be held to "minimum practicable working inventory" limits—and which previously were exempt from such limits—include:

Machine tools, cranes and hoists, capital equipment, abrasive products, ball and roller bearings, bending machines for pipe or plate, certain chains, files and rasps, forging machines, foundry machinery, metal melting furnaces, gauges and precision measuring tools, heat treating equipment, machine tool and metal working attachments, mechanics' hand service tools, metal cutting tools, portable metal working machines and tools, metal working presses, pipe fittings, piping accessories, rolling mill stands, power-driven sheers and punches, valve hand wheels, goggle valves, piping system valves, wire drawing machinery, and jigs, dies and fixtures.

supremacy" issue, plus the fact that negroes—an estimated 100,000 of them—voted for the first time in a Georgia primary had shifted the nation's political spotlight to Georgia from Montana where Sen. Burton K. Wheeler conceded defeat in Tuesday's primary.

Another former Georgia governor, E. D. Rivers, and Hoke O'Kelley, veteran of two world wars, were running far behind Talmadge and Rivers in the four-man Democratic gubernatorial race. Democratic nomination is tantamount to election in Georgia.

On the basis of the early returns, Talmadge went on the radio and told his listeners the contest was "all over but the shouting" he had promised, if elected, to restore the state's "white primary," from which negroes were barred.

It was the United States Supreme Court which had ruled out the "white primary" early this year, thus paving the way for Georgia negroes to vote for the first time yesterday.

fall, one at Towson, and one for negro students at Bowie.

He would not name a specific figure in his declaration that teachers should have higher pay. The present range, he said, is from $1,500 to $2,250 annually.

Many of his proposals were concerned with providing war veterans with greater education opportunities. That is one reason for more junior colleges, he declared. It is also the reason he wants more teachers and more dormitory space at present colleges.

"There are," he said, "between four and six thousand veterans in the state who want to go to college and who will not be able to go this fall because colleges cannot accommodate them."

Discusses Retirement Plan

One purpose of the high school-equivalent examination is to help veterans meet college entrance requirements although they were unable to finish high school, Dr. Pullen said the examination compiled by the state department of education has been given about 200 students. More than half passed and got diplomas.

Concerning amendment of retirement provisions, Dr. Pullen pointed out a teacher could serve 15 years in Baltimore City schools and then lose all accrued pension benefits merely by moving to Baltimore county schools.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, president of the university, entertained the delegates at a reception this afternoon. They also heard an address on leadership qualities by Mrs. Newton P. Leonard, Providence, R. I., a vice president of the National Congress of Parents and teachers.

The three-day program concludes tomorrow with a report on President's Truman's national highway safety program.

Russians Declare

Berlin commander, Col. Eyster said.

Cobin, of New York, and Wyatt, of Oklahoma City, disappeared after they were seen in a North Berlin railroad station boarding a train for Oranienburg, 20 miles north of Berlin in the Russian zone. It had been believed that the two were being held by the Russians against the return of the three Soviet soldiers—two officers and a driver—picked up in civilian clothes in the American zone.

Berlin reports yesterday said that Gen. M. Drativin, Russian military governor in occupied Germany, advised Gen. Keating that the Russians were "collecting data" on Cobin and Wyatt in the neighborhood of Oranienburg.

No Progress Made

Intelligence officers said it was rumored that Cobin was gathering material for a book and had made several previous trips into Oranienburg, where during the war the Nazis maintained a notorious concentration camp which the Russians now are said to be using as an internment camp.

In Berlin, the senior security officer earlier this afternoon reported no progress whatever in the case other than a promise from the Russians several days ago that they would "investigate" the disappearance of Cobin and Wyatt.

"It's quite likely, though, before they are released the Russians may demand some 'quid pro quo,'" the officer said. "I can't say officially but I think we may be holding some more Russian personnel down the line somewhere in our occupation zone."

The Russians yesterday released to American authorities Warrant Officer Samuel L. Harrison, of San Antonio, Tex., and his wife, Helen, who had been held in the Soviet zone for 15 days for entering without a permit.

and technical workers of the Industrial Collieries Corporation, Johnstown, Pa., a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel Corporation. The latter agreement covered only the corporation's employes in its general office.

Under the pacts, the J. and L. supervisory workers affected were given wage increases of $1.85 a day plus overtime after 40 hours. These terms are retroactive to May 22, 1946.

Includes 18½ Cent Increase

In the case of the J. and L. and Industrial Colleries clerical and technical workers, also represented by the same union, the same 18½ cent hourly pay increase and other awards contained in the recent government-UMA agreement covering miners were granted.

The agreement covering the J. and L. supervisory workers covers the Vesta No. 4, 5 and 6 and Shannopin mines of the corporation at California, Pa.

This agreement excludes those supervisory workers presently described as "assistant mine foremen" pending a decision by the national labor relations board on whether they may be unionized.

The NLRB had ruled that the union was a proper bargaining agent for other supervisory workers at the four mines. However this ruling was disputed by the J. and L. Corporation which recently had been seeking to prevent, through court action, any government-union agreement such as that completed today pending a review of NLRB's finding in the courts.

In this connection Admiral Moreell, as part of the pact with the union, agreed that if the NLRB ruling should be set aside his agreement with the union would be nullified.

The union agreed to file with NLRB a charge of refusal to bargain against the J. and L. corporation "to the end that the company may have an opportunity to obtain a final judicial determination" of the supervisory question in the courts.

The clause covering this union stipulation in the agreement said that Admiral Moreell could require this charge to be filed by Aug. 25, 1946.

It was explained at the interior department that this clause was included in the agreement for use in event J. and L. declines to make the contract effective.

Break Off Negotiations

Soft coal operators have broken off negotiations with the government and the UMW on the knotty supervisory issue and thereby reduced the prospect for early return of the mines to their owners.

John C. Gall, attorney for J. and L. disclosed this today at a news conference in which he announced new federal court action seeking to restrain the government from making an agreement with UMW covering supervisors.

Admiral Moreell has been presiding over closed-door conferences among government, union and operator representatives striving to win an overall agreement on the foremen's question. Gall said these discussions collapsed last Friday when it became evident that "no amicable agreement could be reached."

The mines have been under federal operation since late May. After the seizure UMW members broke their long strike and returned to work in early July when the government and UMW Chief John L. Lewis reached an agreement on issues involved in the strike.

Since then, the question as to when the mines will be returned to their owners has largely hinged on whether the operators and Lewis could agree on a contract and on settlement of the supervisory issue.

Appeals To Court

Gall asked the federal court of appeals for the District of Columbia to prevent Secretary of the Interior Krug, Moreell and Lewis from entering into any agreement covering supervisory workers at the J. and L. Mines, a case regarded as a test for the soft coal industry.

J. and L. also appealed from a federal district court decision of two weeks ago which held that the government now holds all the rights of a proprietor and is free to enter into agreements with Lewis on the supervisors.

The steel corporation contended in its court actions today that the government, in accepting as an "order" NLRB's certification of UMW for bargaining purposes, was blocking the company's rights to challenge the NLRB action in the courts.

Gall said that the government has until Tuesday night to file an answer on the J. and L. plea for a stay order against Krug and Moreell.

Couple Drives 8,000 Miles In Three Weeks

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Savilisky Ridgeley, W. Va., have returned home and are enthusiastic about their 8,000-mile motor trip, across the country in three weeks. Mr. Savilisky reports a "wonderful time, without any car or tire trouble, although they crossed four deserts in 500-mile stretches."

When asked about the number of tourists on the road, he said that west of the Mississippi it was almost impossible to get hotel or tourist home accommodations, and twice they had to sleep in their car. No one would take reservations, it was simply a case of "first come, first served." In the east, however, accommodations could be obtained easily.

Going out on the Lincoln highway and returning on the National Pike, the trip included a visit to Yellowstone Park, the Continental Divide, Pike's Peak, a short stay with Mr. Savilisky's brother, Henry, in Davenport, Wash., through Oregon to the northern part of California.

Plan Picnic, Aug. 15

The Mapleside Homemakers Club formulated plans for a picnic and named chairmen for the fair exhibit at the meeting earlier in the week at the home of Mrs E. V. Van Meter, Michigan avenue.

The picnic will be held August 15 at Constitution park, beginning at 5 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Brotemarkle appointed Mrs. S. E. Hudson and Mrs. Chester Shaffer exhibit chairmen. Reports on the WRSC were given by Mrs. Harry Morin and Mrs. James R. Smith. At the conclusion of the program Miss Elizabeth Van Meter assisted her mother in serving refreshments.

Keyser City Judge Quashes Warrants In Hamilton Case

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., July 17 — Warrants sworn out against Leroy W. Hamilton, about 30, manager of the Sunspot Bottling Company here, and Miss Bernice Heldrich, Keyser, on charges of resisting arrest and interfering with an arrest, respectively, were quashed by A. A. Jordan, city judge, this evening.

Attorneys for Hamilton and Miss Heldrich, H. G. Shores, Howard Shores and Herndon R. Athey, objected to the wording of the warrants. City Attorney James H. Swadley, Jr., upheld their objection and informed Jordan he would have to withdraw the warrants.

Swadley said he will decide today whether new warrants with the same charges but with different wording will be prepared, or whether the case will be brought before circuit court.

Previously, when the hearing opened in police court this evening, the attorneys filed an affidavit stating that Jordan was not eligible to hear the case, but Swadley upheld Jordan's eligibility.

The case resulted from an altercation early this morning between Hamilton and Officer Fred L. Kesner, who was appointed to the Keyser police force Tuesday.

According to Officer Kesner, Hamilton and Miss Heldrich were seated in Hamilton's car on South Main street when the officer ordered Hamilton to move the car, which was on the wrong side of the street.

The officer said Hamilton refused and grabbed him, pulling him toward the car. A blackjack was knocked from the officer's hand when he attempted to subdue Hamilton, he reported, and at the police station Hamilton broke loose and struck Officer Kesner in the eye, it was stated.

Hamilton reported that Officer Kesner beat him with the blackjack during the argument on the street, but the officer denied this report.

Cash bonds of $50 and $35, furnished by Hamilton and Miss Heldrich pending the hearing, were returned to them this evening, Jordan said.

Husband Sues Lodge

Indicating that $5,000 damages would be asked, Herndon B. Athey, Keyser attorney, has filed a suit by titling in Mineral county circuit court for W. W. Long, Jr., against the Keyser lodge of the Loyal Order of Moose.

Long, a road worker who lives in Keyser, seeks damages for "loss of my wife's services," the attorney said, charging that his wife, employed in the Moose home as a barmaid, refused to quit the job and keep house for him.

After the action was filed by Long against the Moose lodge, his wife filed suit for a divorce, but no hearing has been held in the case.

served in the army for about three years. He resumed the trucking job here in May after he was discharged from service. He told Harris his home is in Orleans Crossroads, W. Va.

The driver was alone when the accident occurred but told Harris that he has a helper several days a week and that on those occasions both look out to see that the way is clear.

Four Brothers Survive

Besides his parents, the child is survived by four brothers, First Sgt. Amos Brown, with the army in Germany; Arthur C. Brown, Jr., with the Marks Brothers shows, and James Franklin, 7, and Edwin Earl, 30 months, both at home.

Four sisters, Mrs. Laura Klink, Salisbury, Pa.; Irene, 16, at home; Dolores Lola, 12, and Shirley Leona Marie Brown, 10, all at home, and his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex W. Brown, 1314 Lafayette avenue, also survive.

The body is at the Stein funeral home.

High School Girl Is Seeking Advice In Love Affairs

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 15, and very much in love with a boy of 17. His boy friend told me that he said he was in love with me, but he was hurt once before and is afraid that if he lets me know of the way he feels, I might change my mind and go out with someone else.

I can't get myself to go out with other boys because of the way I feel toward him. I think he knows how I feel, although I don't chase after him. I would be deeply grateful for any advice you could give me.

"IRISH."

If you think this boy knows that you admire him and would like to be good friends with him, then I think the next move is up to him.

It is too bad that people have to get disappointed in others, as you say this boy has been in some girl, but one has to be big enough to realize that just because a few people are unreliable, it doesn't mean that everybody is. For the happy truth is that most people are trustworthy and mean to do the right thing.

When you are young, and have not yet had enough experience to understand this, it is always difficult to believe it. And so, until time has had an opportunity to prove it, you have to be sporting enough to take another chance on someone else, even though you feel timid about doing so. Life wouldn't be much fun, and you wouldn't be a very courageous person, if, at 17 you shut yourself away from everybody because you were afraid of being hurt. Everybody gets hurt in life, from time to time, but they don't let it make hemits of them.

Perhaps, if you're patient, and always considerate with this boy, he'll finally confide in you and you'll get a chance to tell him of these things.

Question:— Whose idea was it to add Vitamin D to milk?

Answer:— The doctors started it, Mrs. Smith — because only 7 out of 86 commonly eaten foods contain Vitamin D. But, one quart of our Vitamin D milk provides all the "D" you need, plus many other nourishing food factors.

High School Girl Is Seeking Advice In Love Affairs

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 15, and very much in love with a boy of 17. His boy friend told me that he said he was in love with me, but he was hurt once before and is afraid that if he lets me know of the way he feels, I might change my mind and go out with someone else.

I can't get myself to go out with other boys because of the way I feel toward him. I think he knows how I feel, although I don't chase after him. I would be deeply grateful for any advice you could give me.

"IRISH."

If you think this boy knows that you admire him and would like to be good friends with him, then I think the next move is up to him.

It is too bad that people have to get disappointed in others, as you say this boy has been in some girl, but one has to be big enough to realize that just because a few people are unreliable, it doesn't mean that everybody is. For the happy truth is that most people are trustworthy and mean to do the right thing.

When you are young, and have not yet had enough experience to understand this, it is always difficult to believe it. And so, until time has had an opportunity to prove it, you have to be sporting enough to take another chance on someone else, even though you feel timid about doing so. Life wouldn't be much fun, and you wouldn't be a very courageous person, if, at 17 you shut yourself away from everybody because you were afraid of being hurt. Everybody gets hurt in life, from time to time, but they don't let it make hemits of them.

Perhaps, if you're patient, and always considerate with this boy, he'll finally confide in you and you'll get a chance to tell him of these things.

Stocks Get Back On Their Feet With Steels Leading The Way

By VICTOR EUBANK

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP) — Stocks generally got back on their feet in today's market with steels leading a quiet rally of industrials and notably "thin" special issues executing wide jumps.

Reinstatement of bids in most cases was attributed by brokers to the belief the list was entitled to a technical comeback after the sharp drop of the preceding four sessions. Numerous customers, however, held aloof pending settlement of the price control controversy. Caution also still was based on growing consumers, resistance to rising living costs, tightening money rates and some skepticism over the earnings outlook.

Transfers of 920,000 shares compared with 1,180,000 Tuesday.

American Woolen Preferred climbed about 12 points and the common 6 at the best following stockholders' approval of a recapitalization plan. The former ended up 9¾ at $175.75 and the latter 3½ at $59.50. Eastman Kodak added 5½ at $236 on 400 shares. American Distilling, in the wake of an increased extra dividend, lacked on 2 with transactions of only 600 shares.

Montgomery Ward, ex-rights, suffered an early stumble but revived and ended up ⅝ at $76.87.

Among forward Curb movers were Grayson-Robinson, Polaris Mining, Transwestern Oil, Babcock and Wilcox and American Cyanamid. Turnover here was 330,000 shares versus 470,000 yesterday.

Prices for corporate and United States government bonds followed a narrow trail today as the investment market watched some $200,000,000 in new securities go on sale for the first time.

American Telephone and Telegraph company led the list with a $125,000,000 sale of debentures. The issue was well received, according to talk among underwriters, with more than three-quarters distributed.

Some others of the new, and much smaller, issues were completely sold out.

In the stock market exchange trading interest centered on bonds of railroads in reorganization. It was not a one-way market, however, and minus signs were scattered liberally at the close.

Finishing higher were Baltimore and Ohio convertible at 69⅝, Alton 3s at 54½, Monon Incomes at 74, St. Paul Convertible at 78½, Northwestern 4½s at 86⅝, Rock Island refunding 4s at 58½, and Missouri Pacific "F" 5s at 94½.

Losers included Southern Railway Consolidated 5s at 131, Boston and Maine 4½s at 63½, Rock Island Convertibles at 34⅝, Great Northern 2⅝s at 90⅞, and International Great Northern "B" 5s at 71.

In the over-the counter market United States governments slipped a little in slow turnover. The victory loan 2½s of December dipped 3-32 to 103 9-32 bid.

Sales of $3,590,000 compared with $3,890,000 Tuesday.

Chicago Grain Prices

CHICAGO, July 17 (AP)—Extreme losses which at one time ranged to more than 4 cents in corn were erased in last-minute short-covering today, but the market's undertone was weak. Wide price swings resulted from the small turnover. Oats closed slightly lower.

Weakness was ascribed to price reductions in the cash market, heavier offerings of grain by country interests, large arrivals of grain at primary markets and the possibility that a Senate-House conference on the revived OPA bill would vote against grain decontrols.

Torn Ligaments May Be Dangerous Doctor Warns

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

When you come to the doctor suffering from a "sprained ankle," he thinks first, not of the ankle itself, but of the ligaments which hold this joint together, because these are the structures most often damaged in this kind of accident.

Thus, a sprained ankle usually means tearing of some of the ligament fibres and stretching of others by sudden wrenching.

When this happens, there are tenderness over the joint, some swelling, and bleeding into the tissues. Movement of the joint which causes further stretching of the ligament will be painful.

Sprain Heals

As a general rule, a sprain heals without affecting the length of the ligament. Any disability which occurs after a sprain of the ankle is due to the formation of scar tissue within the joint. Hence in treating sprains, there should be some temporary support during the early stages, soon followed by active movements so as to keep scar tissue from forming, and at the same time keep any further strain from being put on the ligaments until all the fibres heal.

In recent times, the treatment which is often used is the injecting of some pain-relieving substance into the sprained area, which will get rid of the pain and allow more early return to full movement.

When the fibres of a ligament are completely torn across, the ligament is said to be ruptured. In such cases there are a great deal of pain and swelling of the joint and much bleeding into the tissues. In order to make a definite diagnosis, some pain-deadening substance may be injected and then, by forcibly stretching the joint it will be found that the joint can be moved further than normally, which means that the ligaments have been torn and are not holding the joints in place.

The treatment in such cases consists of putting on a cast for a period of 8 to 10 weeks, to keep the joint from being moved. In many instances, this treatment will permit healing to take place. If the torn ligaments are widely separated, it may be necessary to sew them together in order to bring about healing.

Torn Ligaments May Be Dangerous Doctor Warns

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

When you come to the doctor suffering from a "sprained ankle," he thinks first, not of the ankle itself, but of the ligaments which hold this joint together, because these are the structures most often damaged in this kind of accident.

Thus, a sprained ankle usually means tearing of some of the ligament fibres and stretching of others by sudden wrenching.

When this happens, there are tenderness over the joint, some swelling, and bleeding into the tissues. Movement of the joint which causes further stretching of the ligament will be painful.

Sprain Heals

As a general rule, a sprain heals without affecting the length of the ligament. Any disability which occurs after a sprain of the ankle is due to the formation of scar tissue within the joint. Hence in treating sprains, there should be some temporary support during the early stages, soon followed by active movements so as to keep scar tissue from forming, and at the same time keep any further strain from being put on the ligaments until all the fibres heal.

In recent times, the treatment which is often used is the injecting of some pain-relieving substance into the sprained area, which will get rid of the pain and allow more early return to full movement.

When the fibres of a ligament are completely torn across, the ligament is said to be ruptured. In such cases there are a great deal of pain and swelling of the joint and much bleeding into the tissues. In order to make a definite diagnosis, some pain-deadening substance may be injected and then, by forcibly stretching the joint it will be found that the joint can be moved further than normally, which means that the ligaments have been torn and are not holding the joints in place.

The treatment in such cases consists of putting on a cast for a period of 8 to 10 weeks, to keep the joint from being moved. In many instances, this treatment will permit healing to take place. If the torn ligaments are widely separated, it may be necessary to sew them together in order to bring about healing.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

By DOROTHY MANNERS

HOLLYWOOD, July 17—Dennis Morgan fans, worried that his ruptured ear drum might interfere with his singing, may relax. Next on tap for Dennis at Warners is "My Wild Irish Rose", the Chauncey Olcott story based on the life and career of the late Irish singer. Morgan "gives" with ten of Olcott's best loved songs, including the title number, which should prove that his injured hearing has not impaired his vocal pitch. When you come to think of it, Frank Sinatra has been doing all right with a punctured ear drum he's had for years.

The new angle on this picture, previously announced for Morgan, is that Alexis Smith plays the femme lead, for a gal who doesn't do any warbling herself. Alexis certainly gets in the musicals. She's with Cary Grant in "Night and Day"—and now this. David Butler directs, William Jacobs produces and Peter Milne authored the Olcott original.

Just before taking off for New York to join Bill Le Baron in launching "Carnegie Hall", Boris Morros signed Leopold Stokowski to lead the New York philharmonic in the movie. Gloria Vanderbilt's mate makes the third contemporary conductor signed for this picture—the others being Koussevitsky and Walter Bruno. Getting out of the music department—William Prince was just pacted for the romantic lead opposite Martha O'Driscoll and soon the entire "story" cast takes off to join the long list of music artists "speciality spotted" into "Carnegie Hall". Entire filming takes place in New York.

Couldn't make the "Canyon Passage" premiere jaunt to Portland, Oregon, because it took two days—but eyewitness reports are that it was the rootin' tootinest of all out of town events. Hooted by Walter Wanger and stage managed by Elsa Maxwell, it was a yowling success that had Portland pop-eyed. Ten bands kept things jiving from start to finish and 250 horsemen participated in the torch light parade. Somewhere along the line the governor of Oregon presented Walter Wanger with a scroll and a cake and some people even got around to looking at "Canyon Passage"—the reason for the trip.

—o—

While on the subject of the "Canyon Passage" expedition, our private spy reports that he ran into Mayo Methot, the ex-Mrs. Humphrey Bogart. She lives in Portland with her mother, is very happy and looks wonderful. "Mayo doesn't miss Hollywood," says our friend, "and lest anyone is haboring a mistaken impression—not a single torch lighting up the torch light parade was her's. She talks naturally and interestedly of Bogey—but he's a closed chapter in her life."

—o—

The next time I pick on Dane Clark for his private attire, I hope I get a letter as amusing as the following: "Your comment re my untidiness was much appreciated, believe me. I shall henceforth watch my Ps and Qs, also my shirt tails and dungarees, more carefully, the salesman at Jerry Rothchild's assured me that this particular shirt could be worn in or out of the trousers. 'It's very smart' quothe he. Looks like I wuz robbed. However, from now on—shirt tail's in."

—o—

Hollywood in shorts: It's a boy, born Sunday, for the Harry Ritzes; is everything okay with Helen Gilbert and her bridegroom, Victor, the restaurant man? I'm just asking; Tom Waring, Fred's brother, says "Henry V" is now known around New York as "Hank Sank" (cing); all you localities who have always been dying to see Chester Morris, Edgar Bergen, Peter Godrey and other star magicians perform their stuff get a chance plus the nights of July 26 and 27 at "The Stars of Magic" show at the Wilshire Ebell theater. In addition to Chester and Edgar, Blackstone, the noted trickster will also be on hand to pull rabbits out of hats; give Harpo Marx, who wasn't even invited a great big hand for bringing his harp over to the John Considines the other afternoon when he heard they were entertaining 18 blind vets. Harpo played for hours for a completely enchanted audience and when it was time to leave the men insisted on helping him carry the harp to his home a couple of blocks away; Marie McDonald with Helmut Dantine attracting attention at the Beverly Tropics; a wire from Mrs. J. D. Cahn, president of Associated Womens Clubs of New York, states: 'Associated Womens Clubs declares boycott against George Sanders and 'Del Amí' following receipt of report from Los Angeles chapter headed by a committee consisted of Mrs. Walter P Story and Mrs. Mary de Solares . . . insist our members boycott the film and Mr. Sanders . . . this savage criticism of women must be stopped . . . this intent has been forwarded to producer's offices . . ." California's Governor Earl Warren has been presented with a solid gold membership card in the swank California Canada Club which opens soon with a solid gold membership list. This is far and away the luxury play spot of California's beach history; Ida Lupino and Don McGuire a new combo at the Mocambo. That's all today.

HOLLYWOOD, July 17—Dennis Morgan fans, worried that his ruptured ear drum might interfere with his singing, may relax. Next on tap for Dennis at Warners is "My Wild Irish Rose", the Chauncey Olcott story based on the life and career of the late Irish singer. Morgan "gives" with ten of Olcott's best loved songs, including the title number, which should prove that his injured hearing has not impaired his vocal pitch. When you come to think of it, Frank Sinatra has been doing all right with a punctured ear drum he's had for years.

The new angle on this picture, previously announced for Morgan, is that Alexis Smith plays the femme lead, for a gal who doesn't do any warbling herself. Alexis certainly gets in the musicals. She's with Cary Grant in "Night and Day"—and now this. David Butler directs, William Jacobs produces and Peter Milne authored the Olcott original.

Just before taking off for New York to join Bill Le Baron in launching "Carnegie Hall", Boris Morros signed Leopold Stokowski to lead the New York philharmonic in the movie. Gloria Vanderbilt's mate makes the third contemporary conductor signed for this picture—the others being Koussevitsky and Walter Bruno. Getting out of the music department—William Prince was just pacted for the romantic lead opposite Martha O'Driscoll and soon the entire "story" cast takes off to join the long list of music artists "speciality spotted" into "Carnegie Hall". Entire filming takes place in New York.

Couldn't make the "Canyon Passage" premiere jaunt to Portland, Oregon, because it took two days—but eyewitness reports are that it was the rootin' tootinest of all out of town events. Hooted by Walter Wanger and stage managed by Elsa Maxwell, it was a yowling success that had Portland pop-eyed. Ten bands kept things jiving from start to finish and 250 horsemen participated in the torch light parade. Somewhere along the line the governor of Oregon presented Walter Wanger with a scroll and a cake and some people even got around to looking at "Canyon Passage"—the reason for the trip.

While on the subject of the "Canyon Passage" expedition, our private spy reports that he ran into Mayo Methot, the ex-Mrs. Humphrey Bogart. She lives in Portland with her mother, is very happy and looks wonderful. "Mayo doesn't miss Hollywood," says our friend, "and lest anyone is haboring a mistaken impression—not a single torch lighting up the torch light parade was her's. She talks naturally and interestedly of Bogey—but he's a closed chapter in her life."

The next time I pick on Dane Clark for his private attire, I hope I get a letter as amusing as the following: "Your comment re my untidiness was much appreciated, believe me. I shall henceforth watch my Ps and Qs, also my shirt tails and dungarees, more carefully, the salesman at Jerry Rothchild's assured me that this particular shirt could be worn in or out of the trousers. 'It's very smart' quothe he. Looks like I wuz robbed. However, from now on—shirt tail's in."

Hollywood in shorts: It's a boy, born Sunday, for the Harry Ritzes; is everything okay with Helen Gilbert and her bridegroom, Victor, the restaurant man? I'm just asking; Tom Waring, Fred's brother, says "Henry V" is now known around New York as "Hank Sank" (cinq); all you localities who have always been dying to see Chester Morris, Edgar Bergen, Peter Godrey and other star magicians perform their stuff get a chance plus the nights of July 26 and 27 at "The Stars of Magic" show at the Wilshire Ebell theater. In addition to Chester and Edgar, Blackstone, the noted trickster will also be on hand to pull rabbits out of hats; give Harpo Marx, who wasn't even invited a great big hand for bringing his harp over to the John Considines the other afternoon when he heard they were entertaining 18 blind vets. Harpo played for hours for a completely enchanted audience and when it was time to leave the men insisted on helping him carry the harp to his home a couple of blocks away; Marie McDonald with Helmut Dantine attracting attention at the Beverly Tropics; a wire from Mrs. J. D. Cahn, president of Associated Womens Clubs of New York, states: 'Associated Womens Clubs declares boycott against George Sanders and 'Del Ami' following receipt of report from Los Angeles chapter headed by a committee consisted of Mrs. Walter P. Story and Mrs. Mary de Solares . . . insist our members boycott the film and Mr. Sanders . . . this savage criticism of women must be stopped . . . this intent has been forwarded to producer's offices . . ." California's Governor Earl Warren has been presented with a solid gold membership card in the swank California Canada Club which opens soon with a solid gold membership list. This is far and away the luxury play spot of California's beach history; Ida Lupino and Don McGuire a new combo at the Mocambo. That's all today.

Allan Sheetz crashed softball's Hall of Fame yesterday when he pitched a no-run, no-hit game as the North End Social and Athletic Club trounced the Maccabees in a City League contest at Community Park by the score of 16-0.

Only 24 batters faced Sheetz in the seven-inning contest and three men reached base on passes but none advanced beyond the keystone hassock. The NESA twirler fanned seven batsmen.

North End, which trails the league-leading Williams Street Merchants by a half-game in the second half championship race made Sheetz's victory a decisive one by scoring 11 of its 16 runs in the sixth inning. It was the third shutout triumph scored by Manager Chisholm's tossers in the last five games played.

Bill Cumiskey homered with Mulvey aboard to give North End two runs in the first inning. George Geatz's single, Swick's error on Skidmore's bunt, two wild pitches and Rice's base wallop brought in two more tallies in the fourth. Swick left the game in the fourth with the score 4-0 against him and the North Enders jumped on Crambiitt for eleven runs in the sixth by combining ten hits with two errors, two fielder's choices and two wild pitches. Cooper yielded the final tally in the seventh.

George Geatz with four hits and Cumiskey and Jim Rice with three each led North End's 17-hit assault.

Dean's Homer Wins Game

Williams Street's Merchants scored all of their runs in the third inning to turn back the last place V.F.W. team by the score of 3-1 on the Rolling Mill diamond.

After two out Decker and Doak singled and Bill Dean walloped a home run to left field. Athey's single, a passed ball and Wharton's double accounted for the V.F.W. tally in the third.

Bob Doak and "Bub" Porter paced the Merchants' attack with a double and single each while Wharton obtained two of the four hits yielded by Eddie Decker, who scored his sixth victory of the season against three losses.

Lacy's Beat East Side

Lacy's Delicatets took the measure of East Side on East Side field to the tune of 6-1.

The Delicatets unloosed a 12-hit attack in which "Bee" Orndorff was the leader with four bingles to his credit. Hardy got three hits, including a triple, and Roby banged out two safeties. It was Jim Wright's sixth victory in eight starts and "Chuck" Aman's fifth setback. The latter has won eight games. George garnered two of the six hits yielded by Wright.

Jupers Edge Legion

Keegan's Jupers nosed out Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, at Campobello by the score of 2-1. The Jupers sewed up the game in the fourth when Jack Steiner singled, "Shad" Hunt drew a pass and Jake Fisher hammered over what proved to be the winning run with a single. Keegan's outfit scored its first run in the second frame on hits by Steiner and Ronald Palmer. Steiner, of the Jupers, and Lou Bell, of the Legion, were the leading stickers with two hits each.

Fulton Myers Post Loses Interstate League Franchise

Loop To Conclude Season With Seven Clubs; Long Congratulates Teams

Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, was dropped from the Interstate Baseball League because of the organization's inability to field a team for all contests and because of the fact that the club already has forfeited three contests.

A decision on the status of the local Negro team was made at a meeting of the league, presided over by President John J. Long, at the Loyal Order of Moose home.

Secretary G. Ray Lippold was directed to write a letter to the Fulton Myers Post advising it of its suspension from further competition in the circuit.

President Long said the suspension also would apply to games scheduled for Fulton Myers Post in the City Baseball League.

Seven Teams To Finish

The Interstate League will finish out the season as a seven-team circuit and teams having games scheduled with Fulton Myers will be credited with wins via the forfeit route.

By being dropped from the circuit, Fulton Myers Post forfeits its $50 franchise fee in the Interstate League.

President Long said that the league regretted the action in view of Clarence "Cannonball" Smith's efforts to have the post represented but the decision was necessary to protect the fans who came out expecting to see regular scheduled games and then were disappointed when one of the clubs failed to put in its appearance.

Long congratulated the teams of the loop for their hustle on the field and stressed the fact that the new loop is having a successful first year. He said that Keyser has requested that the league consider its application for a franchise next season and added that the loop will not fail to do so.

The Interstate loop's leader said that the championship team of his circuit will challenge the winner of the Bi-State loop at the conclusion of the season.

The next meeting will be held prior to the close of the season to make arrangements for the Shaughnessy playoff series among teams finishing in the first division.

October Dinner Planned

It was announced that the league's award dinner will be held October 14 and the committee on arrangements for the affair comprises Long, Lippold, William Spangler and Phil Fleming.

The City League race will be concluded August 1, Long said, due to the scarcity of baseballs. He stated that teams have had considerable trouble in purchasing pellets.

Jerry's Confectioners gained the right to play the Lover's Leap Service Station for the first half championship of the Midget Baseball League by defeating DeMolay yesterday at Stitcher field by the score of 4 to 1.

The outcome of yesterday's game tied Jerry's and Lover's Leap for first place in the six-team circuit and necessitated the staging of a playoff game for first half honors tomorrow at 5:30 p. m. at Stitcher field.

Bob Doman tossed a four-hitter and fanned an even dozen as Jerry's emerged victorious for the seventh time in ten starts. Stevenson, of DeMolay yielded six hits, four of which were shared by Cage and Judy, who played centerfield, and is slated to pitch in Friday's championship contest.

A total of eleven errors were charged to the teams in yesterday's game. Stevenson issued three bases on balls while Doman walked one batter.

President Harold E. Naughton has called a meeting of representatives of league teams for tonight at 7 o'clock at his office, Room 404 Liberty Trust building, to make plans for the second half race which is scheduled to get under way next week.

Yesterday's score by innings:

Servo And Robinson Must Set Fight Date

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today ordered Welterweight Champion Marty Servo, Challenger Ray Robinson and Promoter Mike Jacobs to appear Friday to settle the disputed date for a welter title fight.

Originally scheduled for May, the bout was set for Aug. 21 at Yankee stadium when Servo was injured last spring. That date was ruled out when the Yankees needed the park the same afternoon to play off a postponed game against the Chicago White Sox. Jacobs proposed an Aug. 23 indoor bout at Madison Square Garden, but Al Weill, Servo's manager, insisted it should be at the stadium and suggested Sept. 5.

Gordon Denies He Led Revolt Against Dickey

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP) — Joe Gordon, New York Yankee second baseman, at a press conference before today's game emphatically denied published reports that he was a ringleader of a revolt against Manager Bill Dickey, and that there is dissention on the club.

"Such a report is an out-and-out lie," Gordon said heatedly. "I want it understood that Dickey and I are the best of friends, and that there is no dissention on the club whatsoever."

Rizzuto was struck in the face and although he remained conscious he was taken to a hospital with a concussion.

1,510,934 Cash Customers See New York Play 46 Home Games

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP) — The New York Yankees established a new major league home attendance record today while taking both ends of a doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, 3-2 and 8-4.

Drawing 30,159 paid admissions, the Yanks boosted their mark for 46 home games to 1,510,934, to shatter the previous high of 1,485,166 established by the 1929 pennant winning Chicago Cubs.

The nightcap was marked by an injury to Shortstop Phil Rizzuto of the Yanks in the fourth frame. Rizzuto was struck in the face by a pitched ball thrown by Pitcher Nelson Potter and although he remained conscious, he was taken to New York hospital with a concussion.

In the opener, the Yanks scored the winning run in the final frame when Aaron Robinson singled with the bases loaded. Floyd Bevens was nursing a 2-0 lead going into the seventh frame but the Browns knotted the count on a two-run homer by Jeff Heath.

Keller highlighted New York's second game triumph by clouting his 19th round tripper of the season with the bases loaded in the third inning. Box:

RED SOX COP PAIR

BOSTON, July 17 (AP) — With Bob Feller out of town, the Boston Red Sox resumed their rough handling of the western clubs today by trouncing the Chicago White Sox in both games of a doubleheader, taking the first 3-1 and the second 6-1.

The Sox scored all their runs in the first game in the fifth inning off Lefty Ed Lopat. Doubles by Tom McBride, Dom Dimaggio and Ted Williams after Roy Partee had opened the inning with a single accounted for the scores.

One extra base hit was gleaned off Bo Ferriss's slants in the afterpiece. That was a triple down the right field foul line by the veteran Joe Kuhel who scored shortly after on a slow infield single by Don Kolloway. Box:

Phillies Throttle Cardinals' Drive By Winning, 10-7

Northey Swats Two Homers And Seminick Wallops Grand Slammer

ST. LOUIS, July 17 (AP) — The homerun bats of Ron Northey and Andy Seminick temporarily halted the St. Louis Cardinal drive toward the National League lead tonight as the Philadelphia Phils took the opener of a three-game series 10 to 7 despite a four-run Cardinal ninth inning rally.

Northey walloped his 11th four-master of the season in the opening inning with one on as Card starter Ken Burkhardt was driven from the hill, and hit another off Ted Wilks in the fifth. Seminick's came with the bases loaded off Howard Krist in the five-run seventh.

The Birds stayed within a half game of the slipping Brooklyn Dodgers who lost at Cincinnati but the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Giants to draw a game closer to the leaders. Score:

28,050 FANS SEE REDS TRIM BROOKLYN, 5-2

CINCINNATI, July 17 (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds exploded for four runs in the eighth inning tonight to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-2 before 28,050 paying fans, the largest Crosley Field night gathering of the season. The victory gave veteran Bucky Walters his sixth win of the season against two defeats.

The Dodgers, who retained their half-game leadership in the National League by virtue of the Philadelphia Phillies' victory over second-place St. Louis, committed two costly errors to help the Redleg cause in the big eighth.

The Dodgers counted their first marker in the opening frame without hitting safely. Lukon muffed Ed Stanky's liner or a two-base error and the Brooklyn second sacker scored on two infield outs.

Hatton tied the count with his ninth homer of the season in the third, but the Dodgers moved ahead 2-1 in the first half of the eighth as Stevens's second single of the night counted Augie Galan, who had doubled. Score:

Caseys Edge WOW In Extra Inning

Madden's Fly Wins Game, 3-2 As Joe Neubiser Cops 7th In Row

Ray Madden's outfield fly scored Ray Swach in the eighth inning with the run which gave the Knights of Columbus a 3 to 2 decision over the Woodmen of the World in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at Fort Hill field.

With the score knotted at 2-2, Swach opened the overtime session with a two-bagger, Dave Conley beat out a bunt which moved Swach to third and the latter registered the winning marker on Madden's fly to Short Fielder Holshey.

The Woodmen held a 2-1 lead until the sixth when the Caseys deadlocked the score on Neubiser's single, Madden's infield hit and Manager Jim Browning's base blow to left field.

The victory was the seventh in a row for Joe Neubiser, who is undefeated this season. He yielded four hits while the Knights nicked Hobell for ten, two of which were credited to Conley Swach's double was the game's only extra base clout.

Counting two forfeit victories over the now defunct Jaycees and K. of P., which were not included in the league standings, the Caseys now have a record of 17 wins and one defeat and lead the runner-up Elks by three and one-half games. The Elks trail with 13 wins and four losses. The score:

Allan Sheetz crashed softball's Hall of Fame yesterday when he pitched a no-run, no-hit game as the North End Social and Athletic Club trounced the Maccabees in a City League contest at Community Park by the score of 16-0.

Only 24 batters faced Sheetz in the seven-inning contest and three men reached base on passes but none advanced beyond the keystone hassock. The NESA twirler fanned seven batsmen.

North End, which trails the league-leading Williams Street Merchants by a half-game in the second half championship race made Sheetz's victory a decisive one by scoring 11 of its 16 runs in the sixth inning. It was the third shutout triumph scored by Manager Chisholm's tossers in the last five games played.

Bill Cumiskey homered with Mulvey aboard to give North End two runs in the first inning. George Geatz's single, Swick's error on Skidmore's bunt, two wild pitches and Rice's base wallop brought in two more tallies in the fourth. Swick left the game in the fourth with the score 4-0 against him and the North Enders jumped on Crambitt for eleven runs in the sixth by combining ten hits with two errors, two fielder's choices and two wild pitches. Cooper yielded the final tally in the seventh.

George Geatz with four hits and Cumiskey and Jim Rice with three each led North End's 17-hit assault.

Dean's Homer Wins Game

Williams Street's Merchants scored all of their runs in the third inning to turn back the last place V.F.W. team by the score of 3-1 on the Rolling Mill diamond.

After two out Decker and Doak singled and Bill Dean walloped a home run to left field. Athey's single, a passed ball and Wharton's double accounted for the V.F.W. tally in the third.

Bob Doak and "Bub" Porter paced the Merchants' attack with a double and single each while Wharton obtained two of the four hits yielded by Eddie Decker, who scored his sixth victory of the season against three losses.

Lacy's Beat East Side

Lacy's Delicatets took the measure of East Side on East Side field to the tune of 6-1.

The Delicatets unloosed a 12-hit attack in which "Bee" Orndorff was the leader with four bingles to his credit. Hardy got three hits, including a triple, and Roby banged out two safeties. It was Jim Wright's sixth victory in eight starts and "Chuck" Aman's fifth setback. The latter has won eight games. George garnered two of the six hits yielded by Wright.

Jupers Edge Legion

Keegan's Jupers nosed out Fort Cumberland Post, American Legion, at Campobello by the score of 2-1. The Jupers sewed up the game in the fourth when Jack Steiner singled, "Shad" Hunt drew a pass and Jake Fisher hammered over what proved to be the winning run with a single. Keegan's outfit scored its first run in the second frame on hits by Steiner and Ronald Palmer. Steiner, of the Jupers, and Lou Bell, of the Legion, were the leading stickers with two hits each.

Fulton Myers Post Loses Interstate League Franchise

Loop To Conclude Season With Seven Clubs; Long Congratulates Teams

Fulton Myers Post, American Legion, was dropped from the Interstate Baseball League because of the organization's inability to field a team for all contests and because of the fact that the club already has forfeited three contests.

A decision on the status of the local Negro team was made at a meeting of the league, presided over by President John J. Long, at the Loyal Order of Moose home.

Secretary G. Ray Lippold was directed to write a letter to the Fulton Myers Post advising it of its suspension from further competition in the circuit.

President Long said the suspension also would apply to games scheduled for Fulton Myers Post in the City Baseball League.

Seven Teams To Finish

The Interstate League will finish out the season as a seven-team circuit and teams having games scheduled with Fulton Myers will be credited with wins via the forfeit route.

By being dropped from the circuit, Fulton Myers Post forfeits its $50 franchise fee in the Interstate League.

President Long said that the league regretted the action in view of Clarence "Cannonball" Smith's efforts to have the post represented but the decision was necessary to protect the fans who came out expecting to see regular scheduled games and then were disappointed when one of the clubs failed to put in its appearance.

Long congratulated the teams of the loop for their hustle on the field and stressed the fact that the new loop is having a successful first year. He said that Keyser has requested that the league consider its application for a franchise next season and added that the loop will not fail to do so.

The Interstate loop's leader said that the championship team of his circuit will challenge the winner of the Bi-State loop at the conclusion of the season.

The next meeting will be held prior to the close of the season to make arrangements for the Shaughnessy playoff series among teams finishing in the first division.

October Dinner Planned

It was announced that the league's award dinner will be held October 14 and the committee on arrangements for the affair comprises Long, Lippold, William Spangler and Phil Fleming.

The City League race will be concluded August 1, Long said, due to the scarcity of baseballs. He stated that teams have had considerable trouble in purchasing pellets.

Servo And Robinson Must Set Fight Date

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP)—The New York State Athletic Commission today ordered Welterweight Champion Marty Servo, Challenger Ray Robinson and Promoter Mike Jacobs to appear Friday to settle the disputed date for a welter title fight.

Originally scheduled for May, the bout was set for Aug. 21 at Yankee stadium when Servo was injured last spring. That date was ruled out when the Yankees needed the park the same afternoon to play off a postponed game against the Chicago White Sox. Jacobs proposed an Aug. 23 indoor bout at Madison Square Garden, but Al Weill, Servo's manager, insisted it should be at the stadium and suggested Sept. 5.

RIZZUTO SUFFERS CONCUSSION

PHIL RIZZUTO, Yankees' shortstop, sprawls across the plate after being hit by a pitched ball thrown by Nelson Potter of the Browns, in the fourth inning of the second game of the Yank-Brownie twin bill yesterday in New York. Frank Mancuso, St. Louis catcher, bends over Rizzuto. No. 1 is "Snuffy" Stirnweiss, Yankee third baseman. Rizzuto was struck in the face and although he remained conscious he was taken to a hospital with a concussion.

Yanks Beat Browns Twice, Hang Up Attendance Mark

1,510,934 Cash Customers See New York Play 46 Home Games

NEW YORK, July 17 (AP) — The New York Yankees established a new major league home attendance record today while taking both ends of a doubleheader from the St. Louis Browns, 3-2 and 8-4.

Drawing 30,159 paid admissions, the Yanks boosted their mark for 46 home games to 1,510,934, to shatter the previous high of 1,485,166 established by the 1929 pennant winning Chicago Cubs.

The nightcap was marked by an injury to Shortstop Phil Rizzuto of the Yanks in the fourth frame. Rizzuto was struck in the face by a pitched ball thrown by Pitcher Nelson Potter and although he remained conscious, he was taken to New York hospital with a concussion.

In the opener, the Yanks scored the winning run in the final frame when Aaron Robinson singled with the bases loaded. Floyd Bevens was nursing a 2-0 lead going into the seventh frame but the Browns knotted the count on a two-run homer by Jeff Heath.

Keller highlighted New York's second game triumph by clouting his 19th round tripper of the season with the bases loaded in the third inning. Box:

RED SOX COP PAIR

BOSTON, July 17 (AP) — With Bob Feller out of town, the Boston Red Sox resumed their rough handling of the western clubs today by trouncing the Chicago White Sox in both games of a doubleheader, taking the first 3-1 and the second 6-1.

The Sox scored all their runs in the first game in the fifth inning off Lefty Ed Lopat. Doubles by Tom McBride, Dom Dimaggio and Ted Williams after Roy Partee had opened the inning with a single accounted for the scores.

One extra base hit was gleaned off Bo Ferriss's slants in the afterpiece. That was a triple down the right field foul line by the veteran Joe Kuhel who scored shortly after on a slow infield single by Don Kolloway. Box:

Phillies Throttle Cardinals' Drive By Winning, 10-7

Northey Swats Two Homers And Seminick Wallops Grand Slammer

ST. LOUIS, July 17 (AP) — The homerun bats of Ron Northey and Andy Seminick temporarily halted the St. Louis Cardinal drive toward the National League lead tonight as the Philadelphia Phils took the opener of a three-game series 10 to 7 despite a four-run Cardinal ninth inning rally.

Northey walloped his 11th four-master of the season in the opening inning with one on as Card starter Ken Burkhardt was driven from the hill, and hit another off Ted Wilks in the fifth. Seminick's came with the bases loaded off Howard Krist in the five-run seventh.

The Birds stayed within a half game of the slipping Brooklyn Dodgers who lost at Cincinnati but the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Giants to draw a game closer to the leaders. Score:

28,050 FANS SEE REDS TRIM BROOKLYN, 5-2

CINCINNATI, July 17 (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds exploded for four runs in the eighth inning tonight to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-2 before 28,050 paying fans, the largest Crosley Field night gathering of the season. The victory gave veteran Bucky Walters his sixth win of the season against two defeats.

The Dodgers, who retained their half-game leadership in the National League by virtue of the Philadelphia Phillies' victory over second-place St. Louis, committed two costly errors to help the Redleg cause in the big eighth.

The Dodgers counted their first marker in the opening frame without hitting safely. Lukon muffed Ed Stanky's liner or a two-base error and the Brooklyn second sacker scored on two infield outs.

Hatton tied the count with his ninth homer of the season in the third, but the Dodgers moved ahead 2-1 in the first half of the eighth as Stevens's second single of the night counted Augie Galan, who had doubled. Score:

Caseys Edge WOW In Extra Inning

Madden's Fly Wins Game, 3-2 As Joe Neubiser Cops 7th In Row

Ray Madden's outfield fly scored Ray Swach in the eighth inning with the run which gave the Knights of Columbus a 3 to 2 decision over the Woodmen of the World in a Rocking Chair Softball League game yesterday at Fort Hill field.

With the score knotted at 2-2, Swach opened the overtime session with a two-bagger, Dave Conley beat out a bunt which moved Swach to third and the latter registered the winning marker on Madden's fly to Short Fielder Holshey.

The Woodmen held a 2-1 lead until the sixth when the Caseys deadlocked the score on Neubiser's single, Madden's infield hit and Manager Jim Browning's base blow to left field.

The victory was the seventh in a row for Joe Neubiser, who is undefeated this season. He yielded four hits while the Knights nicked Hobell for ten, two of which were credited to Conley Swach's double was the game's only extra base clout.

Counting two forfeit victories over the now defunct Jaycees and K. of P., which were not included in the league standings, the Caseys now have a record of 17 wins and one defeat and lead the runner-up Elks by three and one-half games. The Elks trail with 13 wins and four losses. The score:

VMI Coach Blasts Army, Navy Method Of Grabbing Gridders

Hubert Says Keydets Lost Five Players In Month; Complaints Are "Ridiculous," Ingersoll Says

By ROBERT MOORE

LEXINGTON, Va., July 17—(AP)—Usually quiet-spoken Allison (Pooley) Hubert, head coach at Virginia Military Institute, who has lost five football players to Navy in a month, today raised his voice against what he described as "the rotten way Army and Navy both get these boys up there without any regard for scholastic qualifications."

Hubert said at least two of the five lettermen the Navy got in its "raids" at VMI "didn't have good enough grades to get into the academy." In this respect, he pointed to the case of Lynn Chewning, All-Southern Conference fullback last year, and Billy Noftsinger, second team All-Virginia end, both of Richmond, Va.

Rear Admiral Stuart H. Ingersoll, commandant of midshipmen at Annapolis, told a reporter that the complaints were "ridiculous" and "absolutely untrue."

Ingersoll Checked Records

"We have no double standards here at the academy for the athlete and the non-athlete," he said.

"Not only must the athlete fill every entrance requirement, but he also must be able to keep up his grades once he gets in.

"I have checked the records of Chewning and Noftsinger, and they both are eligible in every respect to enter the academy."

The VMI mentor said that during the second semester, Chewning, who led the Southern Conference in scoring in 1945 as a freshman, failed in English, history, Spanish and chemistry and made a passing grade only in mathematics.

"The naval academy accepted Chewning's grades," Hubert drawled, "and gave him credit for physical education and military science—two subjects we don't even give credit for at VMI. Without hours in these two subjects, Chewning couldn't have gotten into Navy as a plebe.

Deficiencies Are Noted

"And during the first semester of last year, Noftsinger flunked English, history, German and chemistry, and the grades we sent to Navy showed he was still deficient in English."

"In addition to Chewning and Noftsinge the three others who have "jumped" from the Keydets to Annapolis are Billy Hawkins, star back, Si Hart, reserve back from last season, and Don Florence, 1945, guard.

"They ruined us," Hubert moaned. "We'll be at the bottom. Those five players were 50 percent of my team. I've got one letterman left in the backfield, one guard, no ends, one center and two tackles. Can you imagine that, they left us with both tackles?"

"Let me tell you. It's rotten the way those academies are getting their athletes. The reason the Army and Navy want these boys from college is because they don't have to have an entrance examination if they have high enough grades. Naval Academy regulations say a boy has to have satisfactory work at college he attended and have grades of five points above passing to get into the academy on certificate.

"It doesn't look to me as if a college athlete who wants to get into Army or Navy has to worry much about that five points—or even about that satisfactory work, for that matter."

Army Scooped Them Up

Hubert said the "Navy and Army both want boys who are already developed and ready to play college football. They claim they want good athletes because they make good officers, but they don't require athletes to have the same qualifications other men have to have."

Hubert said Clyde Grimenstein, who made eight touchdowns from end for Army last year, and the late Virginius Stell, Army fullback, who later was killed in an accident, were both VMI players "scooped up by the Army" who failed in subjects at this "West Point of the South." Hubert added both had to leave the academy at mid-semester.

Declares Charges 'Unfair'

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 17. (AP)—Earl Blaik, Army football coach, today characterized as "manifestly unfair" charges by Coach Allison (Pooley) Hubert of V. M. I. that the military and naval academies accepted athletes who did not have the necessary scholastic qualifications. Blaik said he would not "dignify such ridiculous accusations with any sort of reply."

Barney Ross's Wife Is Granted Divorce

LOS ANGELES, July 17 (AP)—Barney Ross, former world welterweight boxing champion and marine hero, was divorced today by the former Cathy Howlett of the New York stage on her testimony that he has neglected her.

He refused her request to accompany him to the recent Louis-Conn fight in New York, declaring he would have no time for her, she testified sobbingly. "Many times" when they went to public places, she declared, Ross would leave her alone. Friends told her Ross had been seen in the company of other women, his wife testified, but he said such assertions were "all very silly."

They were married in San Francisco in 1942, after Ross had returned from Guadalcanal, where he was wounded and was credited with killing a score of Japanese while protecting three wounded comrades from their attack.

Newark Signs Ruggerio

NEWARK, N. The Bombers announced today that Ruggerio, coach at St .Mary's high of Rutherford, N. J., would play in early season games up to September 22.

Wilson's Lecture Helpful

By C. V. BURNS

An article entitled "Hawk and Owl Talk" by Battie Mixon, former district game warden for Allegany county, appearing in the June-July issue of the Rally Sheet, publication of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc., makes interesting reading.

Mixon, who is now located on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, writes that many people have said, and they still do, that the only good hawk is a dead hawk and that goes for owls, too. "Probably no game warden in the state has been governed by this belief more than I," Mixon relates. "Don't these winged rascals of field and forest feed upon the sportsmen's game 365 days in the year? Yes! Then why shouldn't I kill them? And I have shot them all—scores of them—great horned owls, barred owls, screech owls, even monkey-faced owls and all the hawks.

"I killed dozens of them (Cooper's Hawks) and for each one I received $1 bounty which is paid for the slaughter of all species of hawks and owls by the taxpayers of Allegany county.

"I continued to kill the killers and collect my bounty. Then one day in 1942 a day was spent with Kenneth Wilson, (Bedford Road) a game technician, who had been assigned to Western Maryland to do something for game. We were getting along fine until the subject of hawks and owls came up. Rather proudly I told him what I thought but he wasn't impressed. When I happened to say that neither hawk nor owl was any good, he came up with a lecture—fast. Since then I have learned differently and I have made amends to Ken."

According to Mixon, Wilson pointed out that there are seven species of owls native to the state—the great horned owl, barred owl, short-eared owl, long-eared owl, screech owl, saw whet owl and the barn or monkey-faced owl.

Of these, Wilson said, only the great horned owl is consistently detrimental to game and even it takes large numbers of rats, some skunks—an egg eater many hunters despise—and mice. Barred owls occasionally feed upon rabbits and squirrels in localities where the mice supply is low but otherwise, like the remainder of the owls, are largely beneficial.

Probably the most persecuted and most beneficial of these birds is the yellowish-orange colored barn owl. Wilson once found the skulls of four mice in one of its pellets (owl swallow their food whole, throwing up the undigested bones and hair in the form of a pellet) it had regurgitated and at a nest once he found nine mice in a pile that the mother owl had caught to feed her young.

"This all sounded like tripe to me," Mixon writes, "but he kept right on and shifted his conversation to the hawks. He must have been getting tired because he made this portion of his lecture brief. In part this is what he said: 'soaring, slow-flying hawks are largely beneficial. These include red-tailed hawks, red-shouldered hawks, rough-legged hawks and the highly beneficial broad-winged hawks.'"

Wilson said that much of the ill-repute placed on hawks in general could be traced to the deeds of three hawks—Cooper's hawks or blue darters, sharp-shinned hawks (not to be confused with beneficial sparrow hawk) and goshawk. Sharp-shinned and Cooper's hawks, he said, are plentiful and they don't hesitate to attack anything from quail, grouse, rabbits, mourning doves and squirrels to chickens. Both are fast flying and efficient hunters but most of the blame for hundreds of chickens and peeps that are annually consumed is placed at the feet of the soaring, slow-flying hawks. And these same hawks are unjustly blamed by hunters for the game that their shifty and bloodthirsty relatives take.

Mixon relates that he started a little research work of his own and shot 30 of Wilson's so-called broad-winged hawks. Upon examining the stomach contents he said he gulped. He found only katydids, grasshoppers and grubs with an occasional cricket thrown in. Battie said he was finally convinced that Wilson was right about broad-winged hawks being beneficial and says he was sorry he killed them.

The author urges sportsmen to continue to kill hawks and owls that are eating up our sport, and adds, "it's the great horned owl, Cooper's and sharp-shinned hawks that raise Old Ned with our game, while the broad-winged and other soaring hawks and most of the owls are largely beneficial to the farmer, annually consuming millions of hay-eating, crop-eating, tree girdling mice and rats. Let's destroy our real enemies and leave unmolested the rodent destructive hawks and owls to work for the farmer."

In conclusion, Mixon addresses the following to the taxpayers of Allegany county:

"Since you good people pay a dollar bounty on all hawks and owls killed in the county, most of which are beneficial—the others would be destroyed anyway—I have this suggestion to make. Use this bounty money for the care of indigent and needy people and then if anything is left use it in payment of a bigger bounty on the fox, the real scoundrel that is filling its belly with the hunters' game. But whatever you do, don't continue to pay money for the slaughter of valuable broad-winged hawks that eat only insects and grubs."

VMI Coach Blasts Army, Navy Method Of Grabbing Gridders

By ROBERT MOORE

LEXINGTON, Va., July 17—(AP)—Usually quiet-spoken Allison (Pooley) Hubert, head coach at Virginia Military Institute, who has lost five football players to Navy in a month, today raised his voice against what he described as "the rotten way Army and Navy both get these boys up there without any regard for scholastic qualifications."

Hubert said at least two of the five lettermen the Navy got in its "raids" at VMI "didn't have good enough grades to get into the academy." In this respect, he pointed to the case of Lynn Chewning, All-Southern Conference fullback last year, and Billy Noftsinger, second team All-Virginia end, both of Richmond, Va.

Rear Admiral Stuart H. Ingersoll, commandant of midshipmen at Annapolis, told a reporter that the complaints were "ridiculous" and "absolutely untrue."

Ingersoll Checked Records

"We have no double standards here at the academy for the athlete and the non-athlete," he said.

"Not only must the athlete fill every entrance requirement, but he also must be able to keep up his grades once he gets in.

"I have checked the records of Chewning and Noftsinger, and they both are eligible in every respect to enter the academy."

The VMI mentor said that during the second semester, Chewning, who led the Southern Conference in scoring in 1945 as a freshman, failed in English, history, Spanish and chemistry and made a passing grade only in mathematics.

"The naval academy accepted Chewning's grades," Hubert drawled, "and gave him credit for physical education and military science—two subjects we don't even give credit for at VMI. Without hours in these two subjects, Chewning couldn't have gotten into Navy as a plebe.

Deficiencies Are Noted

"And during the first semester of last year, Noftsinger flunked English, history, German and chemistry, and the grades we sent to Navy showed he was still deficient in English."

"In addition to Chewning and Noftsinger the three others who have "jumped" from the Keydets to Annapolis are Billy Hawkins, star back, Si Hart, reserve back from last season, and Don Florence, 1945, guard.

"They ruined us," Hubert moaned. "We'll be at the bottom. Those five players were 50 percent of my team. I've got one letterman left in the backfield, one guard, no ends, one center and two tackles. Can you imagine that, they left us with both tackles?"

"Let me tell you. It's rotten the way those academies are getting their athletes. The reason the Army and Navy want these boys from college is because they don't have to have an entrance examination if they have high enough grades. Naval Academy regulations say a boy has to have satisfactory work at college he attended and have grades of five points above passing to get into the academy on certificate.

"It doesn't look to me as if a college athlete who wants to get into Army or Navy has to worry much about that five points—or even about that satisfactory work, for that matter."

Army Scooped Them Up

Hubert said the "Navy and Army both want boys who are already developed and ready to play college football. They claim they want good athletes because they make good officers, but they don't require athletes to have the same qualifications other men have to have."

Hubert said Clyde Grimenstein, who made eight touchdowns from end for Army last year, and the late Virginius Stell, Army fullback, who later was killed in an accident, were both VMI players "scooped up by the Army" who failed in subjects at this "West Point of the South." Hubert added both had to leave the academy at mid-semester.

Declares Charges 'Unfair'

WEST POINT, N. Y., July 17. (AP)—Earl Blaik, Army football coach, today characterized as "manifestly unfair" charges by Coach Allison (Pooley) Hubert of V. M. I. that the military and naval academies accepted athletes who did not have the necessary scholastic qualifications. Blaik said he would not "dignify such ridiculous accusations with any sort of reply."

Barney Ross's Wife Is Granted Divorce

LOS ANGELES, July 17 (AP)—Barney Ross, former world welterweight boxing champion and marine hero, was divorced today by the former Cathy Howlett of the New York stage on her testimony that he has neglected her.

He refused her request to accompany him to the recent Louis-Conn fight in New York, declaring he would have no time for her, she testified sobbingly. "Many times" when they went to public places, she declared, Ross would leave her alone. Friends told her Ross had been seen in the company of other women, his wife testified, but he said such assertions were "all very silly."

They were married in San Francisco in 1942, after Ross had returned from Guadalcanal, where he was wounded and was credited with killing a score of Japanese while protecting three wounded comrades from their attack.

Newark Signs Ruggerio

NEWARK, N. J., July 17—(AP)—Frank Ruggerio, former Notre Dame fullback who turned down a pro offer from the Boston Yanks to become a high school coach, has signed to play this year with the Newark Bombers of the American Football League. The Bombers announced today that Ruggerio, coach at St Mary's high of Rutherford, N. J., would play in early season games up to September 22.

Wilson's Lecture Helpful

By C. V. BURNS

An article entitled "Hawk and Owl Talk" by Battie Mixon, former district game warden for Allegany county, appearing in the June-July issue of the Rally Sheet, publication of the League of Maryland Sportsmen, Inc., makes interesting reading.

Mixon, who is now located on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, writes that many people have said, and they still do, that the only good hawk is a dead hawk and that goes for owls, too. "Probably no game warden in the state has been governed by this belief more than I," Mixon relates. "Don't these winged rascals of field and forest feed upon the sportsmen's game 365 days in the year? Yes! Then why shouldn't I kill them? And I have shot them all—scores of them—great horned owls, barred owls, screech owls, even monkey-faced owls and all the hawks.

"I killed dozens of them (Cooper's Hawks) and for each one I received $1 bounty which is paid for the slaughter of all species of hawks and owls by the taxpayers of Allegany county.

"I continued to kill the killers and collect my bounty. Then one day in 1942 a day was spent with Kenneth Wilson, (Bedford Road) a game technician, who had been assigned to Western Maryland to do something for game. We were getting along fine until the subject of hawks and owls came up. Rather proudly I told him what I thought but he wasn't impressed. When I happened to say that neither hawk nor owl was any good, he came up with a lecture—fast. Since then I have learned differently and I have made amends to Ken."

According to Mixon, Wilson pointed out that there are seven species of owls native to the state—the great horned owl, barred owl, short-eared owl, long-eared owl, screech owl, saw whet owl and the barn or monkey-faced owl.

Of these, Wilson said, only the great horned owl is consistently detrimental to game and even it takes large numbers of rats, some skunks—an egg eater many hunters despise—and mice. Barred owls occasionally feed upon rabbits and squirrels in localities where the mice supply is low but otherwise, like the remainder of the owls, are largely beneficial.

Probably the most persecuted and most beneficial of these birds is the yellowish-orange colored barn owl. Wilson once found the skulls of four mice in one of its pellets (owl swallow their food whole, throwing up the undigested bones and hair in the form of a pellet) it had regurgitated and at a nest once he found nine mice in a pile that the mother owl had caught to feed her young.

"This all sounded like tripe to me," Mixon writes, "but he kept right on and shifted his conversation to the hawks. He must have been getting tired because he made this portion of his lecture brief. In part this is what he said: 'soaring, slow-flying hawks are largely beneficial. These include red-tailed hawks, red-shouldered hawks, rough-legged hawks and the highly beneficial broad-winged hawks.'"

Wilson said that much of the ill-repute placed on hawks in general could be traced to the deeds of three hawks—Cooper's hawks or blue darters, sharp-shinned hawks (not to be confused with beneficial sparrow hawk) and goshawk. Sharp-shinned and Cooper's hawks, he said, are plentiful and they don't hesitate to attack anything from quail, grouse, rabbits, mourning doves and squirrels to chickens. Both are fast flying and efficient hunters but most of the blame for hundreds of chickens and peeps that are annually consumed is placed at the feet of the soaring, slow-flying hawks. And these same hawks are unjustly blamed by hunters for the game that their shifty and bloodthirsty relatives take.

Mixon relates that he started a little research work of his own and shot 30 of Wilson's so-called broad-winged hawks. Upon examining the stomach contents he said he gulped. He found only katydids, grasshoppers and grubs with an occasional cricket thrown in. Battie said he was finally convinced that Wilson was right about broad-winged hawks being beneficial and says he was sorry he killed them.

The author urges sportsmen to continue to kill hawks and owls that are eating up our sport, and adds, "it's the great horned owl, Cooper's and sharp-shinned hawks that raise Old Ned with our game, while the broad-winged and other soaring hawks and most of the owls are largely beneficial to the farmer, annually consuming millions of hay-eating, crop-eating, tree girdling mice and rats. Let's destroy our real enemies and leave unmolested the rodent destructive hawks and owls to work for the farmer."

In conclusion, Mixon addresses the following to the taxpayers of Allegany county:

"Since you good people pay a dollar bounty on all hawks and owls killed in the county, most of which are beneficial—the others would be destroyed anyway—I have this suggestion to make. Use this bounty money for the care of indigent and needy people and then if anything is left use it in payment of a bigger bounty on the fox, the real scoundrel that is filling its belly with the hunters' game. But whatever you do, don't continue to pay money for the slaughter of valuable broad-winged hawks that eat only insects and grubs."

Town Meeting To Broadcast Again From Chautauqua

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, July 17—Once again America's Town Meeting is to do its broadcast from Chautauqua, N. Y., on ABC at 7:30 Thursday night, listed as the third of four from that point. Subject is to come up in this question: "Can we have world peace without world law?" The usual panel of four discussers, and of course questions from the audience.

The Bob Burns ex-6:30 spot on NBC is now occupied by the Johnny Morgan Show. Johnny has the help of Hope Emerson and Gloria Mann to put on a comedy skit and that of the Smoothies for what some describes as "incidental music." Then, if you want to know, Jack Costello does the announcing.

The O'Neills, recently revived for the night list of ABC, has another new time. It's 7:15 in place of the former Earl Godwin commentary.

Vera Massey is to do the guest vocalization in the Sound Off with Mark Warnow on CBS at 7:30. This is one of several network programs now stressing the army's drive for recruits . . In the Carrington Playhouse of MBS at 7 is to come "Me—I'm Sentimental," a comedy by a returned veteran, John Mosman. It's about three ex-GIs in a reunion.

The Concert of Nations on NBC at 10:30 is to be in musical salute to Czechoslovakia as Thelma Votipka, opera soprano, appears in the guest division and as Dr. Frank Black does some more orchestra conducting.

Flying Costs Increase

RIO DE JANEIRO—(AP)—The cost of living in this South American capital, already at an all-time high, is still going up. A presidential decree approving a 20 percent increase in salaries of the employes of the light and power company also permitted increased charges for electricity, gas, telephones and trolley fares.

Price Goes Up

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Meat shortage footnote: The Wyoming Stock Growers' Association has doubled its standing $200 reward for the capture of cattle rustlers.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Father, Harry Lee Dean, who passed away two years ago, July 17, 1944.

What is home without a father?
All things this world may send,
But when we lost our darling father,
We lost our dearest friend.

For those who have a father,
Tender him with care,
For you never know his value,
Until you see his vacant chair.

He works so hard to keep you—
Never complains;
Where could you find such a father again.
So treat him with kindness—
Give him a smile,
Tell him you love him,
Make his life worthwhile.

For we had a father,
Who was one of the best,
When God took him home
For Eternal rest.

Sadly missed by his
CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our beloved Father, Harry Lee Dean, who passed away two years ago, July 17, 1944.

What is home without a father?
All things this world may send,
But when we lost our darling father,
We lost our dearest friend.

For those who have a father,
Tender him with care,
For you never know his value,
Until you see his vacant chair.

He works so hard to keep you—
Never complains;
Where could you find such a father again,
So treat him with kindness—
Give him a smile,
Tell him you love him,
Make his life worthwhile.

For we had a father,
Who was one of the best,
When God took him home
For Eternal rest.

Sadly missed by his

4-Year-Old Boy Is Hit By Truck, Dies Instantly

Harris Says Driver Is Held On Charge Of Manslaughter

A 4-year-old boy was killed instantly early yesterday afternoon when he was crushed beneath the wheels of a backing ice delivery truck near his home on Cecelia street.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, identified the child as William Alexander Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, 318 Cecelia street, and said the boy was killed at 1:55 p. m., when he was struck by a Queen City Brewing Company ice truck operated by Walter Russell Hensel, 23, 307 Water street.

The state's attorney added that Hensel was released in custody of his attorney for a hearing in trial magistrates court on a charge of manslaughter by motor vehicle.

Detective E. R. Lilya, who with Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman, conducted the preliminary investigation, said the child was struck by the right rear wheel of the truck as Hensel was backing up the 300 block of the street.

Skull Is Crushed

Death occurred instantly, according to Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, as a result of a crushed skull and a broken neck.

The child was pronounced dead on admission to Allegany hospital where he was taken by Hensel and his mother, Mrs. Laura Matilda Pollock Brown.

Hensel told Harris that he was backing up the dead end street and was looking out the left door of the truck when the right rear wheel ran over the child.

Harris said Hensel told him that when he heard the impact he stopped and ran to the rear of the truck and found that a woman had the child in her arms.

Picks Up Brother's Body

The boy's sister, Irene Brown, 16, who was in the kitchen of their home, heard the child cry and rushed outside and picked up her brother's body. She said the boy was sitting on the porch of the home shortly before the accident occurred.

Mrs. Brown, authorities were told, did not see the accident since she heard the ice truck coming and hurried upstairs to get some money for ice.

Hensel and Mrs. Brown took the child to the Brown home and Hensel went to telephone, Harris said, but a few minutes later decided instead to take the child to the hospital.

Authorities said Hensel told them he had two reasons for backing the vehicle, first, because the ice was not so likely to slip and break and second, because of the difficulty of turning at the end of the street.

Hensel, who is single and lives with his aunt, Mrs. Martin Hager, at 307 Water street, started driving for the local brewery in 1941 and

Whetsell Liquor License Hearing Is Postponed

Names Of Ten New Signers Are Added To Application For Transfer

Hearing on a remonstrance against transfer of the Class B liquor license of Charles H. Whetsell from Porter's restaurant, 20 North Mechanic street, to 28 and 30 Baltimore street where he and Herbert Cornish plan to open a new tavern, to be known as "The Alibi," has been postponed from today until Wednesday, July 24, counsel in the case said yesterday.

Along with the postponement, Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper have granted the petition of Whetsell's attorneys to amend his application for transfer of the license.

A protest was filed Saturday by counsel for the Cadillac Cocktail lounge, located next door to the proposed new tavern, alleging that one of Whetsell's signers had already signed the application of another license holder in the neighborhood during the year. Since then Harry I. Stegmaier and William S. Jenkins, attorneys for Whetsell, have obtained 10 more signers on the application.

Protest Against Signer

William A. Gunter and D. Lindley Sloan, attorneys for Frank Molinari, Jr., and Samuel F. DeLuca, owners of the Cadillac, alleged that Edward Habeeb, owner of a flower shop at 26 North Mechanic street, had already signed the application of the Alhambra Club of the Knights of Columbus, and the county law prohibits the signing of more than one application.

The attorneys also alleged that Paul Steinla, another signer, has his place of business at 218 South Mechanic street, "which is not near the place to be licensed." In addition, they contended that plans for renovating the building indicated that an entrance would also be on North Mechanic street, and this was not mentioned in the license transfer application.

Six Original Signers

Besides Habeeb and Steinla, the original signers of Whetsell's application were A. E. Stein, 29 Baltimore street; John J. McMullen, 9 South Mechanic street; Grace M. Fisher, 37 North Mechanic street, and Christ G. Charuhas, 35 Baltimore street.

Additional signers listed yesterday, after the Court granted counsel permission to amend the petition, were T. J. Zimmerman, 21 North Mechanic street; B. W. Whitacre, 35 North Mechanic street; Bernard F. Coyle, 45 Baltimore street; Frank A. Martin, 47 Baltimore street; Harold E. Simmons, 31 Baltimore street; Cecil J. Northcraft, 25 Baltimore street; Dorothy Rephann, 19 Baltimore street; J. Frank Eyman, 22 North Mechanic street; Adolph Riesch, 52 Baltimore street, and Loretta N. Cline, 33 North Mechanic

Rental Workers Will Be Paid, White Is Told

Employes of the local rent control office were notified yesterday by Walter R. Heath, state rent executive, that they would receive pay for the work they have done since OPA legislation become void, Caleb J. White, county rent investigator said.

White said he wasn't sure if the announcement would apply to all price control workers in the area or not, but added he felt reasonably sure that if one division is paid all will be.

Employes of the various price control agencies have continued to report for work, since the Office of Price Administration expired, but have had no guarantee that they would be paid.

White couldn't explain the sudden announcement yesterday that rent control workers would receive their regular salaries for all time worked, but said it comes as good news. "We have continued to work and aid the public to the best of our ability, because we feel it is our duty," he added.

White said Heath also expressed high hope for new rent control legislation yesterday, but didn't say if his hopes were based on federal or state prospects.

At present Governor O'Conor is meeting with local committees on rent control subjects.

White said he believes the salary funds will come from federal agencies.

"Y" Day Camp Sessions Will End Tomorrow

The day camp which has been in session at Central YMCA since July 1 for boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 14 will close tomorrow, according to Robert L. Sisson, general YMCA secretary.

Winners of camp emblems will be announced later by Eugene Hopkins, camp director. Miss E. Jane Gilchrist served as assistant director of girls' activities during the day camp season, and C. Van Roby, "Y" physical director, and James E. Kelley were in charge of swimming instruction for beginners and more advanced pupils.

The campers will leave the "Y" at 9 a. m. today for a tour of the Celanese plant. Auto transportation has been provided. Approximately 20 boys and girls toured Radio Station WTBO Tuesday morning.

Next week the regular summer schedule will go into effect for the remainder of the summer, with the exception of the last week in August, when the gymnasium and swimming pool will be closed for painting and renovations in preparation for the fall season, Sisson said.

The educational tours being held in connection with the day camp program will be continued for boys and girls holding regular "Y" memberships, conducted by Roby. Trips scheduled next week are a tour of the Queen City Glass Company on Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. and a trip through the tunnels beneath Emmanuel Episcopal church on Wednesday at 9:30 a. m.

No afternoon class programs will be held during the remainder of the summer, although the gymnasium and pool will be open for individual use.

Gym Schedule Listed

Roby said that the revised summer gymnasium schedule, which will begin Monday, is as follows:

Monday—Junior B boys, gym 9:30, swim 10:30 a. m.

Tuesday—High school girls, gym 9:30, swim 10:30 a. m.

Croft Is Honored By Celanese Men At Staff Dinner

Dye House Superintendent To Become Manager Of Mexico Plant

A testimonial dinner honoring Cyril M. Croft, 771 Fayette street, superintendent of the dye house at the Celanese plant since 1925, who will leave for Mexico July 24 with Mrs. Croft, was held at the Cumberland Country Club last night by staff members of the Celanese Corporation of America. Eighty-five Celanese men attended.

Croft has been appointed plant manager of the new textile factory being opened at Ocotlan, north of Mexico City, by the Celanese corporation. He and Mrs. Croft will leave Washington by plane next Wednesday. Two other Amcelle men, Richard Kiser and W. E. Bradfield, will go to Mexico late this summer to take charge of the spinning and textile departments, respectively, at the new plant.

Toastmaster at the dinner was Bart J. Lyons, purchasing agent for the Amcelle plant. Speakers included Wilfred T. Normand, assistant to Croft for number of years, who will succeed him as superintendent; Herman Rainalter, superintendent of the chemical division; William Whitehead, an executive from the Celanese office in New York city; Arthur Bright, chief engineer at the Amcelle plant, and Edward Beall of the personnel department.

A cocktail blender was presented to Croft by the staff members in recognition of his 21 years of service here.

Program For Rabbit Propagation And Management Is Underway

Farm Near Mt. Savage Offered For Refuge Area And Laboratory

Use of the 360-acre Marshall Porter farm near Mt. Savage as a propagation area for cottontail rabbits and other small game and as an outdoor laboratory for the study of good game management and good soil conservation practices has been offered to the state game and inland fish commission, Kenneth A. Wilson, field biologist for the commission, said last night.

Two other areas for the propagation of cottontail rabbits already have been set up, one on the Claude Saville farm at Oldtown in co-operation with the national park service, and another at Green Ridge station which was authorized by the state department of forests and parks. Still another such area is currently being established on the Mt. Nebo tract in Garrett county.

Porter offered the use of his entire farm as a cottontail rabbit propagation area after the idea of education in conservation was suggested to him, Wilson said, even though as an enthusiastic hunter he will be unable to hunt on it because of its propagation status.

Follows Conservation Practices

The Porter farm already is being farmed according to soil conservation practices, with contour and strip farming and terracing in operation.

Wilson pointed out that it is hoped to set up a project there in co-operation with the Soil Conservation Service, through the help of W. W. Nace and Martin Gordon, conservationists, which will demonstrate ideal farming as practiced by the Soil Conservation Service and how it ties in with good game management.

In setting up such a project, Wilson said, it is hoped to establish an outdoor classroom or laboratory where teachers, students, 4-H club boys and members of the Future Farmers of America can visit and see how the two programs dovetail one with the other.

Plans for the project call for the encouragement of a 4-H club group to take over game management development of the area, which would include planting trees and shrubs, food patches and trapping of foxes and trapping of the surplus of cottontail rabbits which would be restocked in nearby over-hunted coverts, the biologist pointed out.

Functioning Several Months

He added that at Oldtown Saville has donated use of a 250-acre tract of bottomland along the Potomac river for propagation of cottontail rabbits and bobwhite quail, and said that it is hoped that management of this area can be handled by the 4-H club at Oldtown, and that it, too, can be used as an outdoor laboratory for education in soil, forest and wildlife conservation. This refuge has been functioning for several months.

The refuge at Green Ridge station comprises 100 acres and was set up after being authorized by Joseph Kaylor, state forester, and William H. Johnson, district forester, in co-operation with the national park service.

Soybean patches planted in this and the Saville area already have attracted numerous pairs of nesting bobwhite quail and lots of rabbits, Wilson stated.

The game commission, of which Fulcher P. Smith, Garrett county, is a member, is currently establishing a 1,000-acre refuge area on the Mt. Nebo tract in Garrett county exclusively for the propagation and management of the cottontail rabbit, according to Wilson. Lloyd Cook, game warden at Mt. Lake Park, is in charge of this development on the tract, ownership of which is

SUIT OVER LEGALITY OF WATER METERS TO BE HEARD TODAY

Suit to test legality of the Cumberland ordinance for installation of water meters by consumers, pending in circuit court for more than 20 years, is scheduled to be heard in circuit court this morning before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judges Walter C. Capper and Joseph D. Mish.

Former Rep. David J. Lewis filed the action for an injunction against the mayor and city council August 14, 1925. He disputed the city's authority to have him install separate meters for each apartment in a building he owns on Fayette street.

Former Judge D. Lindley Sloan is counsel for Lewis while City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett will represent the mayor and council. It was indicated that both attorneys will submit briefs and there will be no testimony at the hearing.

Establishment Of Youth-Directed Projects Proposed By Biologist

A proposed state-wide plan for the propagation and management of the cottontail rabbit was offered last night by Kenneth A. Wilson, field biologist for the state game and inland fish commission, who suggested the establishment of a chain of youtg-directed wildlife management projects as an important step in that direction.

Wilson, delivering a prepared address over station WTBO, said the projects would be founded not only on wildlife conservation but also the conservation of soil and forests.

Successful completion of such a plan, he said, would provide the hunter with more cottontails to hunt, educate sportsmen in the superiority of game management and refuges over artificial propagation as an agent in providing better hunting, discourage and subsequently eliminate money expenditures for the purchase of out-of-state cottontail rabbits, perpetuate closer ties and a common ground to better farmer-sportsman relationships, and ultimately establish a chain of game commission-owned rabbit propagation areas, containing 100 acres or more, over the entire state, each unit to be conditioned to produce large enough surpluses of cottontails to eventually pay for the land and show a profit.

Outdoor Laboratories

Wilson proposed the encouragement of 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America, Boy Scouts and high school youth to participate in directing some of the wildlife management projects, and suggested engaging school authorities, describing the plan and suggesting inclusion of soil, forest and wildlife conservation studies in the curriculum, using the wildlife projects as outdoor laboratories.

The youth-directed wildlife management projects and conservation projects Wilson termed "an idea in education that will teach the wisdom of contour farming, drive home the need for conserving our forests and impress upon our youth the values of wildlife—cottontails for recreation, fish for their economic values and sport and fur for milady."

He said it is a "plan in the education of our youth that will displace ignorance with knowledge and among its many useful by-products, I hope, displace the stinking, polluted Potomac with life-supporting water and a clear running stream."

Pay 50 Cents Each

Wilson suggested paying 50 cents for each legally box-trapped rabbit and equal or larger amounts for other small game in order to encourage youth in the project. He added that as the projects produced larger surpluses of cottontails sportsmen would be asked to match this amonut with another 50 cents.

Legion To Provide Followup Ear Care

Arrangements have been made with American Legion leaders in the county to provide operations and treatment as needed for children examined at the two-day ear clinic which ended yesterday afternoon, according to Miss Anne Sloan, child welfare chairman for the department of Maryland of the Legion.

Miss Sloan said that after she had conferred with Frank Powers, Mountain district vice commander, and Samuel A. Graham, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, the organization agreed to assume responsibility for operations and treatment deemed necessary by the clinic.

Seventy children were examined during the two-day clinic by Dr. M. L. Breitstein, a member of the staff of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, assisted by Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

Of that number, 36 were new cases, and in 30 cases radium treatments were used. The clinic was conducted at headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Breitstein was in charge of tests for defective hearing, using an audiometer recently presented to the health department by the Legion.

Six Garrett county school children, for whom transportation was provided from Oakland by the Legion, were examined yesterday. Age ranges of the children examined were from 4 to 21 years. A number of children who have been receiving treatment over a period of time were pronounced cured.

Assisting at the clinic were Miss Anna Hardy, Miss Henrietta Lippold and Mrs. Louise Batie Shepherd, public health nurses.

Cumberland's Shoppers Want Price Control, Survey Shows

Many Favor Modified Form, But All Term It "A Necessity"

The shopping public of Cumberland is almost 100 per cent for OPA control and wants it restored . . . "in some form, anyway." At least that is what a survey of more than 50 persons on local streets showed yesterday.

A few of the persons interviewed expressed hope that the bill would be modified, but everyone had an emphatic "yes" to the question "Do you think OPA is needed now?"

A large number of the shoppers used the word "terrible" when they attempted to describe prevailing conditions, since price control legislation was voided.

Mrs. John Smith, 206 Avirett avenue, whose husband is employed at the Celanese Corporation of America plant had this to say:

"It's terrible, I don't know what people with large families are going to do. I certainly do want OPA continued."

But some of the city officials weren't so drastic is their demands for the continuation of price ceilings. All hoped for some form of revival though.

Want Reasonable Prices

Commissioner Myers G. Light said that under OPA, rent control protected the tenant but not the landlord. Further rent control legislation should provide for reasonable increases in rent as needed, the commissioner said, citing as an example that if taxes increase ten per cent, rents could also be increased the same amount. Some control also must be maintained on food prices, he said.

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, thinks some kind of price control is needed to keep prices from becoming exorbitant.

Most of those questioned didn't care to say how much longer they thought OPA would be needed. The most common answer to the question was "until production reaches a point where there will be enough for everybody. Then prices will have to remain in reason."

Mrs. W. S. Goodwin, 24 North Chase street, widow of a former manager of the Pittsburgh Meat and Packing company, said "I'm all for OPA. Prices are out of reason. I don't know what people are going to do."

Robert W. McColley, 10 West Second street, employed as a clerk in Schwarzenbach's Store, wasn't so sure about control of food commodities, but thought something should be done about rising rents right away. The government should revive rent control, he said.

James Mulligan, 218 Paca street, who works in the bottling department of the Queen City Brewery, said "things are so high a working man can't support a family. Sure I want OPA revived."

James V. Porter, Ellerslie, employed on the Pennsylvania railroad expressed himself this way, "A great mistake was made when OPA ended. My food budget has increased 50 per cent in the past weeks." Porter said he was in favor of the recent wage increases that labor demanded, but "didn't think industry was justified

More Candidates File Reports Of Expenses

While total disbursements shown in the expense reports of George Henderson, successful candidate for nomination for judge of the Fourth judicial circuit, and Charles A. Cole, Frostburg, his political agent, amount to $2,322.90, the reports also show that $232 was contributed by Henderson to Cole, that $150 was contributed to another candidate's campaign and that $50 was donated to the Republican State Central Committee.

The duplication of $232 in both Henderson's and Cole's report would reduce the total expenditure to $2,090.90 and the deduction of $200 in contributions to Lemmert and the central committee would further reduce the total to $1,890.90.

The jurist-elect, in his personal report, listed a total of $1,775.60 in expenses, with no contributions. The expenses included a $25 filing fee in each of three counties, Allegany, Garrett and Washington, which comprise the circuit. The other items were for workers, cars, advertising, photographs, travel and other expenses during the campaign.

Fey Spent $656

John T. Fey, local attorney and veteran of World War II, who was second high man in the Republican race for the House of Delegates, today reported expenditure of $656.64, with a contribution of $50.

Judge J. French Van Meter, who topped the ticket in the contest for judge of the Orphans' Court, spent a total of $195.55, and received donations amounting to $20.

Thomas H. Taylor, who lost in the Republican race for judge of the Orphans' Court, spent $109.95 for advertising, filing fee and other items.

Harris Total Only $45

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, who was unopposed in the contest for reelection, and is "automatically" returned to office, spent $25 for filing fee and $20 for program advertising.

Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, of Barton, who was the only woman member of the Allegany county contingent in the House of Delegates, and who lost in the Republican primary, spent $85.

William Stewart, of Frostburg, who was defeated in his contest for clerk to the Board of County Commissioners, spent $191.15 and listed $155 "contributed by my good friends."

Richard G. Jenkins, of Frostburg, an "also ran" in the Republican race for sheriff, spent a total of $175.

William H. Geppert, successful candidate for the GOP nomination for election to the House of Delegates, reported expenditures of $251.60 and contributions of $175.

William C. Abbott, one of three winning candidates for the Republican nomination as judge of the orphans court, reported expenses of $86.25 and donations of $50.

Fair Rent Commission For Cumberland Is Named By O'Conor

A seven-man fair rent commission for Cumberland was named yesterday by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, according to the Associated Press.

Robert E. Barnard, notified by telegram from the governor that he had been appointed chairman of the commission, said last night that he will be unable to accept the appointment and had wired the governor to that effect.

David Kauffman informed the News that he will accept his appointment as commission attorney.

Other men appointed by the governor are Robert W. Young, Daniel F. McMullen, J. Thurston Boyd, C. E. Stutzman, chairman of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference; and William Boyd Coleman, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America.

None of the latter five appointees could be reached last night for statements as to whether they would accept the appointments.

Undergarment Manager Won't Confirm Sale

Maurice Millberg, manager of the Cumberland Undergarment Company, 917 Gay street, last night refused to confirm or deny that the concern was selling out and leaving this city, less than a year after spending $50,000 to improve the property and begin production.

Yesterday's local papers carried an advertisement that a factory building located at 917 Gay street was for sale. Millberg said the add speaks for itself, there is nothing more to say.

Up until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Millberg said he had received no offers or been contacted by any one interested in purchasing his business.

Confronted with a direct question, "Will you sell if a fair offer is made, or is this an attempt to frighten union officials and employes," Millberg said, "I have nothing to say at this time, the add speaks for itself. If anyone comes here I will show them through the factory."

Angela Baumbace, Baltimore, representative for the International Ladies' Undergarment Workers, met with union members yesterday afternoon in the plant, but workers said the sale of the factory was not a topic of the meeting.

The advertisement suggested that interested parties contact company officials at the Gay street office or inquire at the local Chamber of Commerce.

Millberg said yesterday that work was being continued at the plant. He said employes reported at the usual time and worked a full day.

The advertisement seeking a buyer for the plant comes as a surprise since the company recently sought a tax exemption on tools and machinery at a meeting with the mayor and city council. They gave no hint that they would leave the city if the exemption was not granted.

At present the factory employs about 135 persons, but the company had announced it hoped to advance the figure to between 500 and 600 when additional machinery was installed.

Several labor disputes have occurred at the factory, which has a contract with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union AFL. Workers complained that piecework rates were not satisfactory. It is understood that the dispute was never fully settled and workers indicated that Angela Baumbace was now in the city to make an attempt to reach an agreement.

RUBBER WORKERS REPORT PROGRESS IN CONTRACT TALKS

Ralph C. Beard, president of Local 26, United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, CIO, said last evening that the union is making progress in its negotiations on a working agreement with the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

The union official added that the union committee expects to submit most of the issues in the contract for action of the membership at a meeting of the local to be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Rubber Workers hall.

James A. Holden, federal conciliator, and Harley V. Brown, Akron, District 1 field representative, were present at yesterday's negotiations at the Kelly plant.

Beard said Holden will be unable to stay for the rest of the contract conferences this week but will return Monday for the final sessions. The union official added that the union hopes in the meanwhile to reach agreement on most of the issues to be incorporated into the continuing working agreement the union has with the Kelly plant.

Mine Owners Express Views In Car Shortage

Roy B. White, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has been advised by officers of the Northern West Virginia Coal Association that while the association has never accused the railroad company of deliberately depriving coal operators of empty coal cars, the question has been raised of why the B. and O. should be caught so short at a time when other coal carrying roads are operating normally.

The letter, signed by George S. Brackett, president, and Truman E. Johnson, secretary, was in reply to a letter from White and addressed to Brackett.

Meanwhile the car shortage in that section continues unabated. A total of 67 mines were down on the Monongah division last Saturday.

Frostburg Man's Body Is Found In Jr. OUAM Park

County Medical Examiner Gives Verdict Of Suicide By Shooting

James Lambert, 62, a retired X-ray technician, who had been residing in Frostburg with his wife since April, was found dead yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in Jr. O. U. A. M. park, Frostburg. Death was caused by a gunshot wound in the right temple, Dr. H. V. Deming, acting county medical examiner, who gave a verdict of suicide, said.

Lambert, who resided at 8 West Loo street, was last seen when he left the house yesterday morning at 7:30 o'clock to take his dog for a walk, Dr. Deming said, explaining that this was a daily habit.

Murphy Discovers Body

The body was discovered by Marion Murphy, 203 Maple street, Frostburg, who is on his vacation from the Celanese plant. Murphy told police that he was walking through the park when he noticed the body lying on the side of the path. He immediately called the Frostburg police.

Dr. Deming said Lambert used a .38 caliber revolver, which was found near the body. Police couldn't explain where the revolver was obtained.

Lambert and his wife, the former Miss Mae Armstrong, a native of Frostburg, resided in New York City until April, this year, where he was employed as an X-ray technician in the Lennox Hill hospital. Police said that Lambert also was interested in the antique business while in New York.

Became Despondent

Mr. and Mrs. Lambert resided in Frostburg a short time after they were married but left for New York about 11 years ago.

Both Lambert and his wife have been in failing health, police said, and he had become very despondent since moving to Frostburg.

The investigation was conducted by Officers Ronald Kreider and George Tipping, of the Frostburg Police Department, Trooper G. M. Rotruck, Maryland State Police, Dr. Deming and Terrence J. Boyle, county investigator.

The body was taken to the Hafer Funeral Home in Frostburg.

Fifty-two candidates, including 38 from Camp No. 6, eight from Hagerstown, and three each from Grantsville and Hyattsville, were initiated at the ceremonies in charge of Major Sebastian Spera, this city, degree master.

Holston, who is touring the Eastern states in an attempt to visit part of the 8,000 camps in the United States, is national treasurer and field director of the Woodmen of the World Life Assurance Company of America.

He stressed the need of fraternalism in the world in a brief address which followed the mass initiation.

Among officers who attended the ceremonies here were Spencer Graham, Oakland, state manager; Max W. Miller, Hagerstown, past head consul; S. S. Dowlan, this city; past head consul; P. H. DeLawter, Washington, D. C., junior past counsel; George C. Parker this city, head adviser; George H. Parker, Washington, D. C., head escort, and Carl Kesby, Hyattsville, auditor.

Maryland-D. C., officers who participated in the initiation were Thurston G. Brown, Washington, who presided at the rites; John C. German, this city, vice lieutenant; Vincent Bergman, this city; past consul commander; H. B. Scharf, this city, banker; G. Edwin Parker, this city, watchman; M. C. Olden, Hagerstown, sentry, and G. Railroader Is Hurt Near Kelly Plant

Raymond Borst, 43, 722 Maryland avenue, a B. and O. brakeman, was admitted to Allegany hospital yesterday at 3:15 p. m. for treatment of injuries suffered near the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company plant.

Borst, who was reported in a "good" condition last evening, was suffering from lacerations across and on the side of the nose and complained of back pains, attaches said.

He was admitted for observation and X-rays to determine the extent of injuries.

The local railroader told attaches he was injured while at work near the Kelly plant but was unable to explain how the accident might have occurred. He was given first aid at the Kelly dispensary and then taken to the local hospital.

Isaac N. Judy, Buchanan Lumber Company employe, who suffered the fracture of the left big toe while at work Monday, is recuperating at his home, 308 Pulaski street. He was able to return to his home after a cast was applied to the fracture which resulted when a door he was planing slipped and struck his foot.

4-Year-Old Boy Is Hit By Truck, Dies Instantly

Harris Says Driver Is Held On Charge Of Manslaughter

A 4-year-old boy was killed instantly early yesterday afternoon when he was crushed beneath the wheels of a backing ice delivery truck near his home on Cecelia street.

Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, identified the child as William Alexander Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Brown, 318 Cecelia street, and said the boy was killed at 1:55 p. m., when he was struck by a Queen City Brewing Company ice truck operated by Walter Russell Hensel, 23, 307 Water street.

The state's attorney added that Hensel was released in custody of his attorney for a hearing in trial magistrates court on a charge of manslaughter by motor vehicle.

Detective E. R. Lilya, who with Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman, conducted the preliminary investigation, said the child was struck by the right rear wheel of the truck as Hensel was backing up the 300 block of the street.

Skull Is Crushed

Death occurred instantly, according to Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, as a result of a crushed skull and a broken neck.

The child was pronounced dead on admission to Allegany hospital where he was taken by Hensel and his mother, Mrs. Laura Matilda Pollock Brown.

Hensel told Harris that he was backing up the dead end street and was looking out the left door of the truck when the right rear wheel ran over the child.

Harris said Hensel told him that when he heard the impact he stopped and ran to the rear of the truck and found that a woman had the child in her arms.

Picks Up Brother's Body

The boy's sister, Irene Brown, 16, who was in the kitchen of their home, heard the child cry and rushed outside and picked up her brother's body. She said the boy was sitting on the porch of the home shortly before the accident occurred.

Mrs. Brown, authorities were told, did not see the accident since she heard the ice truck coming and hurried upstairs to get some money for ice.

Hensel and Mrs. Brown took the child to the Brown home and Hensel went to telephone, Harris said, but a few minutes later decided instead to take the child to the hospital.

Authorities said Hensel told them he had two reasons for backing the vehicle, first, because the ice was not so likely to slip and break and second, because of the difficulty of turning at the end of the street.

Hensel, who is single and lives with his aunt, Mrs. Martin Hager, at 307 Water street, started driving for the local brewery in 1941 and

Names Of Ten New Signers Are Added To Application For Transfer

Hearing on a remonstrance against transfer of the Class B liquor license of Charles H. Whetsell from Porter's restaurant, 30 North Mechanic street, to 28 and 30 Baltimore street where he and Herbert Cornish plan to open a new tavern, to be known as "The Alibi," has been postponed from today until Wednesday, July 24, counsel in the case said yesterday.

Along with the postponement, Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge Walter C. Capper have granted the petition of Whetsell's attorneys to amend his application for transfer of the license.

A protest was filed Saturday by counsel for the Cadillac Cocktail lounge, located next door to the proposed new tavern, alleging that one of Whetsell's signers had already signed the application of another license holder in the neighborhood during the year. Since then Harry I. Stegmaier and William S. Jenkins, attorneys for Whetsell, have obtained 10 more signers on the application.

Protest Against Signer

William A. Gunter and D. Lindley Sloan, attorneys for Frank Molinari, Jr., and Samuel F. DeLuca, owners of the Cadillac, alleged that Edward Habeeb, owner of a flower shop at 28 North Mechanic street, had already signed the application of the Alhambra Club of the Knights of Columbus, and the county law prohibits the signing of more than one application.

The attorneys also alleged that Paul Steinla, another signer, has his place of business at 218 South Mechanic street, "which is not near the place to be licensed." In addition, they contended that plans for renovating the building indicated that an entrance would also be on North Mechanic street, and this was not mentioned in the license transfer application.

Six Original Signers

Besides Habeeb and Steinla, the original signers of Whetsell's application were A. E. Stein, 29 Baltimore street; John J. McMullen, 9 South Mechanic street; Grace M. Fisher, 37 North Mechanic street, and Christ G. Charuhas, 35 Baltimore street.

Additional signers listed yesterday, after the Court granted counsel permission to amend the petition, were T. J. Zimmerman, 21 North Mechanic street; B. W. Whitacre, 35 North Mechanic street; Bernard F. Coyle, 45 Baltimore street; Frank A. Martin, 47 Baltimore street; Harold E. Simmons, 31 Baltimore street; Cecil J. Northcraft, 25 Baltimore street; Dorothy Rephann, 19 Baltimore street; J. Frank Eyman, 22 North Mechanic street; Adolph Hirsch, 52 Baltimore street, and Loretta N. Cline, 33 North Mechanic

Rental Workers Will Be Paid, White Is Told

Employes of the local rent control office were notified yesterday by Walter R. Heath, state rent executive, that they would receive pay for the work they have done since OPA legislation become void, Caleb J. White, county rent investigator said.

White said he wasn't sure if the announcement would apply to all price control workers in the area or not, but added he felt reasonably sure that if one division is paid all will be.

Employes of the various price control agencies have continued to report for work, since the Office of Price Administration expired, but have had no guarantee that they would be paid.

White couldn't explain the sudden announcement yesterday that rent control workers would receive their regular salaries for all time worked, but said it comes as good news. "We have continued to work and aid the public to the best of our ability, because we feel it is our duty," he added.

White said Heath also expressed high hope for new rent control legislation yesterday, but didn't say if his hopes were based on federal or state prospects.

At present Governor O'Conor is meeting with local committees on rent control subjects.

White said he believes the salary funds will come from federal agencies.

"Y" Day Camp Sessions Will End Tomorrow

Next week the regular summer schedule will go into effect for the remainder of the summer, with the exception of the last week in August, when the gymnasium and swimming pool will be closed for painting and renovations in preparation for the fall season, Sisson said.

The educational tours being held in connection with the day camp program will be continued for boys and girls holding regular "Y" memberships, conducted by Roby. Trips scheduled next week are a tour of the Queen City Glass Company on Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. and a trip through the tunnels beneath Emmanuel Episcopal church on Wednesday at 9:30 a. m.

No afternoon class programs will be held during the remainder of the summer, although the gymnasium and pool will be open for individual use.

Croft Is Honored By Celanese Men At Staff Dinner

Dye House Superintendent To Become Manager Of Mexico Plant

A testimonial dinner honoring Cyril M. Croft, 771 Fayette street, superintendent of the dye house at the Celanese plant since 1925, who will leave for Mexico July 24 with Mrs. Croft, was held at the Cumberland Country Club last night by staff members of the Celanese Corporation of America. Eighty-five Celanese men attended.

Croft has been appointed plant manager of the new textile factory being opened at Octolan, north of Mexico City, by the Celanese corporation. He and Mrs. Croft will leave Washington by plane next Wednesday. Two other Amcelle men, Richard Kiser and W. E. Bradfield, will go to Mexico late this summer to take charge of the spinning and textile departments, respectively, at the new plant.

Toastmaster at the dinner was Bart J. Lyons, purchasing agent for the Amcelle plant. Speakers included Wilfred T. Normand, assistant to Croft for number of years, who will succeed him as superintendent; Herman Rainalter, superintendent of the chemical division; William Whitehead, an executive from the Celanese office in New York city; Arthur Bright, chief engineer at the Amcelle plant, and Edward Beall of the personnel department.

Program For Rabbit Propagation And Management Is Underway

Farm Near Mt. Savage Offered For Refuge Area And Laboratory

Use of the 360-acre Marshall Porter farm near Mt. Savage as a propagation area for cottontail rabbits and other small game and as an outdoor laboratory for the study of good game management and good soil conservation practices has been offered to the state game and inland fish commission, Kenneth A. Wilson, field biologist for the commission, said last night.

Two other areas for the propagation of cottontail rabbits already have been set up, one on the Claude Saville farm at Oldtown in co-operation with the national park service, and another at Green Ridge station which was authorized by the state department of forests and parks. Still another such area is currently being established on the Mt. Nebo tract in Garrett county.

Porter offered the use of his entire farm as a cottontail rabbit propagation area after the idea of education in conservation was suggested to him, Wilson said, even though as an enthusiastic hunter he will be unable to hunt on it because of its propagation status.

Follows Conservation Practices

The Porter farm already is being farmed according to soil conservation practices, with contour and strip farming and terracing in operation.

Wilson pointed out that it is hoped to set up a project there in co-operation with the Soil Conservation Service, through the help of W. W. Nace and Martin Gordon, conservationists, which will demonstrate ideal farming as practiced by the Soil Conservation Service and how it ties in with good game management.

In setting up such a project, Wilson said, it is hoped to establish an outdoor classroom or laboratory where teachers, students, 4-H club boys and members of the Future Farmers of America can visit and see how the two programs dovetail one with the other.

Plans for the project call for the encouragement of a 4-H club group to take over game management development of the area, which would include planting trees and shrubs, food patches and trapping of foxes and trapping of the surplus of cottontail rabbits which would be restocked in nearby over-hunted coverts, the biologist pointed out.

Functioning Several Months

He added that at Oldtown Saville has donated use of a 250-acre tract of bottomland along the Potomac river for propagation of cottontail rabbits and bobwhite quail, and said that it is hoped that management of this area can be handled by the 4-H club at Oldtown, and that it, too, can be used as an outdoor laboratory for education in soil, forest and wildlife conservation. This refuge has been functioning for several months.

The refuge at Green Ridge station comprises 100 acres and was set up after being authorized by Joseph Kaylor, state forester, and William H. Johnson, district forester, in co-operation with the national park service.

Soybean patches planted in this and the Saville area already have attracted numerous pairs of nesting bobwhite quail and lots of rabbits, Wilson stated.

The game commission, of which Fulcher P. Smith, Garrett county, is a member, is currently establishing a 1,000-acre refuge area on the Mt. Nebo tract in Garrett county exclusively for the propagation and management of the cottontail rabbit, according to Wilson. Lloyd Cook, game warden at Mt. Lake Park, is in charge of this development on the tract, ownership of which is

SUIT OVER LEGALITY OF WATER METERS TO BE HEARD TODAY

Suit to test legality of the Cumberland ordinance for installation of water meters by consumers, pending in circuit court for more than 30 years, is scheduled to be heard in circuit court this morning before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judges Walter C. Capper and Joseph D. Mish.

Former Rep. David J. Lewis filed the action for an injunction against the mayor and city council August 14, 1925. He disputed the city's authority to have him install separate meters for each apartment in a building he owns on Fayette street.

Former Judge D. Lindley Sloan is counsel for Lewis while City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett will represent the mayor and council. It was indicated that both attorneys will submit briefs and there will be no testimony at the hearing.

Establishment Of Youth-Directed Projects Proposed By Biologist

A proposed state-wide plan for the propagation and management of the cottontail rabbit was offered last night by Kenneth A. Wilson, field biologist for the state game and inland fish commission, who suggested the establishment of a chain of youtg-directed wildlife management projects as an important step in that direction.

Wilson, delivering a prepared address over station WTBO, said the projects would be founded not only on wildlife conservation but also the conservation of soil and forests.

Successful completion of such a plan, he said, would provide the hunter with more cottontails to hunt, educate sportsmen in the superiority of game management and refuges over artificial propagation as an agent in providing better hunting, discourage and subsequently eliminate money expenditures for the purchase of out-of-state cottontail rabbits, perpetuate closer ties and a common ground to better farmer-sportsman relationships, and ultimately establish a chain of game commission-owned rabbit propagation areas, containing 100 acres or more, over the entire state, each unit to be conditioned to produce large enough surpluses of cottontails to eventually pay for the land and show a profit.

Outdoor Laboratories

Wilson proposed the encouragement of 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America, Boy Scouts and high school youth to participate in directing some of the wildlife management projects, and suggested engaging school authorities, describing the plan and suggesting inclusion of soil, forest and wildlife conservation studies in the curriculum, using the wildlife projects as outdoor laboratories.

The youth-directed wildlife management projects and conservation projects Wilson termed "an idea in education that will teach the wisdom of contour farming, drive home the need for conserving our forests and impress upon our youth the values of wildlife—cottontails for recreation, fish for their economic values and sport and fur for milady."

He said it is a "plan in the education of our youth that will displace ignorance with knowledge and among its many useful by-products, I hope, displace the stinking, polluted Potomac with life-supporting water and a clear running stream."

Pay 50 Cents Each

Wilson suggested paying 50 cents for each legally box-trapped rabbit and equal or larger amounts for other small game in order to encourage youth in the project. He added that as the projects produced larger surpluses of cottontails sportsmen would be asked to match this amonut with another 50 cents.

Legion To Provide Followup Ear Care

Arrangements have been made with American Legion leaders in the county to provide operations and treatment as needed for children examined at the two-day ear clinic which ended yesterday afternoon, according to Miss Anne Sloan, child welfare chairman for the department of Maryland of the Legion.

Miss Sloan said that after she had conferred with Frank Powers, Mountain district vice commander, and Samuel A. Graham, commander of Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, the organization agreed to assume responsibility for operations and treatment deemed necessary by the clinic.

Seventy children were examined during the two-day clinic by Dr. M. L. Breitstein, a member of the staff of Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, assisted by Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer.

Of that number, 36 were new cases, and in 30 cases radium treatments were used. The clinic was conducted at headquarters of the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Breitstein was in charge of tests for defective hearing, using an audiometer recently presented to the health department by the Legion.

Six Garrett county school children, for whom transportation was provided from Oakland by the Legion, were examined yesterday. Age ranges of the children examined were from 4 to 21 years. A number of children who have been receiving treatment over a period of time were pronounced cured.

Assisting at the clinic were Miss Anna Hardy, Miss Henrietta Lippold and Mrs. Louise Batie Shepherd, public health nurses.

Cumberland's Shoppers Want Price Control, Survey Shows

Many Favor Modified Form, But All Term It "A Necessity"

The shopping public of Cumberland is almost 100 per cent for OPA control and wants it restored . . . "in some form, anyway." At least that is what a survey of more than 50 persons on local streets showed yesterday.

A few of the persons interviewed expressed hope that the bill would be modified, but everyone had an emphatic "yes" to the question "Do you think OPA is needed now?"

A large number of the shoppers used the word "terrible" when they attempted to describe prevailing conditions, since price control legislation was voided.

Mrs. John Smith, 206 Avirett avenue, whose husband is employed at the Celanese Corporation of America plant had this to say:

"It's terrible, I don't know what people with large families are going to do. I certainly do want OPA continued."

But some of the city officials weren't so drastic is their demands for the continuation of price ceilings. All hoped for some form of revival though.

Want Reasonable Prices

Commissioner Myers G. Light said that under OPA, rent control protected the tenant but not the landlord. Further rent control legislation should provide for reasonable increases in rent as needed, the commissioner said, citing as an example that if taxes increase ten per cent, rents could also be increased the same amount. Some control also must be maintained on food prices, he said.

Dr. Joseph P. Franklin, city and county health officer, thinks some kind of price control is needed to keep prices from becoming exorbitant.

Most of those questioned didn't care to say how much longer they thought OPA would be needed. The most common answer to the question was "until production reaches a point where there will be enough for everybody. Then prices will have to remain in reason."

Mrs. W. S. Goodwin, 24 North Chase street, widow of a former manager of the Pittsburgh Meat and Packing company, said "I'm all for OPA. Prices are out of reason. I don't know what people are going to do."

Robert W. McColley, 10 West Second street, employed as a clerk in Schwarzenbach's Store, wasn't so sure about control of food commodities, but thought something should be done about rising rents right away. The government should revive rent control, he said.

James Mulligan, 218 Paca street, who works in the bottling department of the Queen City Brewery, said "things are so high a working man can't support a family. Sure I want OPA revived."

James V. Porter, Ellerslie, employed on the Pennsylvania railroad expressed himself this way, "A great mistake was made when OPA ended. My food budget has increased 50 per cent in the past weeks." Porter said he was in favor of the recent wage increases that labor demanded, but "didn't think industry was justified

While total disbursements shown in the expense reports of George Henderson, successful candidate for nomination for judge of the Fourth judicial circuit, and Charles A. Cole, Frostburg, his political agent, amount to $2,322.90, the reports also show that $232 was contributed by Henderson to Cole, that $150 was contributed to another candidate's campaign and that $50 was donated to the Republican State Central Committee.

The duplication of $232 in both Henderson's and Cole's report would reduce the total expenditure to $2,090.90 and the deduction of $200 in contributions to Lemmert and the central committee would further reduce the total to $1,890.90.

The jurist-elect, in his personal report, listed a total of $1,775.60 in expenses, with no contributions. The expenses included a $25 filing fee in each of three counties, Allegany, Garrett and Washington, which comprise the circuit. The other items were for workers, cars, advertising, photographs, travel and other expenses during the campaign.

Fey Spent $656

John T. Fey, local attorney and veteran of World War II, who was second high man in the Republican race for the House of Delegates, today reported expenditure of $656.64, with a contribution of $50.

Judge J. French Van Meter, who topped the ticket in the contest for judge of the Orphans' Court, spent a total of $195.55, and received donations amounting to $20.

Thomas H. Taylor, who lost in the Republican race for judge of the Orphans' Court, spent $109.95 for advertising, filing fee and other items.

Harris Total Only $45

State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, who was unopposed in the contest for reelection, and is "automatically" returned to office, spent $25 for filing fee and $20 for program advertising.

Mrs. Lulu W. Boucher, of Barton, who was the only woman member of the Allegany county contingent in the House of Delegates, and who lost in the Republican primary, spent $85.

William Stewart, of Frostburg, who was defeated in his contest for clerk to the Board of County Commissioners, spent $191.15 and listed $155 "contributed by my good friends."

Richard G. Jenkins, of Frostburg, an "also ran" in the Republican race for sheriff, spent a total of $175.

William H. Geppert, successful candidate for the GOP nomination for election to the House of Delegates, reported expenditures of $251.60 and contributions of $175.

William C. Abbott, one of three winning candidates for the Republican nomination as judge of the orphans court, reported expenses of $86.25 and donations of $50.

Fair Rent Commission For Cumberland Is Named By O'Conor

A seven-man fair rent commission for Cumberland was named yesterday by Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, according to the Associated Press.

Robert E. Barnard, notified by telegram from the governor that he had been appointed chairman of the commission, said last night that he will be unable to accept the appointment and had wired the governor to that effect.

David Kauffman informed the News that he will accept his appointment as commission attorney.

Other men appointed by the governor are Robert W. Young, Daniel F. McMullen, J. Thurston Boyd, C. E. Stutzman, chairman of the Western Maryland Labor Unity Conference; and William Boyd Coleman, president of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America.

None of the latter five appointees could be reached last night for statements as to whether they would accept the appointments.

Undergarment Manager Won't Confirm Sale

Maurice Millberg, manager of the Cumberland Undergarment Company, 917 Gay street, last night refused to confirm or deny that the concern was selling out and leaving this city, less than a year after spending $50,000 to improve the property and begin production.

Yesterday's local papers carried an advertisement that a factory building located at 917 Gay street was for sale. Millberg said the add speaks for itself, there is nothing more to say.

Up until 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Millberg said he had received no offers or been contacted by any one interested in purchasing his business.

Confronted with a direct question, "Will you sell if a fair offer is made, or is this an attempt to frighten union officials and employes," Millberg said, "I have nothing to say at this time, the add speaks for itself. If anyone comes here I will show them through the factory."

Angela Baumbace, Baltimore, representative for the International Ladies' Undergarment Workers, met with union members yesterday afternoon in the plant, but workers said the sale of the factory was not a topic of the meeting.

The advertisement suggested that interested parties contact company officials at the Gay street office or inquire at the local Chamber of Commerce.

Millberg said yesterday that work was being continued at the plant. He said employes reported at the usual time and worked a full day.

The advertisement seeking a buyer for the plant comes as a surprise since the company recently sought a tax exemption on tools and machinery at a meeting with the mayor and city council. They gave no hint that they would leave the city if the exemption was not granted.

At present the factory employs about 135 persons, but the company had announced it hoped to advance the figure to between 500 and 600 when additional machinery was installed.

Several labor disputes have occurred at the factory, which has a contract with the International Ladies Garment Workers Union AFL. Workers complained that piecework rates were not satisfactory. It is understood that the dispute was never fully settled and workers indicated that Angela Baumbace was now in the city to make an attempt to reach an agreement.

Mine Owners Express Views In Car Shortage

Roy B. White, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, has been advised by officers of the Northern West Virginia Coal Association that while the association has never accused the railroad company of deliberately depriving coal operators of empty coal cars, the question has been raised of why the B. and O. should be caught so short at a time when other coal carrying roads are operating normally.

The letter, signed by George S. Brackett, president, and Truman E. Johnson, secretary, was in reply to a letter from White and addressed to Brackett.

Meanwhile the car shortage in that section continues unabated. A total of 67 mines were down on the Monongah division last Saturday.
